SUBJECT CLASSIFICATION

For the American Educational List, 1908.

This classification is in seventeen main classes shown by center headings in BLACK FACE CAPS: Art, Business training, Economics and civics, Examinations, Geography, History, Kindergarten, Language, Literature, Mathematics, Music, Mythology, Penmanship, Philosophy, Physical training, Reading and elocution, and Science, divisions of these being shown by black face lower case, and subdivisions by SMALL CAPS. The index below shows under which of the main heads any specific subject may be sought, except that self-evident references, as from French language to Language, are not given.

The names refer to the preceding author list, where prices, publishers, etc., are entered.

Supplementary reading will be found under Reading and elocution (Readers) or as a division under other classes. Where such subdivisions as "complete," "elementary," and "higher" are used, books are placed under them only if so designated by publishers. Otherwise they may be found under the larger division. Series are entered only under "complete."

The Publishers' Weekly.

FOUNDED BY F. LEYPOLDT.

JULY 25, 1908.

The editor does not hold himself responsible for the views expressed in contributed articles or communications.

All matter for advertising pages should reach this office not later than Wednesday noon, to insure insertion in the same week's issue.

Publishers are requested to furnish title-page proofs and advance information of books forthcoming, both for entry in the lists and for descriptive mention. An early copy of each book published should be forwarded, as it is of the utmost importance that the entries of books be made as promptly and as perfectly as possible. In many cases booksellers and librarians depend on the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY solely for their information. The Record of New Publications of the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY is the material of the "American Catalog," and so forms the basis of trade bibliography in the United States.

"I hold every man a debtor to his profession, from the which, as men do of course seek to receive countenance and profit, so ought they of duty to endeavor themselves by way of amends to be a help and an ornament thereunto."—LORD BACON.

ON SCHOOL BOOKS AND THE STATES.

THERE is no country in the world which has such remarkable school books as the United States, and none in which more is had for the money. American school books command the best talent there is in the writing of them and the best talent there is in their illustration; and they are something of which Americans may well be proud. This has come about through a competition which is as keen and active as it always has been, for the number of school book publishers is probably greater to-day than it has been at any time before.

Some years ago California and other States had a craze for the preparation and manufacture of their own school books. Commissions were appointed to get up school books; but nothing came of it all except in California, where the State actually did start in to have its school books written for it. The foolishness of this soon became evident, and it was found that California would have poorer books than any other State. But the State of California had invested large sums in an enormous printing plant, and it fell back on the scheme of leasing plates from publishers and paying copyright and royalty for their use. The State of California in all probability is paying itself quite as much for its school books as it used to pay to publishers, if not more; and it, of course, leaves out of consideration the losses on its printing plant and other large items of expense.

The craze for State-made school books died out long ago, but now there is a craze of another sort. This has taken shape, particularly in Texas and Oklahoma, in statutes or proceedings, or threatened proceedings, against supposititious trusts in the school booktrade. As a matter of fact, there are absolutely no trusts in the school booktrade. The American Book Company is a book-publishing concern which publishes a large number of lines taken over by purchase from the publishers who published them twenty years or so ago, and kept up to date to meet the demand of the time; but the American Book Company is not a trust in any sense. It is not made up of different corporations; it does not include or control other corporations or publishing firms, except as it may buy out their publications or interest from time to time; and it has none of the other features of a trust. It has half a hundred competitors, each pushing its own line of school books everywhere throughout the country, and the competition, both as to quality and price, is keen and effective.

In Texas there has been outcry and threatened proceedings against other school book houses, competitors with the American Book Company, on the allegation that these belong to a trust, viz., the American Publishers' Association. Now, the American Publishers' Association, as is well known to the booktrade, is simply a consultative organization, which has nothing to do with the fixing of prices, and only makes recommendations on the subject of discounts. School books are specifically excepted even from these recommendations, and have been from the beginning. So that, if the American Publishers' Association were a trust—as it is not—it has no application whatever to school books. The Texas authorities are therefore on a false scent in prosecuting or persecuting these houses because of their connection with the American Publishers' Association. Yet this has been made so much of that some of the educational publishers have felt obliged to offer their resignations from the American Publishers' Association solely because of the mistaken attitude which we have indicated.

The movement is doubtless the result of the popular wrath against trusts, only too well justified in certain cases. There has frequently been complaint on the part of the people that the methods of some school book publishers have been less scrupulous than they should be and that they have "played politics" altogether too much. This was perhaps one of the motives which led to the adoption of the printing scheme by the State of California. But the State of California has jumped "from the frying pan into the fire," and has, in its present scheme, probably a much more fruitful source of political corruption than in the old sources. No publisher is justified in adopting methods which will not bear the light of day, and so far as the present difficulties are the reflex of popular opinion on this subject there is nothing to be said in defence of such methods.

But the fact remains that the States, the public, and the school children are gaining nothing through the scheme now put in operation, very possibly engineered by politicians for their own ends. Most, if not all, of the States which buy under wholesale contracts for the schools throughout the State provide that the price shall be the lowest made elsewhere; and this ensures a safeguard as to price, especially in view of the keenness of the existing competition. When the State bars itself from adopting certain lines of books because of prejudice, whether well or ill-grounded, against their publishers, it does itself and its school children a harm. It simply prevents itself in getting the best books for its children. And this is certainly to be lamented from every point of view.

Those who share the outcry against trusts in the booktrade overlook two very important facts: On the one side, every copyright book is and must be a monopoly, because the copyright is properly vested in the author or in the publisher to whom he sells it. But nobody can prevent another man from writing or publishing another book on the same subject; and so no copyright monopoly or trust arrangement can possibly prevent existing or new publishing houses from publishing rival geographies or histories or readers. In fact, there are at least a hundred competing books in the American field in each of these lines. The result has been to give the best book for the least money, and this American school children have and have had for years. It is important that this should be recognized alike by the booktrade, by educators and by the public in the general interest of education and in the specific interest of each child who is going to school and is entitled to get its education in the best way from the best books.

CONVENTION OF ESPERANTISTS.

THE first national congress of Esperantists ever assembled in America was held at Chautauqua, N. Y., this week. More than 750 delegates gathered for the sessions, which were called to order on July 20, and closed on July 25.

The American Esperanto Congress in this convention extended an invitation to the European congress, which meets next month, to hold the fifth world Esperanto convention at Chautauqua next year. Organization was so perfected that new impetus will be given to the study of Esperanto throughout the country.

Edmond Privat, president of the Esperanto Institution of Geneva, Switzerland, has spent the year making a tour of America in the interests of Esperanto and organized the conference at Chautauqua. In speaking of the purpose of the convention he said:

"It is our desire to accomplish in this country at least what has been done in European countries in placing Esperanto before the people. Already the Massachusetts Institute of Technology has placed Esperanto on the same basis as French and German and Ohio is teaching it in all the high schools."

Mr. Privat was optimistic for the new language on this side of the water, and asserts that in twenty-five years every merchant will print his catalogues in Esperanto as do many European firms to-day.

Messages of greeting were received from the Alaskan Yukon Pacific Exposition and from Dr. H. W. Yemans, of the Philippines.

WOOD ENGRAVING NOT ART.

THE Board of United States General Appraisers in a decision handed down July 15 ordered Miss Helen Hyde, an American artist, to pay duty on five wood engravings made by her and sent to the division of prints in the Library of Congress. General Appraiser Waite decided that the young woman's work was merely "five blocks of wood, and assessed as manufactures of wood." A. J. Parsons, of the division of prints, said the engravings were works of art and entitled to be admitted free of duty, having been made by an American artist while abroad. Miss Hyde was ordered to pay 35 per cent. duty, and Mr. Parsons filed a formal protest against paying the amount.

To show that the wood engravings made by Miss Hyde had artistic merit Mr. Parsons wrote a sketch of Miss Hyde's career for the general appraisers, but the appraisers were not moved. Miss Hyde, he said, was born in California. She studied under Emil Carlsen in San Francisco for four years. Later she studied under well-known workers in New York, Berlin, Paris and Amsterdam.

CONVENTION OF NATIONAL ASSOCIATION OF STATIONERS.

THE fourth annual convention of the National Association of Stationers and Manufacturers was held this week in the Hotel Somerset, Boston, Mass. The business sessions began on Monday, July 20, and ended on July 23 with a banquet. The Boston Stationers' Association provided entertainment for the members of the convention on the afternoons and evenings of every day of the week, concluding with a visit to Harvard University and an automobile ride through some of the historic suburbs of Boston. There was a large number present, representing almost every State in the Union. A number of interesting reports and papers were presented.

AN ENGLISH "PUBLISHERS' CIRCLE."

As a result of suggestions made at the last annual meeting of the English Publishers' Association, a number of publishers have clubbed together and formed themselves into a "Publishers' Circle." The main object of the club is to meet once a month over luncheon, and to discuss informally topics of mutual interest. The meetings have already been found useful in promoting social intercourse and understanding among members of the profession.

The officers and other members of the Council of the Publishers' Association, not already members of the Circle, were present at the luncheon held on July 2, at De Keyser's Royal Hotel, as guests of the Circle, namely, Edward Bell, C. J. Longman, William Heinemann, John Murray, Reginald J. Smith, K.C., and Edward Arnold. In addition to these, the following members and their friends were present: Arthur Waugh, (chairman;) Arthur Spurgeon, (vice-chairman;) W. L. Courteney, G. Thompson Hutchinson, J. E. Hodder Williams, John Lane, C. C. Darton, M. S. Skeffington, H. E. Skeffington, A. C. Lockwood, Alfred Pitman, Ernest Pitman, C. W. Whitaker, G. H. Whitaker, Cecil Stoughton, Eveleigh Nash, C. E. Gill, B. W. Willet, F. G. Green, A. G. M. Hesilrige, C. Harrison, Charles Lavell, H. S. Milford, and A. D. Power, (hon. sec.)

JAMMED INTO A BOOKCASE.

CHONE JAFFE, of No. 746 Sixth Street, New York City, lay with his arms and legs pinioned by the sides of a heavy bookcase for twelve hours on Saturday, July 18, in the rear of his store at No. 247 Rivington Street, after having been assaulted and jammed into the case by three Italians upon his refusal to unlock a safe in the store. Jaffe is in a critical condition.

Jaffe is an orthodox Jew and for many years has kept a bookstore in Rivington Street, selling nothing except Jewish literature. He left home on the morning of the 18th inst. to go to a synagogue and on the way passed his store. He saw that a gas light, which he leaves burning in the store every night, was burning, so he unlocked the door to turn out the light. Then, he says, he looked around for a Gentile to turn out the gas for him, preferring not to violate the Sabbath by doing the work himself.

An Italian was passing and Jaffe beckoned to him. He told him what he wanted and they entered the store. They were followed closely by two other Italians. The three suddenly pounced upon him and ordered him to open the safe in the store. He refused, he says, and they knocked him down and kicked him as he lay on the floor. Then they threatened to kill him if he did not open the safe. When he refused they shoved him into the bookcase, where his wife found him.

LONG-LIVED AUTHORS.

THE Paris Figaro taking up the question, Are authors long lived? answers it in the affirmative, and mentions in support of its theory the ages of a dozen members of the French Société des Gens de Lettres. Most of these estimable literary gentlemen have long since passed the three-score and ten limit, and if the truth be told their achievements have more or less passed from the ken of contemporary France.

The oldest author in France, according to the Figaro, is M. François Fertinault, who has just turned ninety-five. M. Felix Nadac comes next, having been born in 1820. Jules Breynat and Ernest Faroudier both date from 1821, and Armand Lafrointe and Frederic Passy from 1822. Four more members are aged eighty-four.

BOOK THIEVES AT LARGE.

LOOK OUT FOR STOLEN ALKEN'S DRAWINGS TO THE "LIFE OF A SPORTSMAN."

To the Editor of The Publishers' Weekly.

SIR: We would like to call the attention of the trade, and particularly of the dealers in old books, to the loss of a volume from our establishment of Alken's original drawings to the "Life of a Sportsman," and to offer, through your columns, a reward of $100 for any definite information leading to its recovery.

The volume is bound in dark blue morocco, tooled on back and sides with fox's head and hunting crop crossed, and lettered on the side "Life of a Sportsman, Henry Alken."

The drawings are mounted to quarto size in thick greenish tinted boards, each drawing lined, and with a border of sepia wash.

The drawing for the title-page varies from the published design, and some of the drawings are unpublished.

If such a volume is offered for sale to any one in the trade we trust they will retain it until we can be communicated with by telegram, or otherwise.

CHARLES E. LAURIAT CO.

BOSTON, MASS., July 21, 1908.

A CHECK SWINDLER.

To the Editor of The Publishers' Weekly.

SIR: A tall, gaunt, countrified-looking man, who operates under the aliases "H. Henken" and "J. L. Harris," has been visiting booksellers and librarians recently in Pennsylvania and getting checks cashed for small amounts, which prove to be forgeries or of no account.

His business is picking up scarce items in book shops and private collections, and selling them to librarians or collectors. When through with the deal the victim is asked to cash a small check, which proves to be a forgery or of no account. I know of two librarians being swindled, one check being a forgery of my name. The knave's knowledge of scarce books and familiar reference to collectors, librarians, antiquarians and booksellers the country over is calculated to deceive, and with his artless manner make him a dangerous man. The address he gives is General Delivery, Chicago. W. C. A.

HARRISBURG, PA., July 20, 1908.

COMMUNICATIONS.

A WANDERING JEW.

To the Editor of The Publishers' Weekly.

SIR: A book entitled "The Russian Jew in the United States," planned and edited by Charles S. Bernheimer, Philadelphia, John C. Winston Co., 1905, is now masquerading under the title of "The Immigrant Jew in America," by Edmund J. James, Oscar R. Flynn, J. R. Paulding, etc., New York, B. F. Buck & Co., 1906. There is nothing in the new book to indicate that it is identical with the old one, except the letterpress, which is printed from the same plates, even the names of the writers of the several chapters being suppressed. Although the second book purports upon its title-page to be by Edmund J. James and others, Mr. James's efforts appear to be confined strictly to the preface, while there is no evidence that some, at least, of the others whose names appear on the title-page had anything whatever to do with it. Whatever may be said of the moral quality of publishers who thus impose upon book buyers, it would seem as though college presidents and professors ought to be above it. HENRY M. UTLEY, Librarian.

The Public Library, Detroit, Mich., July 18, 1908.

OBITUARY NOTES.

PROFESSOR LOUIS DYER, formerly a professor of Greek at Oxford, Harvard and Cornell and lecturer at a number of other educational institutions, died July 20 at Oxford, Eng. Professor Dyer was born in Chicago, Ill., September 20, 1851, and was the son of Charles V. Dyer, a pioneer of Chicago. His early education was secured in this country and in France, Germany and Switzerland. He was graduated at Harvard in 1874 and at Balliol College, Oxford, in 1878. Among his publications are "The Greek Question and Answer," "Studies of the Gods in Greece," "Oxford as It Is," "Macchiavelli and the Modern States," and many articles on Hellenic subjects. In 1889 he married Margaret, daughter of Alexander Macmillan, one of the founders of the publishing house of Macmillan & Co.

THE REV. DR. OTTO PFLEIDERER, professor of theology at the University of Berlin, died on July 20 at Grosslichterfelde, Berlin. Dr. Pfleiderer was born in Stettin, January 9, 1830. He was graduated from Tübingen University in 1861. He was engaged in church work at Heilbronn, Jena and in several other cities, and travelled though north Germany, England and Scotland, until 1875, when he was appointed to the position in the Berlin University that he held until his death. He was the author of a number of important works, among which the following appeared in English translations: "Christian Origins" and "Primitive Christianity," both published by B. W. Huebsch; "Primitive Christianity," published by G. P. Putnam's Sons, and "Evolution and Theology," published by the Macmillan Co.

RALPH OLMSTED WILLIAMS died on July 17 at the Grace Hospital, New Haven, Conn. Mr. Williams was born at Palmyra, N. Y., May 12, 1838, and was graduated from Yale College in 1861. On leaving college he enlisted as private in the Seventh Delaware Volunteers, in which he served until 1864. In 1865 he was admitted to the New York Bar. In 1871 he became a member of the firm of Leypoldt, Holt & Williams, which afterwards became Holt & Williams, retiring in August, 1873, when the firm became Henry Holt & Co. After that Mr. Williams devoted himself to literary work, assisting in the compilation of Webster's International and the Standard dictionaries, and contributing to the magazines. From 1891 to 1893 he was instructor in English composition at Yale, and for five years, 1899 to 1905, he was librarian and curator of the New Haven Colony Historical Society. For a time he was also secretary of the Civil Service Commission of New York City. He wrote a work on "Our Dictionaries, and Other English Language Topics," and "Some Questions of Good English Examined in Controversies with Dr. Fitzedward Hall."

NOTES ON AUTHORS.

MRS. MARY BAKER G. EDDY on July 16 celebrated her eighty-seventh birthday.

WITH the express purpose of paying his compliments to his father-in-law, Frank Work, the New York banker and horseman, Auriel Batonyi, according to the New York World, is writing the story of his life. It will be issued in an edition de luxe for private distribution only.

HELEN LEAH REED, whose well-known "Brenda" books for girls have taken a high place in the ranks of juvenile fiction, will augment the list of Little, Brown & Company this fall by a new volume entitled "Irma in Italy." Irma has already been introduced to Miss Reed's readers, and her adventures and experiences abroad are sufficiently novel and exciting to keep the interest constantly stimulated. Miss Reed has been particularly happy in giving the book an Italian atmosphere.

MRS. ROBERT LOUIS STEVENSON has sold the house which she built on Lombard Street hill, San Francisco, Cal., overlooking the Golden Gate, and will remove to Santa Barbara, where she has purchased a country home. The house was filled with South Sea curios, and the library contained Stevenson's books as well as many manuscripts of his stories and novels. It was saved during the great fire by members of the Bohemian Club, old friends of Stevenson, who carried water for the purpose in buckets.

JOURNALISTIC NOTES.

GEORGE HAVEN PUTNAM, of the firm of G. P. Putnam's Sons, contributes an article on "Sidelights on [Washington] Irving's Oklahoma Visit" to The Sturm magazine, published in Oklahoma City. Mr. Putnam gives an interesting account of the relations of his father, George Palmer Putnam, with Irving after his return, in 1848, to this country, when Mr. Putnam undertook a new edition of the works Irving's Philadelphia publishers had abandoned and the publication of his later works.

The Overland Monthly this month celebrates its fortieth anniversary, having been founded in July, 1868, by Anton Roman, the San Francisco publisher and bookseller, and Francis Bret Harte, who was the first editor, assisted by Noah Brooks, then editor of the Alta Californian, and W. C. Bartlett, editor of the Bulletin. These were ably assisted by Charles Warren Stoddard and Miss Ina Donna Coolbrith. A very interesting sketch of the founding of the magazine, by George Wharton James, author of "The Wonders of the Colorado Desert," etc., is printed in the current issue of The Overland Monthly.

BIBLIOGRAPHIC NOTES.

THE WISCONSIN FREE LIBRARY COMMISSION in October, 1907, began and continues to issue from time to time a series of study outlines for the use of clubs and reading associations. The outlines, each presenting a specific subject, are prepared to cover a year's course of study, though the period of time readily admits of extension. A brief synopsis of the subject under consideration is given in each outline with a list of books from which references are made, giving publishers and prices. The study outlines run as follows: 1, Japan; 2, Russia; 3, Canada; 4, England and Wales; 5, Travel in Scotland and Ireland; 6, French history; 7, Modern Italy-History; four studies of Shakespeare by Mrs. H. A. Davidson, numbered as follows: 8, "King John;" 9, "King Richard II.;" 10, "King Henry Fourth," part I.-II.; 11, "King Henry Fifth." Outlines for various epochs of United States History, under date of April, 1908, are as follows: 12, Discovery and explanation; 13,

Colonial period; 14, The Revolution; 15, Formation period, 1783-1817; 16, Expansion period, 1817-1860; 17, Civil war and reconstruction; 18, From Reconstruction to date, 1876-. The four latest outlines of the series are covered by: 19, Travel in the United States; 20, French art; 21, American literature; 22, English literature, Early Victorian period.

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

HARPER & BROTHERS have just ready a romance of love and the busy American life of to-day, entitled "The Land of the Living," by Maude Radford Warren. The romance is born in an old castle in Ireland, but the story begins and ends in Chicago.

FUNK & WAGNALLS COMPANY have in press a novel entitled "The Palace of Danger," by Mabel Wagnalls, which pictures life in the court of Louis XV., its leading character being Madame de Pompadour. George Ward Dunsmore has furnished four illustrations for the book.

MITCHELL KENNERLEY has just brought out a novel by Hubert Wales, entitled "The Old Allegiance," which has to do with the present time, and describes a secret society of Jacobites who meet on one of the islands off the coast of Scotland and vow allegiance to the lineal descendant of the "King Over the Water."

J. H. GOODMAN, general manager and buyer for The Antlers Bookshop in New Orleans, La., is planning to convert the old St. Louis Hotel into a modern auditorium. Mr. Goodman's plan is to have stores on the first floor, while the remainder of the building will be used for an auditorium, with boxes and galleries like a theatre.

THE C. M. CLARK COMPANY, Boston, announce a novel entitled "The King's Mark," by Miss Ella Matthews Bangs, the scene of which is Harrow House, a colonial home on the banks of the Stroudwater. This is said to be the only house in Maine with a name of its own antedating the Revolution, and Miss Bangs describes it as very stately, and inhabited by very elegant squires and dames.

D. APPLETON & CO. have in preparation a volume entitled "Across Europe in a Motor Boat," the narrative of a trip taken by the author, Henry C. Howland, and two friends, who had a motor boat constructed in London for a 7000-mile inland voyage which should circle Europe by way of the Seine, the Rhine, the Danube and the Black Sea. Some fifty sketches are sprinkled through the text.

A RE-ISSUE of Bishop Darlington's well-known "Church Hymnal," with music, has been put upon the market by Thomas Whittaker, Inc. This hymnal is specially adapted to the use of small parishes, and wherever else congregational music is sought to be encouraged. Its cheapness of cost and many other admirable features put it within the easy reach of all, and renders it specially available for the worship of the church.

THE EXCELSIOR PUBLISHING HOUSE, (McKeon & Schofield,) 110 W. Twenty-sixth Street, New York City, call attention to their series of literal translations of Latin and Greek classics, which now includes Cæsar's Gallic War, (eight books;) Cicero's Select Orations, Homer's Iliad, (twelve books;) Horace, complete; Virgil's Æneid, (six books;) and Xenophon's Anabasis, (seven books.) Other volumes are in preparation.

MOFFAT, YARD & Co. have in preparation a book of reminiscences by William Winter, the eminent dramatic critic, entitled "Other Days: being Chronicles and Memories of the Stage." This book will contain numerous photographs, and will contain special chapters devoted to the author's recollections of Joseph Jefferson, Boucicault, Brougham, E. A. Sothern, Mary Anderson, John McCullough, Charlotte Cushman, Lawrence Barrett, and Adelaide Neilson.

JAMES POTT & Co. will publish in the fall "The City of Genoa," by Robert W. Carden, in which a historical survey of Genoa is given from the pre-Roman days to the Revolution of 1797, with many illustrations, of which twelve are in color, by William Parkinson; "Hyde Park: its History and Romance," by Mrs. Alec Tweedie, author of "Sunny Sicily," etc., with numerous illustrations from contemporary engravings and pictures in photogravure and half-tone; also, "Old England," with over 100 illustrations in color and halftone by Orrack, the English landscape painter.

LONGMANS, GREEN & Co. have just brought out "The Horace Mann Primer," in their Horace Mann Readers, a new series of basal readers, prepared by Dr. Walter L. Hervey, member of the Board of Examiners of New York City, and Melvin Hix, principal of one of the Long Island City schools. The series is developed upon strictly pedagogical lines with the controlling idea that the material presented should be worth reading from the literary as well as from the ethical point of view, and that it should be in the truest sense interesting and adapted to the capacities and needs of children.

J. B. LIPPINCOTT COMPANY have just brought out a volume entitled "The Perfect Garden—How to Keep it Beautiful and Fruitful," by Walter P. Wright, editor of Cassell's "Dictionary of Practical Gardening," etc. The volume contains six full-page illustrations in color from specially drawn water-colors, 25 full-page pictures in black and white, and 19 plans of gardens of all kinds. They have also just issued "The Study of Nature," by Samuel P. Schmucker, the seventh volume in Lippincott's Educational Series, a most timely book for teachers, as the "Nature-Study" movement has taken such a hold of the country. It contains four full-page plates in color and 57 line illustrations—all contributions of the wife of the author.

L. KNIGHT, 16 Cortlandt Street, New York City, is handling in this country Howell & Co.'s Edinburgh edition of the greater works of Edward Bulwer, Lord Lytton. The edition is in twelve volumes, and includes the "Last Days of Pompeii," "Last of the Barons," in two volumes; "Harold," "Ernest Maltravers," "Alice," "Rienzi," "Leila, Calderon and Pausanias," "Devereux," "Pelham," "Paul Clifford" and "Eugene Aram." The special features of this edition are 72 illustrations in photogravure reproduced from original drawings by E. F. Sherie, a superfine antique laid paper and clear type. The volumes are attractively bound in cloth, with full gilt back in library style and in three-quarters Persian calf, with raised bands and gilt tops.

HOUGHTON-MIFFLIN Co. announce the following books of interest to the educator: "University Administration," by Charles W. Eliot, the Norman W. Harris lectures for 1908, delivered by the president of Harvard at Northwestern University, Chicago; "The Ideal Teacher," by George H. Palmer, helpful essays on education by one of the leading professors of Harvard University; also, "The Beginnings of Industrial Education," by Professor Paul H. Hanus, an authority in this field who gives in a practical way the results of his recent investigations and experience. They have just brought out Hinchman and Gummere's "Lives of Great English Writers," for use in high schools, and Foster's "Argumentation and Debating," for use in high schools and colleges.

THE success of Bliss Carman's new volume of essays, "The Making of Personality," has stimulated the interest in his earlier prose works, and his publishers, L. C. Page & Company, have just gone to press with new editions of "The Kinship of Nature," "The Friendship of Art" and "The Poetry of Life." Messrs Page & Company will publish this month two new volumes in their Little Cousin Series, namely, "Our Little Egyptian Cousin," by Blanche McManus, and "Our Little Grecian Cousin," by Mary F. Nixon-Roulet. This series has proven a boon to children's librarians, especially in the cities which contain large foreign population, where the children continue to demand books which will give them some information about their cousins in other lands.

THE OUTING PUBLISHING COMPANY have in preparation "The History of the New York Nautical School," compiled and written by Captain B. S. Osbon, "The Sailor of Fortune." This book will contain the reports of each of the school's superintendents, given year by year, covering in all thirty-four years, besides reports of the Chamber of Commerce and special committees that have attended the graduating exercises. A list of nearly 1000 graduates from the schoolship St. Mary's and the autobiographies of a long list of graduates from the St. Mary's is also given. The book will be illustrated with halftones from photographs made by the boys themselves during their cruises, and covers the entire period of the service of the old sloop-of-war St. Mary's up to the time she ended her career as a schoolship.

HENRY HOLT & Co. announce a book on "The Freshwater Aquarium and its Inhabitants," by Otto Eggeling and Frederick Ehrenberg, both of New York City, who probably know as much as any other two men living about their subject. In addition to this, it is interesting to note that Mr. Eggeling has probably sold more aquariums than any other man in the United States. The text of the book has been commended to the publishers by a high authority on nature study, and the one hundred illustrations are almost entirely from photographs of the living inhabitants of an aquarium. They will also publish shortly an entirely new edition from new plates of Schiller's "Der Neffe als Onkel," an old favorite with teachers of German. The editor of this new edition is Professor F. B. Sturm, of the University of Iowa. The introduction, notes and vocabulary furnish all the aid that the student can legitimately demand.

STANLEY PAUL, known to the American booktrade through his connection with Hutchinson & Co., has begun business as exporter and commission agent on his own account in London. Mr. Paul began his business career with Eyre & Spottiswoode, with whom he gained a knowledge of the printing and binding trades. After some further experience in the stationery and blank book manufacturing lines he entered the publishing business. Having gained a general insight into publishing methods with Methuen & Co., Mr. Paul transferred his services to Hutchinson & Co., with whom, during the last fourteen years, he has gained a comprehensive and practical knowledge of every department. Mr. Paul has made a wide circle of friends at home and abroad. He has represented Hutchinson & Co. in Australasia and South Africa, and has made several special journeys for them to the United States and Canada. We join his colleagues in wishing him a long and prosperous career.

THE BOBBS-MERRILL COMPANY will publish at once "On the Spanish Main: a Story of Brave Adventures With Drake," by Herbert Strang, who seems likely to prove the Elisha to the late Mr. Henty's Elijah. Professor Oman, of Oxford vouches for his historical accuracy and Field Marshal Lord Wolseley for his knowledge of the art of war. "On the Spanish Main" is a New World story, the scenes being laid on islands in the Caribbean nearly three hundred and fifty years ago. They announce the publication of "Animal Life of Malaysia," by J. Frank Daniel, of the Department of Zoology, Johns Hopkins University, a complete descriptive zoology for the Philippines, Java, Sumatra, etc., embodying in simple form the latest scientific knowledge. They are making a specialty of books on our Asiatic possession, as witness also its publication of "A History of the Philippines," by Dr. David P. Barrows, Director of Public Instruction in the islands. They also announce a trade edition of the poems of Madison Cawein, in five volumes. Volume I. contains "Lyrics and Old World Idylls;" volume II., "Lyrics and New World Idylls;" volume III., "Nature Poems;" volume IV., "Poems of Mystery;" volume V., "Poems of Meditation." Edmund Gosse supplies the introduction. The edition is illustrated with photogravures after paintings by Eric Pape. In October they will bring out a new novel by H. C. Bailey called "Colonel Greatheart." This story is a romance dating back to the time of Charles I. and Cromwell. It is not historical in the sense that it does not portray the conflict between the Cavaliers and Roundheads, but its delineation of character and customs of that period is intended to be accurate. It is described as being especially rich in witty repartee, and aims to be at once a dramatic and romantic development of a typical story of the Cromwellian epoch. The book will be illustrated by Lester Ralph.

H. M. CALDWELL CO. are preparing for the fall a work on "Benares, the Sacred City," by E. B. Havell, Associate of the Royal Cambrian Academy, and Principal of the Government School of Art at Calcutta. This volume is composed of sketches of that Hindu life and religion of which most of us know just enough to confuse it hopelessly with the Mohammedan life and creed and rather less than might be gleaned from Mr. Kipling. The illustrations include some views of last year's discoveries at Sarnath and a great number showing the daily movement of the busy, crowded, native life. For children they will have this season American editions of Miss Evelyn Sharp's "The Story of the Weathercock" and "The Child's Christmas," both illustrated in color and in black and white by Charles Robinson. In the first the weathercock tells of children whom he has observed; in the second all the doings of Christmas in town and country are described as they appear to the child. By special arrangement with the English publishers they will issue in September "The Century Shakespeare," complete in forty volumes, an authoritative and dainty edition with an exhaustive introduction to each volume by the "doyen of Shakespeare scholars," Dr. F. J. Furnivall. Each volume will include a full and comprehensive glossary and a complete series of notes. An important feature of "The Century Shakespeare" will be an account of Shakespeare's life and work by Dr. Furnivall and John Munro, based upon the results of the latest researches. The books are dainty in appearance and size, measuring only 4½ x 6½ inches, and being printed from specially selected type, borders and letterings and elaborated title-page printed in two colors, and with decorative end papers. A charming feature of the edition is the photogravure frontispiece to each volume, reproduced from the original paintings of Frank Dicksee, Sir John Millais, R. Westall, George Romney, Sir John Gilbert and others. Two styles of binding have been adopted. Red cloth with decorative lettering in gilt on back, published at 35 cents the volume, and full red lambskin, embellished with gold decoration, gilt top and silk bookmark, at 65 cents the volume.

BUSINESS NOTES.

BOSTON, MASS.—Thompson, Brown & Co., publishers of school books, have moved from 76 Summer Street to 120 Boylston Street.

PORTLAND, ME.—It is reported that Bailey & Noyes have made an assignment for the benefit of their creditors.

ROSEBURG, ORE.—Claud Cannon, bookseller, has sold out to Agee & Ragsdale.

TERMS OF ADVERTISING.

Under the heading "Books Wanted" book-trade subscribers are given the privilege of a free advertisement for books out of print of five nonpareil lines, exclusive of address, in any issue except special numbers, to an extent not exceeding 100 lines a year. If more than five lines are sent, the excess is at 10 cents a line, and amount should be enclosed. Bids for current books and such as may be easily had from the publishers, and repeated matter, as well as all advertisements from non-subscribers, must be paid for at the rate of 25 cents a line.

Under the heading "Books for Sale," the charge to subscribers and non-subscribers is 10 cents a nonpareil line for each insertion. No deduction for repeated matter.

All other small undisplayed advertisements will be charged at the uniform rate of 10 cents a nonpareil line. Eight words may be reckoned to the line.

Parties with whom we have no account must pay in advance, otherwise no notice will be taken of their Communications.

BOOKS WANTED.

☞In answering, please state edition, condition, and price, including postage or express charges.

Houses that are willing to deal exclusively on a cash-on-delivery basis will find it to their advantage to put after their firm-name the word [Cash.]

☞Write your wants plainly, and on one side of the sheet only. Illegibly-written "wants" will be considered as not having been received. The "Publishers' Weekly" does not hold itself responsible for errors.

It should be understood that the appearance of advertisements in this column, or elsewhere in the "Publishers' Weekly," does not furnish a guarantee of credit. While it is endeavored to safeguard these columns by withdrawing the privilege of their use from advertisers who are not "good pay," booksellers should take the usual precautions, as to advertisers not known to them, that they would take in making sales to any unknown parties.

TEXT-BOOKS OF UNUSUAL MERIT

LIPPINCOTT'S
Mental, Elementary and Practical ARITHMETICS

In the preparation of Lippincott's Arithmetics, the author has kept constantly in view the fundamental principles of sound teaching. The aim is to prepare students for practical life by the development of thought-power, while making them masters of the mechanical processes.

LIPPINCOTT'S
First, Second and Third Books of PHYSIOLOGY

These books are pure Physiology. The language is easily understood and is marked by the avoidance of technical and stilted expressions. The treatment of alcohol and narcotics is strong, logical and sensible, and the physical side of the subject is given the prominence it deserves.

MORRIS'S
Primary, Elementary and Advanced HISTORIES

Prof. Morris's language is clear, concise, forcible, and adapted to the capabilities of the pupils for whom the books were written. The style is calm, truthful, and free from all partisan or sectional prejudice.

POWERS'S
GRADED SPELLERS
Complete and in two parts

This work represents the best of the old and the new methods, and is intended to meet modern requirements. It is not based on any fad, but upon good results obtained by actual experience.

CULLERS' FIRST BOOK IN PHYSICS

A simple, practical text-book adapted to the needs and the comprehension of the pupils of the grammar grades. Numerous interesting experiments are given.

CULLERS' TEXT-BOOK OF PHYSICS

Written especially to meet the needs of pupils in High Schools and Academies. The volume is fully up to date, and is the outgrowth of the author's long and successful experience in teaching the subject.

EXCLUSIVELY ADOPTED BY THE NEW YORK BOARD OF EDUCATION

"THERE is always room at the top," is the old and true adage. But in the ladder that leads to attainment the perspective is reversed and the rungs become further apart as the top is reached. The poorly equipped will reach no higher than the level of their attainments, and so it is with shorthand writers and shorthand systems. The writer who chooses a poor system is far from the winner when the race is over.

A Delightful Work of Humor

The Wooing of Calvin Parks

By LAURA E. RICHARDS

Author of "Captain January," "Geoffrey Strong," "Mrs. Tree's Will," etc., etc.

In this story, the creator of "Geoffrey Strong" and "Mrs. Tree" reverts to one of the happiest of her many phases of activity, and portrays with delightful reality the queer, quaint, odd, and lovable characters of her own "Down East" neighborhood. With loving touch and without the suspicion of exaggeration or unkindly caricature, she acquaints us with the homely virtues, droll conceits, and pithy saws of the fast vanishing New England types. It is a book with a laugh on every page, a surprise in every chapter, and not a tear from beginning to end.

Everybody likes to read a good Detective Story is one of the most ingenious and original Detective stories ever written.

IT IS OF THE BEST OF ITS KIND

Two large Editions have been printed
A Third large Edition is in the press

This is what the New York Evening Post says of it:

"For sheer originality and ingenuity we reckon this the best detective story published for some time. . . . as original as it is fascinating. Not often does a detective story end with so total a surprise, which, nevertheless, when known, seems logical and natural. The writing of the book is above the average."

NOTES IN SEASON.

WILLIAM ABBATT, 141 East Twenty-fifth Street, New York City, desires the trade to know that the new edition of Sir George Cheney's "The Dilemma, a Tale of the Mutiny," noticed in our issue for July 18, is actually on the market and that he is ready to supply orders for it from the trade.

J. B. LIPPINCOTT COMPANY have just ready a volume of interest to the general medical profession, entitled "Pain," by Dr. Rudolph Schmidt, of Vienna, translated from the German. The author gives an accurate and thorough analysis of the various painful sensations that occur in internal diseases, their mode of causation and correct interpretation.

D. APPLETON & Co. have just ready a new story by Robert W. Chambers, entitled "The Firing Line." The scene of the story is laid in Palm Beach, Florida, where the rich, the adventurous, the great and the weak of American society congregate to play and gamble, and to live and love from day to day. It has eight full-page illustrations by Will Foster. The advance orders called for an edition of 100,000 copies.

DODD, MEAD & Co. will bring out next month a new novel by Katherine Cecil Thurston, entitled "The Fly on the Wheel," which has attracted wide attention while appearing serially in The Bookman. The publishers are convinced that this story will be one of the most popular novels of the season, and elsewhere call the attention of the trade to a proposition that will help both publisher and bookseller in pushing the book.

L. C. PAGE & COMPANY publish to-day a book which will be welcomed by that large class of boys who have some favorite hero among the world's great warriors, entitled "Famous Cavalry Leaders," by Charles H. L. Johnston. The book contains biographical sketches with interesting anecdotes and reminiscences of the heroes of history who were leaders of cavalry. From the time of Attila, the Hun, and of Genghis Khan the Tartar chieftain, down through the days of the Chevalier Bayard, Gustavus Adolphus, Prince Rupert, Marshal Ney and Murat, to the exploits of our own generals, Stuart, Wheeler, Custer and Sheridan, many thrilling stories are uncovered to the eager eyes of the boy reader. The book is illustrated with reproductions from photographs carefully selected by the author.

E. P. DUTTON & Co. will bring out on August 4 an important work entitled "The North-West Passage: being the Record of a Voyage of Exploration of the Ship 'Gjoa,' 1903-1907," by Roald Amundsen, with a supplement by First Lieutenant Godfrey Hansen, vice-commander of the expedition. The work is in two volumes, supplied with maps and illustrations. On the 15th inst. they will publish a delightful book for young people, entitled "Top o' the World," by Mark E. Swan, with illustrations in color, and in black-and-white, by Hy. Mayer. This story relates the adventures of a little girl who makes a trip to fairyland via an air ship, and eventually discovers the North Pole and its strange inhabitants. The story is a delightful combination of fanciful adventure with appreciation of the child's point of view. Altogether "Top o' the World" promises to be one of the most delightful of the holiday publications.

A large part of this work is an autobiography presenting a vivid picture of the life, in New York, of a wealthy young aristocrat of eighty years ago. Another feature is General de Peyster's bold and trenchant criticisms of public men, our generals, and the battles of the Civil War. Ten chapters are devoted to ancestry. Careful studies cover the history, for centuries, of the old New York families of de Peyster, Watt, de Lancey, Colden, Van Cortlandt, Lockermans, Livingston, MacPheadris, French, Philipse, Beekman, Nicoll, Van Rensselaer, Schuyler, and Van Slichtenhorst.

A tale of adventure, in which the chief interest settles round Capt. Samuel Tucker, the hero of the American revolution, who took more prizes, fought more sea fights, gained more victories than, with very few exceptions, any naval hero of the age. The story is told by a young American, who goes to Spain in search of Capt. Tucker and finally comes upon him in an English prison. The two escape together and go through countless adventures during the years of the Revolutionary struggle.

Miss Du Bois is well known for her literary work dealing with Southern California. Of recent years she has earned distinction for her account of the myths and ceremonies of Diegueno Mission Indians of this region. In the summer of 1906 she spent some weeks in San Diego county in field studies with the Luiseño Indians. Both the Luiseño and the Diegueño tribes were originally attached to the Franciscan missions of California. While distinct races, they share in common the majority of their customs, arts and beliefs. Miss Du Bois gives much information gathered at recent visits and acquired at previous visits to the Mission Indians.

Edward Singleton, a man of education and force, is sent out to Kentucky to look after large land interests. In the house in which he boards lives an attractive but uneducated country girl, Nancy Jane, in whom he takes a kindly interest. He tries to advance her intellectually and finally advises her father to send her to a school in Nashville. Her sweetheart, a Kentucky boy, is at first indignant at Singleton's "interference," but finally comes to realize his unselfish motives and asks for help in his own studies. The renewal of an old romance between Singleton's mother and a Kentucky major is also introduced, and ends happily, while Singleton himself finally marries a beautiful Southern girl, whom Nancy Jane brings home from Nashville.

The life of the Princess Marie Thérèse-Charlotte, daughter of Louis XVI., beginning with the time of her imprisonment in the Temple. The account is drawn from lettters and documents of the period, and the personal diary of the princess. After days of suspense and terror, during which her brother, the Dauphin, died, she was removed to Hüningen, and thence to Austria, where she lived in exile for three and a half years. Then, for some reason, she was permitted to go to her uncle, Louis XVIII., and was wedded to her cousin, Duc d'Angoulême, but the dark tragedies from which she had so miraculously escaped "were doomed to weigh upon her like the memory of a ghastly dream all the days of her life."

Sands, Beatrice. Weepers in playtime. N. Y., John Lane Co., (The Bodley Head,) 1908. c. 10+265 p. D. cl., †$1.50.

The title is drawn from Elizabeth B. Browning's
"But the young, young children, O, my brothers,
They are weeping bitterly;
They are weeping in the playtime of the others
In the country of the free."

The book is a plea for the betterment of the life of the inmates of our so-called "Homes" for homeless children. The heroine, Eleanor, while on her wedding tour in Italy, makes the dreadful discovery that her husband is already married. She returns to New York to the home of her mother, Mrs. Schuyler, where her baby is born. Mrs. Schuyler has the child sent away to an institution, telling Eleanor it is dead. In her great sorrow Eleanor tries to find comfort by bringing happiness into the lives of the children in a Home, and there she befriends her own baby, whom she does not know. In spite of great opposition she works many needed changes in the management of various homes and institutions, where the children have always been treated impersonally and unsympathetically. Mrs. Schuyler, thinking her own death is near, confesses to Eleanor, who discovers her own daughter in the child she befriended.

Schumacher, Tony. The tower angel; tr. from the German by Mary E. Ireland; il. by H: L. Miller. Akron, O., Saalfield Publishing Co., [1908.] c. 7-197 p. D. cl., $1.

The story of a beautiful German girl, daughter of a tower watchman. As a child she shows occasional symptoms of vanity which her parents try to cure, and usually with good success. Some ambitious English people repeatedly invite her to visit them hoping to attract attention to themselves by the great beauty of their protegée, and when she is fifteen years old she is allowed to stay with them in Italy. At first all is delightful, but when the Tower Angel, as the child is called, falls ill and loses her beauty, her patrons lose interest in her. She is glad at last to return to her own true friends.

William Updick is "a born leader of men, of little schooling, but of considerable knowledge of the picked up sort"—a man of warm impulses, quick sympathy, helpful disposition. He lives in the midst of a population suffering under unbearable industrial and social conditions. When things reach a crisis, Updick comes to the front and induces a strike, which is eventually successful and leads to infinitely improved conditions. His philosophy, in his own words, on domestic as well as industrial subjects, fills a large part of the book.

Translator is a Professor of Trinity College, Cambridge. The Lives of S. Francis is not like a modern biography. The primary object of Celano was to edify the Brethren by an account of the teaching of S. Francis, his sayings, and certain incidents in his life, without regard to chronology, but as a memorial of his Christian life and character. The present translation is based on the most recent edition of the original, (Fr. E. d'Alençon, 1906.)

The writer has discovered in "Individual work for individuals," by his father, Henry Clay Trumbull, a book exceedingly helpful to the teacher of classes for religious study. The present volume is drawn largely from that work, but arranged so the principles are classified and illustrated clearly, and form a practical guide to the teacher.

Turner, Ethel, [Mrs. H. R. Curlewis.] The wonder-child: an Australian story; with il. by Gordon Browne. Akron, O., Saalfield Publishing Co., [1908.] 6+320 p. D. cl., $1.50.

When Mrs. Cameron went from Australia to England with her little daughter Challis, who was gaining a reputation as a musical genius, her husband, a well meaning but absolutely unpractical man, was left in charge of the other children. Things were soon in a bad condition; Mr. Cameron lost his situation and the family lived in poverty, but no word was sent to Mrs. Cameron and Challis of the state of affairs. When they return, eight years later, they find a changed household, but Challis, who is now famous and wealthy, is able to bring comfort to the family. The love affair of the eldest daughter, Hermie, and the final removal of the family to England finish the book.

Young, F. E. Mills. A mistaken marriage. N. Y., John Lane Co., (The Bodley Head,) 1908. 379 p. D. cl., †$1.50.
On the first night of her arrival in South Africa Sara Lovall falls into casual conversation with an Englishman, Michael Strange, who is wonderfully attracted by her personality and unusual beauty. The next morning he discovers that she has come from England to marry her fiancé, Arthur Morrison, whom she has not seen for five years. The marriage proves most unhappy. Morrison is brutal and unprincipled, and is deeply infatuated with the dashing Mrs. Davidson. On a visit to Mrs. Davidson Sara discovers that her husband is the father of Mrs. Davidson's child, and at once leaves with her own little girl. They are obliged to take refuge from a severe storm in a house noted for hospitality. Its owner is absent, and the only inhabitant except for the servants is Michael Strange. Her child's illness obliges Sara to remain for several days, and though the child dies and Sara is heartbroken, her husband heartlessly uses this as a pretext for obtaining a divorce. Though Strange is still deeply in love with her, Sara refuses to marry during her former husband's lifetime, but before long she hears of his death and all ends well.

OBITUARY NOTES.

THE REV. DR. EDWARD THOMAS BROMFIELD, at one time literary editor of The North American Review, and author of "A Biographical Sketch and Synopsis of the Plays of Shakespeare," died on July 27 at Flatbush, N. Y. Dr. Bromfield was born in Coventry, Eng., August 31, 1833. For a period of ten years he was one of the secretaries of the Presbyterian Board of Publication and Sabbath School Work, with headquarters in Philadelphia.

MRS. FRANCES SARAH HOEY, the wife of John Cashel Hoey, died in London, July 16. Mrs. Hoey was born on February 15, 1830, at Bushby Park, Rathfarnham County, Dublin. Among her best-known books are "A House of Cards," "Griffith's Double" and "A Stern Chase." Mrs. Hoey also did some capable translating from the French and Italian, foremost among which is "The Memoirs of Madame de Rénusat." From the foundation of the London World, in 1874, until within a few weeks of her death, she was a regular contributor to the literary columns of that journal.

WILLIAM LEWIS MONTAGUE, for many years professor of Latin and modern languages in Amherst College, died on July 27 in Amherst, Mass. Professor Montague was born in Belchertown, Mass., April 6, 1831, and for the greater part of his life was connected with Amherst College. He was the author of a "Comparative Spanish Grammar," a "Manual of Italian Grammar" and an "Introduction to Italian Literature," and the editor of the "Biographical Record of the Alumni and Non-Graduate Members of Amherst College," "History and Genealogy of the Montague Family in America," "Modern Italian Readings," "La Fille de Roland" and "Half Century Record of the Class of '55, Amherst College."

The Publishers' Weekly.

FOUNDED BY F. LEYPOLDT.

AUGUST 1, 1908.

The editor does not hold himself responsible for the views expressed in contributed articles or communications.

All matter for advertising pages should reach this office not later than Wednesday noon, to insure insertion in the same week's issue.

Publishers are requested to furnish title-page proofs and advance information of books forthcoming, both for entry in the lists and for descriptive mention. An early copy of each book published should be forwarded, as it is of the utmost importance that the entries of books be made as promptly and as perfectly as possible. In many cases booksellers and librarians depend on the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY solely for their information. The Record of New Publications of the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY is the material of the "American Catalog," and so forms the basis of trade bibliography in the United States.

"I hold every man a debtor to his profession, from the which, as men do of course seek to receive countenance and profit, so ought they of duty to endeavor themselves by way of amends to be a help and an ornament thereunto."—LORD BACON.

THE INSOLENT PUBLISHER.

THE London Academy, in its issue of July 4, under the title of "The Insolent Publisher," administers what it considers "a well-deserved snub" to the publishing trade. The author of that article begins his lecture by writing the publisher down as a "huckster in intellect," who, when "once a bookseller," and when "he had to deal with authors who were properly bred, sang a trifle small, and "was their [the authors'] mere servant and lackey;" but who, since "he has developed into the publisher, and the publisher into the gentleman," has developed into a "waddling mass of insolence." In fact, the publisher, according to this gentle and courteous critic, "has been treating the public to insolence any time these twenty years past." One of the publisher's "chief pieces of insolence," for example, is that he "professes to understand the public through and through," etc., etc. For other choice examples of the publisher's "insolence" we must refer our readers to the extract reprinted from the Academy's article elsewhere.

The writer of the article quoted, it must strike even the most careless reader, proves to his own satisfaction and that of his employer not that the publishers are "insolent," but rather that they are imbecile; that, instead of being in need of a "snub" by ill-informed and ill-natured scribblers, the average publisher, forsooth, should be confined in a padded cell of some lunatic asylum until his reason returns! The very idea of permitting such men as the Murrays, the Macmillans, the Longmans, Heinemann. Brockhaus, Hachette, the Scribners, and their many colleagues in Europe and in this country, to roam at large and to make ducks and drakes of their substance in their "insolent" efforts to make both ends meet, and incidentally to debase the literary tastes of the long-suffering public, whom the publisher "believes in his heart" to be so many "hogs," is preposterous, to say the least. The attention of the lunacy boards and the sanitary departments in the different countries should at once be called to this condition of affairs, because, according to The Academy's statement it must be "rank and smell to heaven!"

The readiness of the veriest tyros to sit in judgment on the booktrade is sometimes sadly amusing. Excepting the government, there is probably no institution that is so much "commandeered," damned, excoriated and condemned as the booktrade. From the time when the upstart Bonaparte was applauded by a few befuddled English poetasters for having shot a bookseller there has always been any number of those who were ready to lend a hand in pushing the publisher off the earth. The publisher doesn't amount to anything anyhow. He is a mere go-between, battening on the brains of the poor helpless author and the still more helpless public. He produces books, so his critics will have it, at from twelve to twenty cents the copy; he pays the author from ten to twenty per cent. on each copy and he receives at least eighty cents the copy from the bookseller and pockets the difference as profit. These are the figures glibly quoted nowadays. The London Times was so certain of these facts that it branded Mr. Murray as a Judas, and paid a fine of $37,500 to purge itself of the lie.

The failing of most of those who judge the booktrade is that they base their criticism on the surface of things or speak out of the fulness of their entire ignorance of the matters they criticise. If such persons were to attempt to air their ill-informed platitudes concerning other trades they would never get a hearing in the journals representing those interests. It is therefore surprising that the very journals that depend for their living upon the existence of the booktrade, and who ought to know better, are always ready to open their columns to the defamation and libelling of its clients and supporters.

As every one who has ever had the slightest experience in the publishing business knows there is no calling that requires so much knowledge and application, and can look forward with so little certainty to an assured income, as the miscellaneous book business; and the higher the publisher's aims the more this holds good. Those who regard the publisher simply as the agent of the author who presents his manuscript know nothing whatever of the function of the actual publisher who must devise and invent new lines, develop new authors, invent new forms of marketing his books and discover, so to speak, new publics for his wares. As to books he must be editor as well as publisher in both the inventing and revising functions of the editorial chair. This applies even to fiction, as is proved by some of the most notable successes in this field which have been partly the work of the publisher; indeed, more than one successful writer of fiction of recent years has been indebted to his publisher for suggestion, pruning or revision—even re-casting of the whole—which brought about success where otherwise failure would probably have ensued.

To figure the first cost of manufacture—the typesetting, the making of plates, the presswork, the paper and binding—to add the author's royalty and, deducting these amounts, to call the publisher's entire receipts after disposing of the book to the trade, his net profit, is as simple as it is absurd. To such first cost of manufacture and author's royalty must be added such additional items of expense, for example, as the cost of editorial services of the readers of manuscripts for revising purposes and for preparation for the printer; the cost of illustrations and of designs for book covers; the services of travellers; travellers' dummies; direct and indirect advertising; the cost of handling, shipping and storing—all chargeable direct to each book. Still other items to be added are the extra discount to jobbers and buyers of large quantities; the losses on the unsuccessful books, the bad debts, etc., all unavoidable, no matter how careful and clever the publisher; and, finally, the legitimate, necessary quota of the general expense, not including advances to authors on work that may never materialize or that is of no use when completed at the publisher's expense. If all this cost is carefully figured and the sum deducted from the publisher's receipts, the actual profits, even on successful books, will prove to be considerably smaller than is usually assumed by those who rush into print or declaim ore rotundo about matters of which they know but half the truth.

As a matter of fact, the shoe is on the other foot, and those who care to study the subject carefully and impartially will find that it is the critic of the booktrade who is insolent rather than the publisher, who, as a rule, is too reticent in defending himself, often to his own disadvantage.

In pleasing contrast to the Academy's absurd comments we print elsewhere the New York Evening Post's remarks on "The Peril of the Bookstore," inspired by the statement issued by the American Publishers' Association printed in our issue of July 18.

THE PERIL OF THE BOOKSTORE.

THE New York Evening Post in its issue for July 21, referring to the statement issued by the American Publishers' Association, signed by Frank H. Dodd, the president of the Association, reprinted in our issue for July 18, takes up the sentence "but if the business had no higher ideals than [to publish nothing but light fiction] many of those who have given their lives [to the publishing business] would be engaged in other and more remunerative callings," and comments upon it as follows:

"The phrase 'higher ideals' implies that in the production and sale of books, as of other works of art, other considerations than the purely commercial must enter. Books are not to be viewed as a mere commodity, like pork and wheat, to which no sentiment attaches. The author, the publisher, the retailer, and the buyer must each in the long run get a fair return for their outlay of brains, of capital and business skill, and of money, but that fair return is not to be reckoned wholly in terms of dollars and cents. There is a margin, often small but none the less real, to be charged to other accounts.

"In the case of the author the fact is clearly enough recognized. The writer who will go on turning out pot-boilers at the most rapid pace, who will sacrifice the quality of his work to quantity simply for the sake of money, is everywhere condemned. He is an artist who prostitutes his art to sordid ends. This common feeling—and it is at bottom just—explains the outcry when Trollope's 'Autobiography' was published. To the casual reader Trollope appeared to be turning out fiction by the yard, just as a cotton-mill turns out sheeting. Trollope's emphasis on his method of composition certainly lent color to the notion that his chief concern was to fill as many pages as possible and led people to forget that he was also a careful artist. We like to think of our author as writing only when in a fine lyric rapture, and as living patiently on canned till he is seized by the inspiration. The rest of us are at liberty to plod along mechanically at our more highly paid tasks; but in the realm of literature we insist that no one shall work for money and no one shall work for fame.

"Nor does this obligation stop with the artist. The ideal publisher is a man who is primarily interested in disseminating sound literature. We admit that he should make a fair profit, but if profit is all that he looks for, he should devote himself to what Mr. Dodd calls richer and more remunerative callings. And our ideal is often realized. The long list of notable publishers is made up of men who have brought to the undertaking the standards not of a mere trade but of a profession. They have felt a compulsion to seek for good books regardless of immediate return. That is the honorable tradition established through several generations, say, by the Murrays of London. That is the tradition maintained by the foremost firms in this country. I like to bring out my books through Mr. ———," said a writer in publishing recently, because he is something of a philosopher himself and takes a personal interest in the matter." The phrase applies, we, I warrant, to all high-minded publishers. They are men of education and taste who will not print a book in which they and their kind may not take a legitimate interest. Granted that in publishing there are shysters as in law, quacks as in medicine, and sensationalists as in journalism, the fact remains that the best men in the business are governed by an intellectual and ethical code different from that of the maker of steel billets.

"And this code, as Mr. Dodd plainly intimates, must be extended to the retailer if our country is to of literature are not to come to grief. The difficulty with the book-counter of the average department store is that the books there are treated exactly as if they were cereals, breakfast food, or asbestos. They are bought in vast quantities at the lowest possible price, and are indiscriminately sold at bargain prices. We do not deny that a few of these book departments are competently conducted, so that the greatest and most of them may be useful in bringing books to the attention of people who might otherwise never dream of buying them. But in general the book department which is but a small part of a huge shop can never be a satisfactory substitute for the regular well-stocked bookstore which seems to be dying. The busy, worried, overfed clerks of the big stores do not make for sauntering, and a leisurely tasting of the wares and that time has to be spent in a place that pleases the fancy. The bookstore proper, which can afford literature even in the last popular edition, is so abnormal a place to take the place of the old-time bookshop, which was a place to which people had resort in the spirit of seeking [illegible] in the [illegible] of the [illegible] in his choice. The company of [illegible] the man [illegible] and of the [illegible] them and [illegible] them with an appreciative purchaser. The genus is, we fear, becoming extinct. In a few of our smaller cities he still survives and leads a precarious existence; perhaps half a dozen of the tribe may be found in the wilds of Manhattan. Wherever he lives he is a humanizing influence which we cannot afford to lose in this age of iron and concrete. If the publishers can do anything to keep him alive, they will deserve well of the republic of letters.

"But the publishers cannot bear the burden alone. The rest of us also have a duty to discharge. A well-stocked and intelligently managed book-shop may be regarded as an important public institution. It deserves consideration and support beyond that accorded to most mercantile enterprises. If we ask author, publisher, and bookseller to make some sacrifice for the sake of literature, we must also do our share. The great truth that man shall not live by bread alone applies to buyers quite as much as to the makers of books."

THE INSOLENT PUBLISHER.

According to an article entitled "The Insolent Publisher," printed in the London Academy for July 4, to which reference is made elsewhere, the publisher "has a way of attributing his 'success' to the fact that he understands exactly what the public want. His view of what it is that the public want is reflected in his lists and advertisements, from which, on the whole, you will form a very low estimate of the public taste. In point of fact he believes in his heart that the public are so many hogs, and that it is no good throwing pearls to them. Hence he has learned to look askance at everything save catchpenny writing, and when he publishes anything that can be dignified by the name of literature he takes care to do it in limited editions, and refuses always to employ in its favor his so-called ability to make a book go. This ability, by the way, consists, as all the world knows, in getting up a boom by dint of specious paragraphs and lavish advertising. As the good books which he publishes for the sake of his [illegible] never get advertised and never get pushed they sell indifferently, and the publisher in his insolence is confirmed in his idiotic notion that there is no market for literature. . . . The history of letters abounds with instances of the absolute failure of publishers and book-booksters to appreciate the good thing when they get it. This is because, as a rule, they are ignorant, puffed-up men, many whose slow minds it is impossible that a thought of anything but the merest and most obvious commonplace should enter. They have an insolent view of the public, they have an insolent and contemptuous view of the sum as a whole, and they have an insolent and contemptuous view of the whole business of letters, excepting in so far as they themselves are engaged in it. There is no writing so perilous, so malicious, so superfluous, or for that matter so foul upon which they will not spend their last penny and their last [illegible] if they conceive it to be [illegible], and there is no writing which may when in a fine lyric rapture, and as living patiently on oatmeal till he is seized by the inspiration. The rest of us are at liberty to plod along mechanically at our more highly paid tasks; but in the realm of literature we insist that no one shall work for money and no one shall work for fame.

"Nor does this obligation stop with the artist. The ideal publisher is a man who is primarily interested in disseminating sound literature. That is the tradition maintained by the foremost firms in this country. 'I like to bring out my books through Mr. ———,' said a writer on philosophy recently, 'because he is something of a philosopher himself and takes a personal interest in the matter.' The phrase applies, mutatis mutandis, to all high-minded publishers. They are men of education and taste who will not print a book in which they and their kind may not take a legitimate interest. Granted that in publishing there are shysters as in law, quacks as in medicine, and sensationalists as in journalism, the fact remains that the best men in the business are governed by an intellectual and ethical code different from that of the maker of steel billets.

"And this code, as Mr. Dodd plainly intimates, must be extended to the retailer if our purveyors of literature are not to come to grief. The difficulty with the book-counter of the average department store is that the books there are treated exactly as if they were calico, breakfast food, or wash-tubs. They are bought in vast quantities at the lowest possible cost, and are indiscriminately sold at bargain prices. We do not deny that a few of these book departments are competently conducted or that the cheapest and worst of them may be useful in bringing books to the attention of people who might otherwise never dream of buying them. The busy, hurried, crowded aisles of the big store do not invite to sauntering, and a leisurely tasting of this book and that till one has hit upon something that catches the fancy. The brisk young woman, whose ignorance of literature, except the last popular novel, is so abysmal, cannot take the place of the well-read bookman who is glad to have you sample his wares and who can, if asked, give you judicious advice as to the flavor of almost any volume on his shelves. The picture of the real bookseller has often been drawn from life—the man who actually loves books, and delights to handle them and to discuss them with an appreciative purchaser. The genus is, we fear, becoming extinct. In a few of our smaller cities he still survives and leads a precarious existence; perhaps half a dozen of the tribe may be found in the wilds of Manhattan. Wherever he lives he is a humanizing influence which we cannot afford to lose in this age of iron and concrete. THE INSOLENT PUBLISHER.

According to an article entitled "The Insolent Publisher," printed in the London Academy for July 4, to which reference is made elsewhere, the publisher "has a way of attributing his 'success' to the fact that he understands exactly what the public want. His view of what it is that the public want is reflected in his lists and advertisements, from which, on the whole, you will form a very low estimate of the public taste. As the good books which he publishes 'for the sake of his imprimatur' never get advertised and never get pushed they sell indifferently, and the publisher in his insolence is confirmed in his idiotic notion that there is no market for literature. . . . THE THIRD ANNUAL BOOK-FAIR GOLF TOURNAMENTERS be noble and necessary and beautiful and desirable for the world to possess upon which they would venture a five-pound note if they can help it."

Further along, in referring to the "insolent pusillanimousness with which the average publisher conducts his concerns," this high-toned representative of literature, science and art, considers one of the publisher's "prime insolences" to be "his growing indisposition to recognize that an author is entitled to some sort of monetary reward for his labor. If the publishers had their way, £20 would be the outside price for the average six-shilling novel of ninety to a hundred thousand words. Over and over again novels have been bought at that price which the publisher has straightway proceeded to advertise as a most striking and exceptional work which will most probably turn out to be the novel of the year. Mr. Publisher prefers to spend his money on advertising rather than on authors. . . . The purport of this article is not to stir up authors against publishers, or to be wantonly rude to the trade. Nobody in his senses can doubt that publishing has become one of the most uncertain and unstable of industries. You will find a publishing house flourishing like the green bay tree this year and tottering on the verge of bankruptcy the next. The publishers themselves are prone to attribute this uncertainty and lack of commercial continuity to the fickleness of the public taste. In point of fact, however, it is almost wholly due to their own cupidity and want of balance and to their contempt for the persons out of whom they have to get their living. Until they recognize the fundamental principle that it is the business of a publisher to publish sound literature and to have nothing to do with trash they will remain in their present parlous and frightened state. And the only way to lay hands on good books is to get round you good authors. Insolence, impudence, greediness, cynicism, and vanity in a publisher are the last things that will attract men who can do decent work into his office."

THE THIRD ANNUAL BOOK-FAIR GOLF TOURNAMENT.

On Friday, July 10, Messrs Barse and Vaughan, on behalf of the Hinsdale Golf Club, invited the representatives of the various publishing houses of the country who were in Chicago for the book fair, and the local trade, to an all-day outing at the club.

The baseball game in the morning between the eastern and western men was close and most exciting. Fred Nunan thinks some of the methods of the western men were very reprehensible. For instance, Feltzkog appeared in an old but full-fledged baseball suit, and the sight of "Feltzy" had a terrifying effect upon the eastern boys.

Umpire McMullen, who was chosen as the tenth man on the eastern team, in his desire to be straight, leaned backward and roasted his own men on decisions. It is said that "Mac" was "stiffened" with a two-dollar bill given him by Billy Barse. "Explorer" Drake caught a beautiful fly and "Shorty" Brewster made a home run. A. L. Burt and E. W. Reynolds had a very heated discussion over one of Umpire Reilly's decisions. Friends intervened before they came to blows. The score was 10 to 6 in favor of the West.

The second event of the day was a driving contest. Every one who was thought capable of hitting the ball at all was barred and the rest were divided into two classes, namely, Class A and Dubs.

Frank Reilly in Class A finally succeeded in hitting a ball which hit the ground a short distance in front of the tee and rolled over 200 yards. He won first prize, a large silver loving cup.

George Platt of the "Dubs" laid his 260 pounds against a ball and Fred Nunan and S. C. Britton started out in an auto to determine the distance. Luncheon was announced at this juncture, and it will probably never be known how many hundred years George knocked that ball. He was given the prize in his class, a silver-mounted shaving mirror.

After luncheon the photographer produced the picture, given elsewhere, which in some cases is a base flattery.

The event of the afternoon was a blind bogey handicap, in which C. E. Thomas proved to be the best guesser and won a cup. Andrew Hamming was second and also received a cup. Many surprises arose in this event. Some were surprised that they could hit the ball at all; others, as Johnny May and Joe Coyle, both old golfers, were surprised that they couldn't.

A substantial and delightful dinner was served in the evening on the veranda of the club house, after which music and stories occupied the boys until train time.

FIRE AT SCRIBNER'S.

At about five o'clock on the morning of July 29, fire broke out in the third floor of the building occupied by Charles Scribner's Sons, 153 Fifth Avenue, New York City, which shortly spread to the fourth floor. These floors were occupied by the magazine and subscription departments of the firm, and contained the records of these branches and a number of original paintings and drawings for the magazine. Fortunately, the records were uninjured, but the paintings and drawings were considerably damaged, if not entirely destroyed. The work of these departments has been promptly distributed and taken care of in different parts of the building and will not be interrupted. The fire was restricted to the two floors mentioned, the wholesale and retail departments escaping with but slight damage, so that the entire business will continue without delay or inconvenience to the patrons of the firm.

A PROTEST AGAINST INDECENT LITERATURE.

There has just been held in Paris an "International Congress Against Pornography," attended by delegates from eighty-four associations formed elsewhere in Europe, and there were, of course, many French participants. The Author reports that Georges Lecomte, president of the Société des Gens de Lettres, "protested, in the name of the immense majority of French writers, against the abject pornographic publications which had nothing in common with French literature and which were read very much less by the French than by foreigners." He complained of the foreign publishers who issue in Paris books in their own language which, in their own country, they would not be allowed to circulate, and he said that a proposal had been submitted to the Minister of Foreign Affairs and the Minister of Education, asking that the manufacturers of base literature should be compelled to print their names in full on their books and papers. The New York Tribune comments upon this as follows: "The idea is excellent, but what is especially gratifying is just the fact that this congress should have been organized. It is well to speak out on this subject. Of course there be those who are always ready to heave a brick at the speaker. An English clergyman who took upon himself to protest in public against an indecent book the other day was promptly called to task by more than one statesmanlike journalist. He was told that his remarks only served to advertise the obnoxious stuff. He was perhaps fortunate in not being denounced as a prude. The defenders of vicious literature are never happier than when they are loftily accusing the clean-minded critic of provincialism, illiberality and so on."

BOOKS AS WEDDING GIFTS.

Books are coming in demand in England as wedding gifts. The vogue has grown recently through the extensive use made of books for this purpose by Mrs. Asquith, wife of the prime minister, who started the fashion, and every one now seems to be taking it up. So far, Kipling has been the favorite, though Oliver Wendell Holmes and Jane Austen are also much in demand. Browning, Ruskin and Dickens figure as gifts at many weddings, Browning being given away mostly among the intellectuals. Dickens used to be more of a favorite at middle-class weddings, but recently his books also figure prominently even among the elect.

Books are always an acceptable gift, and a suitable one handsomely bound—not in a white kid or imitation vellum abomination, however—cannot fail to make an impression. A number of publishers have books on their lists, besides the conventional wedding souvenirs, that easily lend themselves to such a purpose. If the bookseller will keep himself informed of the particular literary tastes of those of his clients who are eligible in the marriage market, he will not only ingratiate himself with those on the lookout for a present for them, but make a handsome profit besides.

FRONT VIEW OF A. C. M'CLURG & CO.'S NEW WHOLESALE BUILDING.

A. C. McCLURG & CO.'S NEW WHOLESALE BUILDING.

THE most important change ever initiated during its forty years' history has just been consummated by the great book and stationery house of A. C. McClurg & Co., Chicago. Within the memory of the present generation the building which accommodated the manifold interests of this firm has been a feature of the down-town district, especially during its long tenancy of the corner of Wabash Avenue and Madison Street, and later in the nine-story building lower down in the same district, which has become a familiar sight to dealers and bookbuyers from all parts of the country.

At the beginning of the present year it was decided to erect a building for the wholesale branches of the McClurg business on the North Side, in the locality formerly known as Streeterville. The building was rushed through with exceeding promptness, and before the first of May all the wholesale departments, and the stock which formerly occupied several floors of the building at 215-221 Wabash Avenue, were installed and doing business in the new location.

The new McClurg building, which is at 457-477 East Ohio Street, is a four-story structure of dull red brick, stone and concrete, with line and space so proportioned that while fulfilling the practical requirements of a warehouse, it has architectural beauty, in its bare simplicity. There is a frontage of 240 feet and a depth of 100 feet, which gives a total floor space of 120,000 square feet. The entrance is at the centre, flanked at either side with a deep recess housing the shipping platforms, which accommodate eight teams at once. The trucks unload their freight on an automatic conveyor, which carries them to their destination without handling. At the rear of the building is an immense elevator carrying an entire van-load at once. These are only one or two points in the perfection of modern equipment and apparatus which has been installed in the way of taking care of the firm's immense holiday and general business.

FIFTEEN MILES OF SHELVING.

The first floor is occupied by the shipping rooms on one side, and the receiving rooms on the other. The second floor contains the large general office and several large stock rooms, while the third and fourth floors are taken up with the stationery and book stock rooms. Some idea of the unequalled facilities of this establishment can be gathered from the fact that the stock rooms contain about fifteen miles of shelving, and there can be carried at all times the regular stock of approximately 3,000,000 volumes.

The manner in which the stock was moved was in itself no small achievement. Within one week the entire wholesale stock was transferred from the Wabash Avenue house, including in addition to some 1,000,000 volumes the stationery and fancy goods stock, the rapid increase of which was one of the strongest reasons for the more extensive quarters. The actual transfer of the office equipment was effected between Saturday afternoon and Monday morning. Saturday afternoon the offices were exactly as left by the carpenters and painters, and on Monday morning every piece of furniture was in place, and the employees at their desks without the loss of even half an hour. These new general offices cover a space of 100 x 110 feet, altogether 11,000 square feet.

A restaurant is installed in the basement which will take care of the two hundred and fifty odd employees. Like every other department, the commissary will be strictly modern in every particular.

This epoch-making change in the McClurg business is a matter of great interest to the trade in all parts of the country. No other firm has quite the same position as A. C. McClurg & Co. in the book, stationery and fancy goods business, and this development directly concerns every dealer on their lists. Not only does the continued prosperity and growth of this house present an encouraging and inspiring example, but its increased facilities insure the retail trade better service than ever before.

A BILLPOSTER BOOK ADVERTISING CAMPAIGN.

A. C. McClurg & Co. have just inaugurated a remarkable advertising campaign to exploit some of their new fiction. They have placed a contract with The Gunning System in Chicago for a number of painted billboards in different parts of the city, which approximate 25 feet long, and are devoted to the promotion of their three spring novels. These posters are attracting much attention, and the local dealers are showing considerable interest, and are backing up the campaign with window displays, etc.

This, we believe, is the first time that the advertising of books has been undertaken on so large a scale by billposters. The C. M. Clark Publishing Company, some years ago, advertised its first book, "Quincy Adams Sawyer," by means of bill posters, but never before has any such large space been devoted to the advertising of books as that employed in this case by A. C. McClurg & Co.

SEMI-CENTENARIANS.

ALBERT F. FITCH.

An enthusiastic meeting of the employees of the American News Company Book Department was held on Saturday, July 25, to congratulate Mr. Albert F. Fitch, who has just completed fifty years' service in the book-trade. The feature of the occasion was the presentation to Mr. Fitch of a handsome gold-mounted fountain pen inscribed "Fifty Years a Bookman, July 25th, 1908," accompanied by an engrossed set of resolutions, handsomely framed, in commemoration of the event, with the autographs of all the participants appended.

The presentation address was made by Mr. John Downes in a very pleasant and happy manner, and met with the hearty approval of all present, eliciting much deserved applause. Although visibly affected by this unexpected mark of esteem from his fellow clerks, Mr. Fitch responded briefly, heartily thanking his colleagues for this felicitious expression of good feeling towards him and earnestly asked for a continuance of the same feeling in the future.

Mr. Fitch was born in New York City, October 11, 1843. After passing through the public school, Mr. Fitch, at the age of fifteen, on July 25, 1858, entered the employ of D. Appleton & Co., remaining in the wholesale department of this firm until August, 1870, with the exception of about a year which he spent in the service of the Federal army during the war between the states. In the fall of 1870, when the firm of Lee, Shepard & Dillingham, (afterwards Charles T. Dillingham,) was formed, he was offered the position of manager of their order and shipping department, which he accepted and held until Mr. Dillingham retired from the jobbing business.

In August, 1891, Mr. Fitch and his fellow clerk, Arthur J. Saalfield, formed the firm of Saalfield & Fitch for the purpose of conducting a jobbing business, with headquarters at 12 Bible House. This was but a short-lived enterprise, as the firm was obliged to make an assignment on December 21, 1893. In 1894 the business was reorganized as The Merriam Company. Seven years ago Mr. Fitch entered the employ of the book department of the American News Company, with the correspondence department of which he is still connected, displaying much of the activity and enterprise which distinguished him in his younger days. We join his many friends in wishing him many more years of usefulness and happiness.

ANDREW GEYER.

At the banquet of the National Association of Stationers and Manufacturers, given in Boston on July 23, a handsome solid silver loving cup was presented to Andrew Geyer, the publisher of Geyer's Stationer, to commemorate his fiftieth year in the trade, and as a token of appreciation of the services rendered to the association.

Mr. Geyer was born in Boston, Mass., on November 25, 1842. Fifty years ago he began his business career with Henry F. Marsh, stationer, on Cornhill, in his native city. He represented his firm on the road, first on the New England circuit, and later in the West. Later he came to New York City, and obtained employment in the stationery department of D. Appleton & Co. In the early seventies he withdrew from D. Appleton & Co. to become resident buyer for several large Western jobbing houses. In 1875 Mr. Geyer compiled the "Stationers' Price Book," and during the same year he devoted considerable of his time to organizing the Stationers' Board of Trade, of which he was the first secretary. In the same year he also organized the Stationers' Exchange, which had the support of the leading houses in the stationery line. In 1877, he started Geyer's Stationer, a journal which has secured recognition as one of the leading journals in the trade. He was also one of the most earnest supporters of the Booksellers' and Stationers' Provident Association, which he served for five years as secretary. His most recent achievement was the part he took in helping to organize the Stationers' Association of New York, one of the most active and helpful of the local organizations. Mr. Geyer richly deserves the appreciation of the trade which he has served so long and so faithfully.

JAMES WALLACE CHRISTOPHER.

J. W. Christopher, one of the pioneers of the magazine business in this country, who was the proprietor of the American and Foreign Magazine Depot in New York City for upwards of thirty years, was born June 23, 1828, in Rochester, N. Y., the son of Joseph Christopher, a descendant of the old Dutch family of Christoffel, and of Mary Howell.

Mr. Christopher was a graduate of the University of Rochester. In the year 1851 he received the Sophomore Declamation Prize, also the prize for proficiency in French. He graduated in Greek, Latin, French and mathematics. He was a charter member, (S. N.,) of the Rochester Chapter of the Alpha Delta Phi Society.

He read law with the late Hon. Daniel S. Dickinson, and was admitted to the bar in New York City in 1853. At a general term of the Supreme Court of the State of New York, held in the city of New York on November 21, 1859, Mr. Christopher was admitted as an attorney and counsellor to practice in all the courts of the State of New York.

After some years of practice he was obliged to give up law, as it became obvious that any sedentary occupation was prejudicial to his health. He was troubled with a congenital affection of the heart, and the atmosphere of the crowded and ill-ventilated court rooms became, at times, intolerable to him.

He then became the secretary and paymaster of his father, who was general manager of the Crystal Oil Works, in Brooklyn, N. Y.

A firm, known in the late '60's as The American and European Magazine Company, became so indebted to Mr. Christopher that he was obliged to take their stock and business in satisfaction of his claims.

Finding that the stock and good-will of the concern could not be sold, except at a great loss, Mr. Christopher decided to engage in the book and magazine business himself. This was in the year 1869-70. His literary tastes and acquirements, and his thorough knowledge of the classics of the most important of the dead and modern languages; his pleasing address and keen sense of humor, seemed to peculiarly fit him for such an occupation.

He continued in this business, known for years as The American and Foreign Magazine Depot, at 47 Dey Street, New York City, and met with moderate success, until May of 1906. It was then that the North River Tunnel Company proposed to tear down that part of Dey Street which is between Church and Greenwich Streets, as the site was desired by them whereon to build one of their terminals.

The loss of his place of business, and of all the fittings, etc., needed to store and classify his immense stock, together with other losses incident to the defection of certain persons, (whom he took to be his friends,) were the death-blows at once to the business of Mr. Christopher and to himself.

After a lingering illness, due to heart trouble, he died on November 23, 1907, at Auburn Mills, Va., the home of his widow, Mrs. Lucy Terrell Christopher.

It was the desire of Mr. Christopher that the good-will of his business should go to his friend, Mr. Henri Gerard, 83 Nassau Street, New York City, who is continuing this branch in connection with his other business.

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

Harper & Brothers will bring out in the fall Swinburne's "The Age of Shakespeare," which has been long looked forward to as his chief work in prose.

Reid Publishing Company, 30 Huntington Avenue, Boston, will publish on August 15 a story of adventures and experiences by Frank Hatfield, entitled "The Realm of Light."

James Pott & Co. will bring out in September a volume by Paul Wainemann, entitled "A Summer Tour in Finland," a description of a tour from Helsingfors to Tornea, the most northerly town in Europe. The work will contain many illustrations in color. They will bring out at the same time an edition de luxe of Shakespeare's "Tempest," with illustrations by Paul Woodroofe and songs by Joseph Moorat.

Duffield & Co. have in preparation an edition of the works of Jane Austen, in ten volumes, each with a reproduction after water colors by A. Wallis Mills. The text of the novels has been revised for this edition by R. Brimley Johnson, who furnishes also bibliographical and biographical notes. The water color drawings, by one of the artists of Punch, are an attempt to reproduce faithfully the details of the period of which Jane Austen wrote.

Harry Gould on August 1 will take the place of James Kent as manager of the New England News Company in Boston. Mr. Gould was for seventeen years connected with the periodical department of the Rhode Island News Company in Providence. For five or seven years he was assistant superintendent of the circulation department of the New York Herald, and he therefore enters upon his new position fully equipped in every direction. Mr. Kent, who retires on account of his health, has been connected with the news business for about fifty years.

George W. Jacobs & Co. have just ready "The Story of British Diplomacy" and "King Edward and his Court," both by T. H. S. Escott, the eldest son of an English clergyman who has long been noted for his active interest in English statesmanship. The author has had access to important State papers and has enjoyed a friendly intercourse with various secretaries, from whom some of the personal information contained in his first volume on King Edward was obtained. They have also brought out a new story for girls by Amy Blanchard, entitled "Little Maid Marian," illustrated by Miss Mary Hitchner.

G. P. Putnam's Sons will publish next week a posthumous work by Professor F. W. Maitland, entitled "The Constitutional History of England." The volume which is made up of a course of lectures delivered in the University of Cambridge has a special value in that it covers ground which Professor Maitland was never again to retrace. More than this, it contains a number of new and original ideas which its author had no opportunity of presenting in his later work, and, further, it shows, in a rare combination, the qualities of a profound student and the gifts of presentation and style that make the brilliant popularizer of knowledge.

DANA ESTES & Co. have just ready a delightful work of humor by Laura E. Richards, author of "Captain January," etc., entitled "The Wooing of Calvin Parks." In this story the creator of "Geoffrey Strong" and "Mrs. Tree" reverts to one of the happiest of her many phases of activity, and portrays with delightful reality the queer, quaint, odd and lovable characters of her own "Down East" neighborhood. With loving touch and without the suspicion of exaggeration or unkindly caricature, she acquaints her readers with the homely virtues, droll conceits and pithy saws of the fast vanishing New England types. It is a book with a laugh on every page, a sunrise in every chapter, and not a tear from beginning to end.

THE BAKER & TAYLOR COMPANY have just ready in their popular Appreciation Series a trade edition of "The Appreciation of Music," by Thomas Whitney Surette and Daniel Gregory Mason, which was published a short time ago for the music trade by the H. W. Gray Co., (Novello & Co.) The book is in no sense a technical work, being intended for the music lover rather than for the music student. To this edition four illustrations have been added. They have also ready a new edition of John Harrington Edwards's helpful work, entitled "God and Music," and the volume entitled "Around the World in a Year," by George L. Carlisle, which was prepared originally for the author by the firm of Robert Grier Cooke, Inc., which for certain reasons has not been able to market the book.

D. APPLETON & Co. will publish on September 15 Joseph C. Lincoln's new novel, "Cy Whittaker's Place," the scene of which is a Cape Cod village which Mr. Lincoln always describes with so much humor and pathos. The volume will have thirty illustrations by Wallace Morgan. They have in preparation a novel entitled "The Emotionalist," by Stanley Olmstead. The scenes of the novel are laid among the literary and artistic people in Germany and New York, and the book as a whole is described as a study of the artistic temperament. They also announce "Oscar Wilde," a critical summary of his work by Leonard Cresswell Ingleby, and "Charles Dickens—his Life, Writings, and Personality," by Frederick G. Kitton, whose book contains a considerable amount of new material.

IN connection with the Quebec tricentennial celebration it is worth while to remember that Thoreau's "A Yankee in Canada" gives an extremely interesting account of Quebec and the St. Lawrence country. This title is no longer to be found on the cover of any of Thoreau's books, but the story itself forms a large section of the volume entitled "Excursions." Thoreau quotes two explanations of the origin of the word "Quebec." One is that Jacques Cartier's pilot exclaimed in Norman French at first sight of its lofty headland, "Que bec!" ("What a beak!") The other was given by a St. Francis Indian, Tahmunt by name, whom Thoreau came across in the Maine woods in 1853. He said, "When the English ships came up the river, they could not go any further, it was so narrow there; they must go back—go back—that's Quebec;" which, as Thoreau intimates, is more than doubtful etymology.

GINN & Co. have added to their International Library a volume entitled "Texts of the Peace Conferences at The Hague, 1899 and 1907," edited by Professor James Brown Scott, of George Washington University, technical delegate of the United States to the second conference; also, "The Two Hague Conferences and their Contributions to International Law," suggested to its author, Dr. William I. Hull, of Swarthmore College, by the resolutions adopted last summer by the National Educational Association, the American Institute of Instruction, and the National Association of School Superintendents, urging teachers to study the work of the conferences. They will shortly publish "The Memoirs of Fräulein Carla Wenckebach: a Pioneer," by Fräulein Margaretha Müller, of Wellesley, a biography of which the subject was not the least remarkable of the instructors who have made the college what it is.

CHARLES SCRIBNER'S SONS will publish this month a love-story of modern Greece, entitled "An Olympic Victor," by James B. Connolly, with illustrations by André Castaigne. The story reaches its climax in the great Marathon race at the revival of the Olympic games in Athens in 1900. The author is himself an athlete of distinction and took part in these Olympic games. His story of the straining, gruelling struggle, the heart-breaking efforts of the runners over those twenty-four miles of country roads from Marathon to Athens, the gradual collapse of one man after another until the stadium with its thousands of tumultuously cheering spectators greets the victor with the cry, "A Greek," "A Greek," is soul stirring. They will also bring out this month a new novel by F. Hopkinson Smith, entitled "Peter—a Novel of which He is not the Hero," with illustrations by A. T. Keller; "The Coming Harvest," ("Le Blé Qui Lève,") by René Bazin, a novel of life in the country in France to-day, full of picturesque incidents, vivid characters and striking descriptions of the country; also an enlarged edition of Mrs. Louise Seymour Houghton's excellent book, "Telling Bible Stories."

MCLOUGHLIN BROTHERS, New York City, have just ready the "Memoirs of Cornelius Cole, Ex-Senator of the United States from California." Senator Cole was born and brought up on his father's farm in Western New York, and received his schooling in the Lima Seminary, Geneva College and at Wesleyan University in Connecticut. He was fortunate in his teachers and classmates who were without exception men of learning and refinement. Following the "Star of the Empire," Cole by degrees moved further West until, in '49, the gold fever drew him to the Pacific coast. From that time all his interests were merged with those of the far West. During the war between the states he espoused her cause in the field, after the war he defended her interests in the legislative halls. Mr. Cole's life was an unusually active and influential one, and his narrative, unvarnished as it is, is a fascinating one. His descriptions of men and things in the early days, East and West, of the trials and struggles of the Argonauts during the gold-fever period are strikingly clear and convincing. The book supplements every local history of the section and period it covers, from 1843 to 1872. The book is well made and has as a frontispiece a photograph of Senator Cole.

HENRY HOLT & CO. will publish during August a volume of timely interest in "Canadian Types of the Old Régime," by Professor Charles W. Colby, of McGill University, in which the history of the French colonization of Canada is grouped around the personalities of Champlain, the explorer; Brebeuf, the missionary; Hebert, the colonist; D'Iberville, the soldier; Talon, the intendant; Laval, the bishop, and Frontenac, the governor. The volume will have eighteen illustrations. They also announce a volume entitled "The Builders of United Italy," by Rupert Sargent Holland, including descriptions of the work of Alfieri, Mazoni, Gioberti, Manin, Mazzini, Cavour, Garibaldi and Victor Emmanuel, with eight portraits; "Reminiscences of Richard Wagner," by Angelo Neumann, translated from the fourth German edition, giving an account of the remarkable journeys of Neumann's travelling Wagner Theater in Germany, Austria, Italy and Russia, and of other interesting first performances of "The Ring," with portraits and one of Wagner's letters in facsimile; "Hero and Leander," a poetic drama of unusual merit, by Professor Martin Schütze, of the University of Chicago; "Apollo and the Seamen, and Other Poems," by Herbert Trench, author of "Deirdre Wedded," etc., which William Archer says is "full of magnificent things;" also, "The Sense of the Infinite," a study of the transcendental element in literature, life and religion, by Oscar Kuhns, author of "Dante and English Poets," etc.

FREDERICK A. STOKES COMPANY will publish early in September Marie Corelli's new book, entitled "Holy Orders, the Tragedy of a Quiet Life." Into a very human plot Miss Corelli has worked as essential elements questions of the drink evil and the problem of the yellow press. Her attitude on these matters will certainly arouse vigorous discussion. In view of the agitation which is now going on in so many States in this country, this new novel is most timely. "Holy Orders" is most up-to-date; the conditions the author describes and the incidents that make up her plot are more closely connected with the daily lives of American readers than was the case in any of her other works. The English setting makes little difference; only comparatively unessential details would have to be changed to make the story fit American conditions and read like accounts of our own life. Church people, Prohibitionists, Anti-Saloon League adherents and journalists—all will find plenty to interest them in this book. They will publish early in the fall a book entitled "Good Health and How We Won It," by Upton Sinclair and Michael Williams, who relate how they won their way into good health out of disease. In the course of the story it is made clear that they are disciples of Horace Fletcher and have been influenced as well by the discoveries of Professors Chittenden, Mendel, and Fisher of Yale, Dr. Kellogg of Battle Creek, Metchnikoff of the Pasteur Institute, and Pawlow of St. Petersburg. The authors, however, do not confine themselves to any one theory or set of theories, but give the actual results derived from their own studies, enforced by their own experiences and experiments.

HOUGHTON MIFFLIN COMPANY have in preparation the following important biographic works: "The Life of Thomas Bailey Aldrich," by Ferris Greenslet, based largely upon the poet's letters, which will take their place among the best that America has produced; "William McKinley," a new volume in the American Statesmen series, by Thomas C. Dawson, our Minister to Colombia, long an intimate friend of McKinley and the McKinley circle; "John Keats," by Albert E. Hancock, Professor of English in Haverford College, a compact, readable and authoritative biography, embodying all the recent information that has come to light since the earlier "lives" were written; also, a popular issue—the Anniversary edition—of Alonzo Rothschild's "Lincoln, Master of Men," one of the most remarkable of the many books on Lincoln. All these books will be adequately illustrated. They will add to their excellent American Commonwealths series a volume on Wisconsin by Dr. R. G. Thwaites, secretary of the State Historical Society of Wisconsin, and one on Minnesota, by Professor William M. Folwell, of the University of Minnesota. Each volume will be supplied with a map. Other books of interest which they announce are "The History of Boston Theatre," (illustrated,) compiled by Eugene Tompkins and Quince Kilby, which is bound to be the most important contribution to the history of the American stage published in a quarter of a century, whether it is well done or not; "The Confession of a Railroad Signalman," (illustrated,) by J. O. Fagan, the most important study yet made of the essentials of safety on American railroads during its serial publication in the Atlantic Monthly, awakened the keenest interest among railroad men and the general public; "Business Accounting," by William M. Cole, a helpful book on the construction and interpretation of accounts for business men and students of affairs, by the assistant professor of accounting in Harvard University; "The Lay of the Land," (illustrated,) by Dallas Lore Sharp, fifteen outdoor sketches of unusual charm and depth of feeling for nature; "Immortality as Conceived and Taught in Northern Buddhism," the Harvard Ingersoll Lecture for 1908, by Dr. William S. Bigelow, who has lived for many years in the Orient; also, "The Home Builder," by Dr. Lyman Abbott, a series of short chapters giving a delightful picture of the ideal wife and mother, which will prove an acceptable and inspiring gift book to older people.

TERMS OF ADVERTISING.

Under the heading "Books Wanted" book-trade subscribers are given the privilege of a free advertisement for books out of print of five nonpareil lines, exclusive of address, in any issue except special numbers, to an extent not exceeding 100 lines a year. If more than five lines are sent, the excess is at 10 cents a line, and amount should be enclosed. Bids for current books and such as may be easily had from the publishers, and repeated matter, as well as all advertisements from non-subscribers, must be paid for at the rate of 5 cents a line.

Under the heading "Books for Sale," the charge to subscribers and non-subscribers is 10 cents a nonpareil line for each insertion. No deduction for repeated matter.

All other small undisplayed advertisements will be charged at the uniform rate of 10 cents a nonpareil line. Eight words may be reckoned to the line.

Parties with whom we have no account must pay in advance, otherwise no notice will be taken of their Communications.

BOOKS WANTED.

☞ In answering, please state edition, condition, and price, including postage or express charges.

Houses that are willing to deal exclusively on a cash-on-delivery basis will find it to their advantage to put after their firm-name the word [Cash.]

☞ Write your wants plainly, and on one side of the sheet only. Illegibly-written "wants" will be considered as not having been received. The "Publishers' Weekly" does not hold itself responsible for errors.

It should be understood that the appearance of advertisements in this column, or elsewhere in the "Publishers' Weekly," does not furnish a guarantee of credit. While it is endeavored to safeguard these columns by withdrawing the privilege of their use from advertisers who are not "good pay," booksellers shold take the usual precautions, as to advertisers not known to them, that they would take in making sales to any unknown parties.

JUST ISSUED

Dainty and Delightful Gifts for Travelers

In the same general style as Lucas's "Friendly Town" and "Open Road." 16mo, limp covers, full gilt. Each, cloth, $1.50 net; leather, $2.50 net.

Miss L. H. Humphrey's The Poetic Old World

A compilation of classic, descriptive poetry covering Europe, including Spain, Belgium, and the British Isles, in some two hundred poems from about ninety poets. Some thirty, not originally written in English, are given in both the original and the best available translation.

Miss Mary R. J. DuBois's Poems for Travelers

A similar compilation, but covering France, Germany, Austria, Switzerland, Italy, and Greece in some three hundred poems (nearly one-third of them by Americans) from about one hundred and thirty poets. All but some forty of these poems were originally written in English.

Change in Price.—Lucas's "The Open Road" and "The Friendly Town" will hereafter be charged as net books.

For Every Public Library

W. A. Locy's Biology and Its Makers

Professor in Northwestern University. 460 pp., 123 illus., 8vo, $2.75 net.

An untechnical account, based on original sources, of the rise and progress of biology written around the lives of the great founders of the science. The illustrations form an unequalled collection of biological subjects.

Vernon L. Kellogg's Insect Stories

Professor of Entomology in Stanford University, author of "American Insects," "Darwinism To-day," etc. 304 pp., profusely illustrated. (American Nature Series, Diversions from Nature.) $1.50 net.

These strange, true stories describe the habits of certain insects in so fascinating a way that there are few people, either old or young, who will not be held by its charm. Simplicity is the keynote to the studies and observations of the old scientist and the little girl who figures in the book, and their ingenuousness and subtle humor hold one's interest as much as the marvellous doings of the little ground folk themselves.

THE CLIQUE

(ESTABLISHED 1890)

The Recognized Organ of the Second-Hand Book Trade

THE CLIQUE is read by every bookseller who deals in old books in Great Britain, and by many in the United States and on the Continent.

THE CLIQUE advertises for about 4000 books every week; books which are wanted by its Members, and for which they are willing to pay a fair price.

THE CLIQUE is issued to booksellers only, its motto being "The Trade for THE TRADE." Booksellers can therefore report to our advertisers in confidence that they will not be "cut" by amateur dealers, who are not obliged to make their living by selling books.

THE CLIQUE is the best medium for all advertisements which appeal to booksellers, and its rates are lower than those of any tradepaper in the world.

SUBSCRIPTION 6s 6d ($1 50) per annum, post free; but as all subscriptions terminate in December subscribers may deduct 1½d (three half-pence) for each week of the year that has passed.

SOWING SEEDS IN DANNY

DANNY

By Mrs. NELLIE L. McCLUNG

IT was Danny's brother, Robert Roblin Watson (otherwise known as Bugsey), who, upon being installed as a member of the Band of Hope, announced :

"I belong to the Band of Hope,
Never to drink and never to smoke;
To love my parents and Uncle Sam,
Keep Alcohol out of my diaphragm;
To say my prayers when I go to bed,
And not to put the bedclothes over my head;
Fill up my lungs with oxygen
And be kind to every living thing."

"THE BRIGHTEST BOOK OF THE YEAR"

L. M. MONTGOMERY'S

ANNE OF GREEN GABLES

From Page's List

When a retail dealer disposes of 250 copies of a single book in one week, it may be said fairly to have caught on. This is what one Boston bookseller has done with ANNE OF GREEN GABLES, and, to use his expression, "It has only begun to go. It will be one of the big late Summer and Fall sellers" Re orders from other sections of the country indicate the same enthusiasm and interest in the book. WATCH YOUR STOCK.

MARY JOHNSTON'S

Author of "To Have and to Hold"

Lewis Rand

There are three excellent reasons why this new book by Miss Johnston should have a greater popularity than her other novels. First—It deals with a familiar and favorite epoch in American history—the South when the great plantations were in their prime and life combined the romance and adventure of earlier days with the culture and refinement of civilization. Second—Such noted men as Jefferson, Hamilton and Burr figure with life-like reality in its pages. Third—It is a tremendous story of a Napoleonic temperament. Lewis Rand is as strange and strong a character as has ever been created by an American author since Hawthorne wrote "The Scarlet Letter." The story is as different from any other American novel as can be imagined. It is completely absorbing, wonderfully well written, and it sways the readers as only a big novel can.

Illustrated in color by F. C. Yohn. Square cr. 8vo, $1.50

CLARA LOUISE BURNHAM'S

The Leaven of Love

The story of an estrangement, the subsequent complications between man and wife, and the effect which the sweet, unselfish nature of the young girl has upon the future happiness of the couple. This is in brief the plot which Mrs. Burnham skilfully weaves into a love story of unusual attraction.

Of the leading characters in the story, Sybil will probably stand forth as the most complex and altogether charming. Mrs. Burnham's heroines always hold the center of the stage from the rise to the fall of the curtain, and they invariably stand for what is best, strongest and sweetest in American womanhood.

Mrs. Burnham never fails to tell a story which interests, pleases and helps the reader, and "The Leaven of Love" will not soon be forgotten.

A Cunning Round of Mystery

The

CIRCULAR STAIRCASE

One continual ascent of alluring bewilderment, winding upward with a thrill at every step, a breathless pause at every landing. It is conceived so cunningly, fashioned with such fascination, that it leads the author at once to a place beside Conan Doyle and Anna Katharine Green.

And the humor of the book, its great good nature, quaint characterization and unexpected turns of fun, are new in mystery fiction.

NOTES IN SEASON.

BRENTANO'S will publish early next month a new edition of "The New Baby's Biography," by A. O. Kaplan, revised and considerably enlarged, with new drawings and designs in color by Ruth Mary Hallock. The illustrations are a special feature in this new edition.

THE MACMILLAN COMPANY have in preparation a work on "The Flowers and Gardens of Japan," by Florence Du Cane, with fifty full-page illustrations in color, by Ella Du Cane; also, "Ancient Tales and Folk Lore of Japan," by J. Gordon Smith, with a number of illustrations reproduced in colors.

J. B. LIPPINCOTT COMPANY, in response to many demands for a two-volume edition of the Rev. William L. Worcester's work "On Holy Ground," have just published an edition of this excellent book in that form. The work has been divided into (v. I.,) The Old Testament, and (v.II.,) The Gospels. Either volume may be had separately if desired.

THE L. W. WALKER COMPANY, successors to the Monarch Book Co., 123 Plymouth Court, Chicago, Ill., have just ready for the trade a "Democratic Campaign Song Book," by Fred. T. Loftin. The book contains campaign songs for Democratic gatherings, marching and glee clubs, arranged for popular airs. The book is put up in paper covers and retails for ten cents.

DANA ESTES & Co. have just ready a helpful book for young housekeepers, entitled "Living on a Little," by Caroline French Benton. It has been the author's intention to provide practical information for the inexperienced housekeeper to enable them so to arrange their living expenses as to realize the best results and make both ends meet even in these times of inordinately high prices.

LOTHROP, LEE & SHEPARD CO. will publish on September 2 a new book by George Cary Eggleston, entitled "Two Gentlemen of Virginia," with illustrations by Frank T. Merrill. In this story the author tells, with great feeling and deep knowledge, how a young man who had won prosperity in the West, inherited a run-down plantation with its outfit of negroes, in connection with whom the young master tried interesting social experiments. As a love story, it is charming; as a picture of the "Old Régime," it is matchless. They will bring out at the same time a new story by Charles Clark Munn, entitled "Myrtle Baldwin," with illustrations by Henry Roth.

THE BAKER & TAYLOR COMPANY publish today "The Car and the Lady," by Percy F. Megargel and Grace Sartwell Mason, an automobile story that promises to "catch on." They have in preparation a new novel by Mabel Barnes-Grundy, author of "Hazel of Heatherland," entitled "Hilary on Her Own," a study of a strong-minded young English girl who rebels against the tyranny of a sordid household and goes to London on her own responsibility to make her fortune. They also have under way another volume in their Appreciation Series, by Charles H. and Caroline A. Caffin, entitled "The Appreciation of the Drama." In this book the authors trace the development of the drama through the Greek tragedy, Christian morality and miracle plays, Italian and French farce, pageant and allegorical presentation, Shakespeare's plays, the dramas of Ben Jonson, Congreve, and Sheridan down to our own times. Several chapters are given to the work of the modern playwrights—Ibsen, Shaw, Hauptmann, Belasco, Fitch and others.

A successful millinery establishment in the thriving city of Nantes, France, furnishes the stage for the loves, trials and pleasures of the young girls who trim hats and dream dreams and reap the consequences of their own acts and of the acts of others. The guiding spirit is Henriette, the head milliner. Her personal history makes her long to make redemption and de toute son âme (with her whole soul) she devotes herself to brighten the lives of all about her. The temptation and sin of one of the characters furnish the circumstances that lead to the slight plot.

While the idea of teaching agriculture is very old, it is only in recent years that it has come to be a large factor in the system of general education. The present work is submitted for the use of the school children of the Southwest, and aims to satisfy the natural interest of all children about the whys of common farm conditions.

Fitzhugh, T: Prolegomena to the history of Italico-Romanic rhythm. Charlottesville, Va., Anderson Bros., 1908. c. 22 p. O. pap., 25 c.

Author is professor of Latin in the University of Virginia. The investigation upon which these results are based has nothing to do with the particular question as to the nature of the Latin accent. It shows merely that, whatever be its precise tone, Latin accent falls rhythmically in Latin speech, and thus determines for the native versification an original rhythm of accent, and not as in Greek with its arythmic accent and original rhythm of quantity.—Introduction.

Margot Methuen, the daughter of Augustin Methuen, a former millionaire, is in love with Count Stelvio, an Italian of an old but impoverished family. The dire need of her parents forces Margot into an engagement with Angus MacPhail, a millionaire congressman, who invites her family to stay at their old home, which he has bought. The father is too ill to realize where he is taken, but before his death Margot discovers that he deeply distrusts MacPhail. She learns also that MacPhail is largely responsible for the loss of their fortune, is dishonest and unscrupulous. The engagement is broken, Stelvio appears once more, and all ends well.

The first of the six volumes which are to make the Historical Bible, of which two are now ready. Author is Woolsey professor of biblical literature in Yale University. His work is in the nature of a popular commentary purposing "to put into the hands of students the really vital parts of the Bible, arranged in chronological order and to interpret its essential teachings into the thought and language of to-day." The introductions to the first two volumes contain a careful summary of the results of modern investigation in all branches of Semitic science. Appendices to v. 1 give: The late priestly version of Creation: A practical biblical reference library; and General questions and subjects for general research. The reference library and general questions for the period treated appear in each volume.

Lowenberg, Mrs. I. The irresistible current. N. Y., Broadway Publishing Co., [1908.] c. 558 p. il. D. cl., $1.25.

The story of a Jewish girl, Grace Feld, brought up in Missouri, in comfortable circumstances. While travelling in the States with her parents she meets William Levalle, who loves her, and some time later goes to Missouri to marry her. Through the falseness of her envious cousin, Letitia Rheinberg, and the misrepresentations of Bernard Arnold, who wishes to marry her himself, the lovers are parted, and are reunited only when Grace is dying in a convent, where she has been converted to Catholicism. "The irresistible current" is the universal harmony of all religions, for which several characters in the story are striving.

Author is assistant in the clinic of Hofrat von Neusser, Vienna. He believes the study of pain to be the starting point of the diagnostic train of reasoning, because it is often the first evidence of disease, because careful consideration of the patient's own sensations is essential where comprehensive investigation of all objective symptoms is impossible, and because it is this very symptom of pain that impels the patient to seek medical advice. The book is intended to serve as a guide in the rapid and correct interpretation and successful treatment of the pain occurring in internal diseases.

The "Land of the living" is America; the particular section, the political circles of Chicago. A typical "boss," a warm-hearted Irishman of flexible moral code, adopts a waif, educates him for a lawyer, and takes him to Ireland to see "the land of the dead." A young Irish girl, the starving scion of an old race is tempted by reports to try her fortunes in Chicago. She becomes companion, instructor and generally useful helper. The lawyer sees through the political "morality," refuses to act with his patron, and brings about a combination of circumstances in which the underlying love stories are worked to satisfactory issues.

The principal aim has been to present concisely those ideas most important to a general understanding of the natural relation existing between life and health, together with an explanation of the laws which render mental healing possible. Another purpose has been to set forth the demonstrated facts of metaphysical healing in such a manner that inquiring minds may be enabled personally to examine through the experiences of those around them some of the common lines of mental action in which proofs are obtainable that mind both causes and cures disease.—Preface.

The author offers a solution of the financial problem which shall do away with the legerdemain of graft as it is practiced upon the stupid but worthy producer. The standard intrinsic unit is a quantity of any product determined by a unit of the energy required to produce wealth.

The Publishers' Weekly.

FOUNDED BY F. LEYPOLDT.

AUGUST 8, 1908.

The editor does not hold himself responsible for the views expressed in contributed articles or communications.

All matter for advertising pages should reach this office not later than Wednesday noon, to insure insertion in the same week's issue.

Publishers are requested to furnish title-page proofs and advance information of books forthcoming, both for entry in the lists and for descriptive mention. An early copy of each book published should be forwarded, as it is of the utmost importance that the entries of books be made as promptly and as perfectly as possible. In many cases booksellers and librarians depend on the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY solely for their information. The Record of New Publications of the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY is the material of the "American Catalog," and so forms the basis of trade bibliography in the United States.

"I hold every man a debtor to his profession, from the which, as men do of course seek to receive countenance and profit, so ought they of duty to endeavor themselves by way of amends to be a help and an ornament thereunto."—LORD BACON.

HINTS FOR THE SUMMER.

DURING the summer months, which nowadays extend almost to October, it will be well for the bookseller to learn to keep cool by every means at his command. We have already pointed out the importance of keeping the store cool, well aired and roomy. It is just as important that the bookseller and his assistants give the impression of being cool inside the store, however aggravating the weather outside, and the crankiness of their customers.

Keeping cool is a detail that may be easily acquired. Light clothing and proper diet help considerably, but the essential is self-control. The bookseller must not get nervous or rattled. He must not let a little rush of business during the heated term excite him so much that he cannot properly attend to it. Let him take things as they come, in an easy way. Fretting and fuming do not help any—they only induce perspiration.

This, of all seasons of the year, is the one in which to cultivate sociability. As far as possible let the proprietor of the store possess himself of an easy frame of mind, and take an interest in those who are buying—a luxury in which he cannot always indulge himself during the fall and holiday season, much as he may desire to do so. If at any time he may become closer acquainted with a newcomer let him show himself eager to be of service, and impress upon his customer the feeling that his is a home store, where accommodation may be found alike for the one in easy circumstances as well as for those who are obliged to be economical, in short, where everything is made as pleasant as possible for all, whether they may buy liberally or whether they may choose to buy not at all.

Every possible allowance should be made for the fussy or impatient customer. These may have been obliged to walk about in the heated streets, or have been subjected to annoyance in their shopping tours, while the storekeeper has been under shelter. A little patient attention and well-tempered sympathy with his customer's grievances without a display, however, of exasperating coolness, will do much to calm a customer, as will the comfortable surroundings of a well-kept store.

Then, shorter hours—from nine in the morning until five in the afternoon should suffice during the hot spell—and a half holiday on Saturday, will do much to keep up the spirits of the principal and his assistants, and help to bridge over until the weather conditions become more favorable.

BUCKRAM OR SHEEP.

THE problem of binding is, or has been, a hard one for the law librarian to solve, but at the present time there seems to be a ray of light ahead.

At the second annual meeting of the American Association of Law Libraries, held at Asheville, N. C., May 24-28, 1907, a resolution was adopted requesting the publishers of the various reports, digests, statutes, etc., to bind a sufficient number of copies of their publications in the buckram or cloth binding to supply the libraries preferring that kind of binding. In accordance with this resolution a committee on binding was appointed, and the report rendered at the third annual meeting, held at Minnetonka, Minn., June 22-27, 1908, is as follows:

The following reports can now be obtained in cloth binding: United States Circuit Court of Appeals Reports, United States Interstate Commerce Commission, United States Supreme Court Reports.

Alaska.
Arkansas.
California.
California Appeals.
Colorado.
Connecticut.
District of Columbia.
Georgia.
Georgia Appeals.
Illinois.
Illinois Appellate.
Illinois Circuit.
Iowa.
New Jersey Equity.
New York Appellate.
New York Civil Procedure.
New York Appeals.
New York Criminal.
New York Miscellaneous.
North Carolina.
Ohio State.
Ohio Circuit N. S.
Ohio Circuits.
Ohio Nisi Prius.

Kansas.
Kentucky.
Louisiana.
Massachusetts.
Michigan.
Minnesota.
Mississippi.
Missouri.
Montana.
New Jersey Law.
Oregon.
Pennsylvania.
Pennsylvania Superior.
Porto Rico.
Texas.
Texas Civil Appeals.
Utah.
Virginia.
Wisconsin.

This report is very gratifying, inasmuch as it shows that we can now continue 47 sets of reports in the buckram or cloth binding.

Publishers generally and the majority of law librarians have realized the superior qualities of the buckram binding, and the reason it has not been used more extensively by publishers is due to two causes. First, it is difficult to persuade the lawyer who has built up a library of sheep bound books to buy them bound in any other material.

The second objection is the various grades and colors of buckram that have been used. We can all go to our shelves and pick out books bound in light yellow, dark yellow, grey, brown, and even red. What we need now is to have the publishers agree on a standard grade of buckram in a color that will correspond as nearly as possible with our sheep bound books.

The best sheep bound books rarely last over seven years, whereas the buckram bound books last indefinitely. Owing to the extremely large bills for rebinding which have been a continual drain on the law libraries during the last few years, the American Association of Law Libraries felt it their duty to take some action in this matter, and in inducing so many publishers to use the buckram binding they have conferred a favor not only upon all the law libraries, but upon the entire legal profession.

REDUCED RATES FOR MERCHANTS TO NEW YORK.

This season's merchants' reduced rates, a fare and one-half for the round trip, effective under the certificate plan, will apply to New York City from the territories of the Western Passenger Association and the Southwestern Excursion Bureau. These rates have been arranged by the Merchants' Association of New York. The first-named section extends west of the Mississippi River to Denver, north of St. Louis, Mo. The Southwestern territory consists of the States of Arkansas, Oklahoma, Texas, and that part of Missouri south of the Missouri River.

On the initiative of the Rock Island-Frisco lines, the rate has been granted by practically all the railroads in the West and the Southwest. That system authorized merchants' rates to trade centres on specific dates. The other roads took similar action to meet the competition. August 1st to 5th, inclusive, with a return limit to August 30th, was the first series of dates announced for New York City.

A second series of dates, August 15th-19th, inclusive, with final return limit to September 13th, is now being arranged from the jurisdiction of the Western Passenger Association and the Southwestern Excursion Bureau. The Rock Island-Frisco system has given notice that it would make the rates on those dates. It is probable, therefore, that the other lines in the respective territories, list of which is given below, will also make the same concession.

The Merchants' Association of New York will send to the retail merchants in Arkansas, Colorado, Iowa, Kansas, Minnesota, Missouri, Nebraska, North Dakota, Oklahoma, South Dakota, New Mexico, Texas, Wisconsin, and the northern part of Illinois, circulars giving full particulars as to the dates, rates, conditions, etc. Local ticket agents in the territory will also be able to supply detailed information.

The following railroads in the West and Southwest are participating in these reduced fares:

WESTERN PASSENGER ASSOCIATION TERRITORY.

Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe, Chicago & Alton, Chicago & Eastern Illinois, Chicago & Northwestern, Chicago, Burlington & Quincy, Chicago, Great Western, Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul, Chicago, Peoria & St. Louis, Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific, Chicago, St. Paul, Minneapolis & Omaha, Colorado & Southern, Denver & Rio Grande, Illinois Central, Iowa Central, Minneapolis & St. Louis, Missouri, Kansas & Texas, Missouri Pacific, Quincy, Omaha & Kansas City, St. Joseph & Grand Island, St. Louis & San Francisco, Union Pacific, Wabash and Wisconsin Central.

SOUTHWESTERN EXCURSION BUREAU TERRITORY.

Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe, Chicago, Rock Island & Gulf, Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific, Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific, (Chic. Dist.,) El Paso & South Western System, Fort Worth & Denver City, Fort Worth & Rio Grande, Gulf, Colorado & Santa Fe, Galveston, Harrisburg & San Antonio, Houston & Texas Central, Houston, East & West Texas, International and Great Northern, Kansas City, Clinton & Springfield, Kansas City Southern, Kansas City, Mexico & Orient, Missouri, Kansas & Texas, Missouri, Kansas & Texas Ry. of Texas, Missouri Pacific—Iron Mountain System, St. Louis & San Francisco, St. Louis, San Francisco & Texas, St. Louis, Southwestern, St. Louis, Southwestern Ry. of Texas, Texas & Brazos Valley, Texas & New Orleans and Texas Midland.

The dates for purchasing tickets are August 15 to 19, inclusive, the passenger being required to leave New York City on the return trip so as to reach original starting point not later than midnight on September 13. On arrival in New York certificates are to be deposited at the offices of the Merchants' Association, 66 Lafayette Street, (formerly Elm Street,) one block north of Worth Street Subway Station. On being identified the return trip certificate will be countersigned and viséd, making it good for one-half the return fare.

OBITUARY NOTES.

JOHN LAVERTY, a well-known commercial traveller, died suddenly at his home, 136 Madison Street, Brooklyn, N. Y., July 30. Though under the doctor's care more or less since last October, and "out of harness," Laverty was confined to his house only a short time. Indeed, the day before his death he joined his family in an outing to Coney Island. On the day of his death he dined as usual with his family. After dinner he went to his room to rest. A little later he was found lifeless in a chair, death apparently having come almost instantly after he reached his room. Laverty was born in New York City, in 1852. After leaving school he obtained employment with Cassell, Petter & Galpin, afterward Cassell & Co., and later the Cassell Publishing Company, working his way up to the position of traveller, his associates being Welsh and Turner. In 1895, when the American corporation of Cassell Publishing Company failed, Laverty joined the travelling force of A. L. Burt & Co. He covered the territory from Bangor, Me., to the Pacific Coast, mostly in the northern part of the country. He came home from his New England trip about the last of October, 1907, and then determined to rest for a time. Unable to gain strength enough to resume his trips, he resigned his position in hopes that as milder weather would set in his complete recovery would be assured. Mr. Laverfty was loved and respected by all with whom he came into contact. He stood well with his firm because of his conscientious work; he was well liked by his customers, who regarded him as their friend and councillor, many refusing to make purchases until he had come along to show them what he had to offer; and he was esteemed by his colleagues as a man who was to be depended upon under all circumstances. Mr. Macrae, of E. P. Dutton & Co., who knew Laverty intimately, on learning of his death, wrote to his widow: "Personally, I knew your husband to be a man of rare integrity—and of great kindliness of heart. Rarely have I met in life a man so broad and kind and charitable to his fellow-men." Mr. Laverty was one of the charter members of The Booksellers' League, and a member of Bethel Lodge, No. 733, F. and A. M., under whose auspices the funeral service was conducted.

MISS KATHARINE PRESCOTT WORMELEY, who has been best known for her excellent translations from the French, in which field she had been a prolific worker, died August 3 at Jackson, N. H. Miss Wormeley was born in Ipswich, England, January 14, 1830, and was a daughter of Ralph Randolph Wormeley, a Virginian by birth, who became rear-admiral in the English navy, and Caroline Preble Wormeley, a niece of Commodore Edward Preble, founder of the United States Navy. Miss Wormeley came to the United States in girlhood with her sister, Elizabeth Wormeley Latimer, a distinguished author. She took an active interest in the relief of Union soldiers during the war between the States, and at that time she was connected with the United States Sanitary Commission. She wrote a book on the work of the commission in 1863, and also wrote a "Life of Balzac" in 1890, and "The Cruel Side of the War" in 1899. She made the following translations: "Works of Honoré de Balzac," forty volumes, 1883-1897; Molière, six volumes, 1892; "Duc de Saint-Simon," "Versailles Historical Memoirs," twenty volumes, 1898-1901; Daudet's "Tartarin," two volumes, and "Kings in Exile," two volumes, in 1899. Her sister, Elizabeth Wormeley Latimer, who died in 1904, was eight years her senior. Mrs. Latimer published many novels and modern historical works, and until the death of her husband, in 1856, wrote frequently for the magazines. A younger sister, Mrs. Ariane Randolph Wormeley Curtis, wrote "The Coming Woman, or, the Spirit of '76," a parlor play, which had considerable vogue in its day. The three sisters were the joint authors of "Recollections of Ralph Randolph Wormeley, Rear Admiral, R. N., Written Down by His Three Daughters," which was published in 1879.

BRONSON HOWARD, the dean of American dramatists, died on August 4 at the Avon Inn, at Avon-by-the-Sea, N. J. Mr. Howard was born in Detroit, Mich., October 17, 1842, and was educated at Russell's Institute, near New Haven, Conn. It had been his intention to enter Yale, but owing to trouble with his eyes he decided upon a journalistic career. Coming to New York City, he was engaged on various papers for several years, and eventually drifted to London, where he wrote for the Pall Mall Gazette. In 1864 he brought out his first play, "Fantine," founded on Victor Hugo's "Les Miserables." In 1879 Daly brought out his "Saratoga," which made a fortune for Howard and his manager. This was followed by "Diamonds," "Moorcroft," "The Banker's Daughter," "Old Love Letters," "Hurricanes," "Wives," "The Young Mrs. Winthrop," "One of Our Girls," "Aristocracy," "Shenandoah," from which Howard is said to have realized $200,000 alone; "Baron Rudolph," "Met by Chance," "The Henrietta" and "Peter Stuyvesant," the last of which was the joint work of Mr. Howard and Brander Matthews. He founded the American Dramatists Club, and was its first president. He was also prominent in the struggle to obtain proper protection for dramatic copyright.

WILLIAM POTTS, well known in social reform circles, died on July 29 at Philadelphia, where he was born on May 5, 1838. After passing through the schools he was engaged in the insurance and banking business, but early devoted himself to guild and settlement work and political and social reform. He was an officer of a number of societies, including the position of chief examiner for the New York State Civil Service Commission. He was the author of "Noblesse Oblige," "Evolution of Vegetable Life," "Evolution and Social Reform," "The Socialistic Method," "Form and Color in Nature," "The Monetary Problem," "From a New England Hillside" and "More Notes from Underledge." He compiled "Statistics of Societies," and the list of "Publications of Societies" issued by the Office of THE PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY.

SAMUEL ERASMUS MOFFETT, a well-known journalist, one of the editors of Collier's Weekly, was drowned on August 1, while bathing in the surf at Normandie-by-the-Sea. Mr. Moffett was born in St. Louis, Mo., November 5, 1860. His mother was Pamela A. Clemens, a sister of "Mark Twain." He began his journalistic career on the San Francisco Post. After that he was associated with the San Francisco Examiner, and the New York Journal and World. From 1891-1893 he was managing editor of The Cosmopolitan Magazine, and since 1904 he has been connected with Collier's. He was author of "The Tariff—What it is and What it Does," "Chapters on Silver" and "Suggestions on Government."

GEORGE A. RAISBECK, president of the Philip Hake Manufacturing Company of New York City, with his wife, lost their lives on July 27, in Lake Sylvia, Minn. It is thought that Mrs. Raisbeck, while out boating with her husband, fell dead of heart disease into the lake, and that the husband, in trying to recover her body, was drowned.

NOTES ON AUTHORS.

MISS ANNA MCCLURE SHOLL, whose third novel, "The Greater Love," has just been published, is a niece of the distinguished Browning scholar and friend of Browning, Dr. Hiram Corson, who for over thirty years filled the chair of English Literature in Cornell University.

REX BEACH, the novelist, who has just reached Seattle, Wash., from a bear-hunting trip in Alaska, is confined in a local hospital under the care of an eye specialist with a serious attack of iritis, which, it is feared, may result in permanent loss of sight. The affliction resulted from exposure while hunting in the Copper River country.

"THE GENTLEMAN" is the title of a forthcoming romance of the sea by Alfred Ollivant, author of "Bob, Son of Battle." The story, it is said, deals with an attempt by Napoleon to kidnap Nelson during the admiral's visit to England. The "Gentleman" of the story, Napoleon's agent in the attempt, is an Irishman, a soldier, a poet and a peer. The book is described as "an epic of imperialism."

RICHARD WATSON GILDER, who may be called the foremost American poet of to-day, has had conferred upon him by France the Order of the Chevalier of the Legion of Honor. This is a well-deserved compliment, for Mr. Gilder has combined practical service in civic reform with the writing of verse that goes to the heart of city misrule and evil. The first complete edition of Mr. Gilder's poems will be published by Houghton-Mifflin Company in October.

JOURNALISTIC NOTES.

The Franklin Printer is the title of a new monthly magazine devoted to the interests of the Western Master Printers' Association, whose official organ it is, and to the advancement of the printing craft in general. The first issue, dated July, contains an account of the Western Master Printers' Association, with portraits of its officers, also articles of interest to printers on estimates, advertising, cover designs, reciprocity, etc., trade notes and other departments. The subscription price is one dollar a year, and the publishers are The Franklin Association, 150 Pine Street, San Francisco, Cal.

THE GRAFTON PRESS, New York City, has just brought out the first issue of The Grafton Magazine of History and Genealogy, a quarterly periodical. The contents include the address on "The Society of the Cincinnati and its Future," delivered by Charles B. Alexander, of the Pennsylvania Society, before the Rhode Island Society June 4, 1908; an interesting article on "Ideal Newport of the Eighteenth Century," by William B. Weeden, of Providence, whose work as an historical writer is already widely known; "The Strange Story of Roger Williams," by Edmund J. Carpenter, of Milton, Mass., who has made a special study of Roger Williams; also, "The Ancient Stirlings of Cadder, Sherriffs of Sterling, and Some Others," by Albert M. Sterling, the author of "The Sterling Family History," now in process of printing. Miss Catherine V. C. Mathews's story of "Andrew Ellicott, an Astronomer, Surveyor and Soldier of a Hundred Years Ago," supplements very entertainingly some of the features in "Ellicott's Life and Letters" which has recently been published under her editorship. In the genealogical department is an interesting account of the first two immigrants of the Jewett family, and shows their connection with England.

BUSINESS NOTES.

BOSTON, MASS.—The Students' Law Book Exchange has been removed to 8 Pemberton Square and will hereafter be conducted by its proprietor, G. A. Jackson, under his own name, the business having increased along much broader lines so that its original name has become rather misleading.

CHICAGO, ILL.—George M. Beckwith has opened up a bookstore at 268 East Thirty-fifth Street.

CHICAGO, ILL.—The L. W. Walker Company have succeeded to the publishing business of the Monarch Book Company at 123 Plymouth Court.

GREAT FALLS, MONT.—B. W. Porter & Co., in order to give more attention to their book and stationery departments, have disposed of their drug business.

HONOLULU, T. H.—E. Herrick Brown & Co., who recently bought out the W. C. Lyon Co., Ltd., have purchased the miscellaneous book department of the Hawaiian Board Book Rooms, and occupy the entire ground floor of the Hawaaian Board Building. Mr. Brown, as already noted, continues as manager of the Hawaiian Board Religious Book Department, which occupies the second floor of the building.

NEW YORK CITY.—Through a fire that broke out in the night of August 4, in the upper floors of the building at Nos. 14 and 16 West Thirty-third Street, causing a damage of about $50,000, Dyrsen & Pfeiffer, importers of and dealers in foreign books, who occupy one of the stores on the ground floor, sustained considerable loss through water and smoke.

SAN FERNANDO, CAL.—The Crosby Book Company has succeeded to the book business of F. H. Crosby.

SAN FRANCISCO, CAL.—Paul Elder & Co. and A. M. Robertson, according to the San Francisco correspondent of The Bookseller, Newsdealer and Stationer, have decided to make their permanent downtown locations on Grant Avenue, near the new fine building of Raphael Weill & Co. This, it seems, has been determined upon as the centre of the best shopping district of the city in the future."

SAN FRANCISCO, CAL.—M. H. Fay, bookseller, has removed to 1239 Van Ness Avenue.

SAN FRANCISCO, CAL.—R. J. Machen, a dealer in subscription books, has recently purchased the book business of J. D. Blake at 654 Market Street.

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

As a result of a strike order more than 2200 employees of the International Paper Company were thrown out of employment on August 3 by the closing down of mills in Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont and New York.

ALBERT T. HUNTINGTON, 1265 Bedford Avenue, Brooklyn, N. Y., has just ready a helpful book for young mothers, entitled "The Baby, its care and development," by Dr. Le Grand Kerr, a well-known authority on the diseases of children.

J. F. MEEHAN, the bookseller of Bath, Eng., has contributed to the Bath Beacon for July an interesting article on Christopher Anstey and his "New Bath Guide," to which Smollett's "Humphrey Clinker" owes much as far as characters and situations are concerned.

WHILE Milton's "Comus" was being performed at Cambridge, Eng., the other day, in honor of his tercentenary, a copy of the work was put up for sale at Sotheby's. It was a copy of the first edition, (1637,) and was bought by Quaritch at £317. Fifty years ago a similar copy fetched £11.

CASSELL & Co. announce a work entitled "Tragic Russia," by Wieslaw Sclavus, translated by the Viscount de Buscancy, written, according to the preface, "from the point of view that such a history as that of Russia is an unanswered argument against despotic power;" also, Clement Shorter's "Napoleon and His Fellow Travellers."

GINN & Co. will publish in the fall a work on "Colonization," by Professor Albert G. Keller, of Yale. It is a study in founding new societies, and includes the less accessible passages of history, omitting from consideration the English and French colonies and the enterprises of those people who have only lately attempted the work of colonization.

PART of the cargo of the steamship Jeanara, which sailed recently from a Brooklyn, N. Y., pier bound for Australia, consisted of five large cases of books, weighing over a ton. The books were all bound volumes of Sewell Ford's "Side Stepping with Shorty," published early in June of this year by Mitchell Kennerley, and the shipment was a response to a cable order from Melbourne.

THE JOHN LANE COMPANY begin this week the publication of their complete limited edition of the works of Anatole France, who is in this country probably the best known and the least read of living French writers. They have selected "The Mother of Pearl" for the initial volume as an especially fitting example of the art of this French master. This volume will be followed by "The Red Lily," "The Garden of Epicurus," and other well known novels, essays and biographies during the summer and autumn, until the complete works have been issued.

JOHN C. WINSTON & Co. have just issued a handsome volume entitled "Historic Houses and Gardens," by Charles Francis Osborne, assistant professor of the history of architecture in the University of Pennsylvania, with an introduction by Frank Miles Day, former president of the American Institute of Architects. Separate chapters are devoted to thirty of the world's great houses and gardens, from the Achilleion, on the island of Corfu, to the noted show places in Europe, the East, and to the remains of the "floating gardens of Mexico." The final chapter deals with the gardens and grounds of Mount Vernon, and this is all that America has to show in this compilation.

FLEMING H. REVELL COMPANY have just published two books by Edmond Privat, one, "Esperanto at a Glance," and the other, "Esperanto in Fifty Lessons." Mr. Privat is the Swiss representative of the International Society and is now in this country as ambassador of the new tongue. His success at Chautauqua and other summer assemblies is already most remarkable. He has succeeded in organizing a large and enthusiastic American Esperanto Association which has invited the next International Conference to meet at Chautauqua next year, a rather imposing sum of money being already pledged to guarantee the success of the meeting. They will bring out shortly a 600-page "English-Esperanto Dictionary," by Joseph Rhodes.

THE HILLS & HAFELY CO., 27 East Twenty-second Street, New York City, will issue next week a small but choice line of Jewish New Year cards. It consists of 14 designs to retail at five cents, 12 designs to retail at ten cents, and 5 designs to retail at twenty-five cents. The five-cent series comprises folders and leaflets. The ten-cent series are leaflets with handsomely embellished parchment and board covers. The twenty-five-cent series are dainty booklets with ornate covers, hand-painted, inlaid with mother-of-pearl, etc., and tied with silk cord or silk ribbon. These cards appeal to society trade; the designs are seasonable and the mottos and greetings are appropriate. The editions which have been prepared are very limited. Jewish New Year this season falls on September 26, and dealers, in order to secure supplies, should place their orders without delay.

HENRY CAREY BAIRD, 810 Walnut Street, Philadelphia, has written and published for free distribution two tracts, entitled respectively "American and English Banking Contrasted, an issue for Mr. Carnegie, together with an Attempt to Explain the Very Simple Cause of the New York City Bank Crisis of 1907," and "'Fiat', the Sign and Token of Real Money Mexico's Fatal Blunder: the Gold Standard." These pamphlets are part of the result of close on to fifty years of study of economic studies. Whether one agrees with Mr. Baird or not, it is always a pleasure to read what he has to say, because he says it all in such an original way and in such incisive language. Although Mr. Baird will be eighty-three years old on the 10th of September next, his hand has lost none of its cunning and he is just as earnest in laboring for the amelioration of the condition of mankind and in the uplifting of his native land as he was half a century ago.

HENRY ALTEMUS COMPANY has just brought out an interesting book, entitled "How to Dress a Doll," by Mary H. Morgan, an experienced teacher of sewing, who knows every difficulty likely to beset little needlewomen. Her aim has been to overcome these difficulties by explaining every process so fully and clearly that even her youngest reader can understand. Frequent reference to a profusion of pictures, diagrams and patterns goes still further toward the simplification of the text. This book is far more than a mere guide to doll dressmaking. It is, in addition, a complete manual of plain sewing. The opening chapters, after giving a multitude of useful hints in regard to sewing in general, tell the child how to thread her needle, how to hold her scissors, how to sit, how to cut out patterns, how to use the thimble, and a thousand little details, which, though commonplace to the expert needlewoman, are Greek to the little beginner.

LONGMANS, GREEN & CO. have in preparation "The Journal of Elizabeth, Lady Holland," (1770-1845,) in two volumes, edited by the Earl of Ilchester; "Some Papers of John Francis, Twelfth Lord Arundell of Wardour," a Count of the Holy Roman Empire, etc., extracted from the manuscript collection of essays and speeches written and delivered by him, with a preface by the Lady Dowager Arundell; "Henry Stuart, Cardinal of York, and His Times," by Alice Shield, with a preface by Andrew Lang; "Sir George Mackenzie, the King's Advocate, (Bludy Mackenzie,) 1636-1691," the first and perhaps the last Jacobite Socialist, by Andrew Lang; "Historical Letters and Memoirs of Scottish Catholics, 1625-1793," in two volumes, by the Rev. W. Forbes-Leith; "Thomas Ken and Izaak Walton," a sketch of their lives and family connection, by E. Marston, "the Amateur Angler," formerly of the firm of Sampson Low, Marston & Co.

HOUGHTON MIFFLIN COMPANY have in preparation for the fall a number of attractive books for young people. Among these are "Mad Anthony's Young Scout," by Everett T. Tomlinson, a Revolutionary story of Philadelphia and Valley Forge; "The Quest Flower," by Clara Louise Burnham, the story of what a winning young girl accomplishes through Christian Science, with illustrations in color by Anna M. Upjohn; "The New Boy," a story of American school life, by Arthur Stanwood Pier; "American Hero Stories," the stories of all the famous American heroes from Columbus to Lincoln, by Eva March Tappan, who will also furnish "Letters from Colonial Children," showing pioneer life from the child's point of view, and "The Chaucer Story Book," in which some of the ever-popular Canterbury tales are retold for young readers; "The Story of a Wireless Telegraph Boy," by John Trowbridge, dealing with the escape of a young revolutionist from Russia; "The Moons of Balbanca," by Mrs. M. E. M. Davis, a story of the doings of some children of the old French quarter of New Orleans; "The Tortoise and the Goose, and other fables of Bidpai," by Maude B. Dutton, some of the most famous Oriental fables rewritten for young readers, with striking illustrations by E. Boyd Smith; also, a new illustrated edition of "When the King Came," by George Hodges. All the volumes, even when not so mentioned, will have illustrations. They are also preparing for children the following volumes of poetry: "The Children's Longfellow," a collection of all the poems which have made Longfellow's name so dear to every child, with illustrations; "The Book of the Little Past," by Josephine Preston Peabody, a collection of charming verses for and about children, with characteristic drawings in color by Elizabeth Shippen Green; also, "Fresh Posies," by Abbie Farwell Brown, with illustrations by Anna M. Upjohn. One of the more important novels that Houghton Mifflin Company are planning to bring out early in the fall is the new story by Mary Johnston, author of "To Have and to Hold," etc., which presents a vivid picture of the exciting early years of the last century—of Jefferson, Alexander Hamilton and Aaron Burr, with old Virginia, with its stately homes, its beautiful women and romantic ideals as a background. It will have a number of illustrations by F. C. Yohn, reproduced in colors. The other story is "The Leaven of Love," by Clara Louise Burnham, the scene of which is at one of the famous winter resorts of Southern California, the plot having to do with the reconciliation of a charming but overwrought woman with her husband, a famous Boston organist. The book will have a frontispiece and cover portrait in color by Harrison Fisher.

TERMS OF ADVERTISING.

Under the heading "Books Wanted" book-trade subscribers are given the privilege of a free advertisement for books out of print of five nonpareil lines, exclusive of address, in any issue except special numbers, to an extent not exceeding 100 lines a year. If more than five lines are sent, the excess is at 10 cents a line, and amount should be inclosed. Bids for current books and such as may be easily had from the publishers, and repeated matter, as well as all advertisements from non-subscribers, must be paid for at the rate of 10 cents a line.

Under the heading "Books for Sale," the charge to subscribers and non-subscribers is 10 cents a nonpareil line for each insertion. No reduction for repeated matter.

All other small undisplayed advertisements will be charged at the uniform rate of 10 cents a nonpareil line. Eight words may be reckoned to the line.

Parties with whom we have no account must pay in advance, otherwise no notice will be taken of their Communications.

BOOKS WANTED.

☞ In answering, please state edition, condition, and price, including postage or express charges.

Houses that are willing to deal exclusively on a cash-on-delivery basis will find it to their advantage to put after their firm-name the word [Cash.]

☞ Write your wants plainly, and on one side of the sheet only. Illegibly-written "wants" will be considered as not having been received. The "Publishers' Weekly" does not hold itself responsible for errors.

It should be understood that the appearance of advertisements in this column, or elsewhere in the "Publishers' Weekly," does not furnish a guarantee of credit. While it is endeavored to safeguard these columns by withdrawing the privilege of their use from advertisers who are not "good pay" booksellers should take the usual precautions, as to advertisers not known to them, that they would take in making sales to any unknown parties.

THE CLIQUE

(ESTABLISHED 1890)

The Recognized Organ of the Second-Hand Book Trade

THE CLIQUE is read by every bookseller who deals in old books in Great Britain, and by many in the United States and on the Continent.

THE CLIQUE advertises for about 4000 books every week; books which are wanted by its Members, and for which they are willing to pay a fair price.

THE CLIQUE is issued to booksellers only, its motto being "The Trade for THE TRADE." Booksellers can therefore report to our advertisers in confidence that they will not be "cut" by amateur dealers, who are not obliged to make their living by selling books.

THE CLIQUE is the best medium for all advertisements which appeal to booksellers, and its rates are lower than those of any tradepaper in the world.

SUBSCRIPTION 6s 6d ($1 50) per annum, post free; but as all subscriptions terminate in December subscribers may deduct 1½d (three half-pence) for each week of the year that has passed.

Author of "A Little Cook Book," "Saturday Mornings," etc.

A MOST valuable volume of practical hints to young people, enabling those beginning housekeeping on small means to so arrange their living expenses as to realize the best results and make both ends meet, even in these times of inordinately high prices. The author has contributed many effective articles on household economics and kindred subjects to Good Housekeeping and other magazines, and her suggestions are unquestionably most acceptable and useful. Like all other of her Housekeeping Works, it is soundly and convincingly practical.

A list of the subjects treated includes :

I. At the Very Beginning—Dividing the income ; II. Saving for Staples—The Kitchen—Buying—Linen ; III. Arranging the Meals—Cooking—Dresses—The Table—The Dinner ; IV. Soups and Meats ; V. Vegetables, Salads, Desserts ; VI. Breakfast, Luncheon, Supper—Odds and Ends ; VII. The Emergency Closet—Winter Preserves—Cake ; VIII. The Game of Menus ; IX. Two Dinner Parties ; X. Reducing Expenses ; XI. Luncheons for a Little ; XII. In the Country ; XIII. Midsummer Housekeeping—The End of the Holiday.

THE RED LILY
MOTHER OF PEARL
THE GARDEN OF EPICURUS
THE CRIME OF SYLVESTRE BONNARD

(Lafcadio Hearn's Exquisite Version)

During the autumn and next year the remaining volumes will follow, including the monumental study of Joan of Arc, probably the most discussed book in the world of letters to-day.

FORMAT.—These great novels will not be issued in the usual form of current fiction, but will be octavo in form, printed on a special light-weight paper with wide margins, bound in red and gold, gilt top, end papers from designs by Beardsley, initials by Ospovat.

PRICE—The series will be issued at $2 per volume, excepting the Joan of Arc (in two volumes) at $8 net.

"I have sought truth strenuously. I have met her boldly."
—ANATOLE FRANCE.

His work is illuminated with style, scholarship and psychology; but its unique feature is the lambent wit, the gay mockery, the genial irony with which he touches every subject he treats. But the wit is never malicious, the mockery never derisive, the irony never barbed.

would you not distribute before publication day the return order post card, handsomely printed in colors, which we will supply on application, and place a liberal advance order for the book?

On August 29th, we will make an announcement on the front page of The Publishers' Weekly, which will show you why we believe that The Masquerader's successor will be a big seller.

SOMETHING ABOUT THE NEW NOVEL

By a series of brilliant novels, beginning with "The Circle," Katherine Cecil Thurston has made herself one of the most popular novelists both in Great Britain and in the United States. In characterization, in dramatic power and in the brilliancy of story-telling "The Fly on the Wheel" is as good a story as Mrs. Thurston has ever written. The hero, strong, self-willed, successful, but bound down in a routine from which he is helpless to escape; and the heroine, young, eager, impulsive, vibrant, interest you at once. The story increases in interest and strength as it moves along, and ends in a climax of intense dramatic power.

NOTES IN SEASON.

CHARLES SCRIBNER'S SONS will publish on August 29 a new novel by F. Hopkinson Smith, entitled "Peter, a novel of which he is not the hero." It is a genial optimistic story of love and business in the present, exciting, but wholesome nevertheless. There are several illustrations.

PUBLICATION of Miss Adeline Knapp's novel of Arizona life, "The Well in the Desert," has been postponed by the Century Company till late August. The author herself characterizes the book as "the merest attempt to touch the spiritual drama," which "has come to interest me immensely."

THE REILLY & BRITTON COMPANY will bring out on September 1 a novel entitled "A Little Brother of the Rich." The author, whose name will be announced later, is said to be a man of social, financial and political position. The publishers will send an advance copy free to any bookseller who wishes to inform himself of the character of the book.

THE MCCLURE COMPANY will publish on the 19th inst. "The Riverman," a novel by Stewart Edward White, author of "Arizona Nights," etc. "The Riverman" is described as being the logical successor to "The Blazed Trail," a story of the lumber camps in the great forests of Northern Michigan, following the lumber in its travels down the rivers to the mills.

THE BOBBS-MERRILL COMPANY have just ready a novel by Mary Roberts Rinehart, entitled "The Circular Staircase." It is a detective story, a novel of mystery, that is described as being worthy "a place beside Conan Doyle and Anna Katherine Green." Its author has been a regular contributor to the magazines, but this is her first venture as a writer of a long novel. The book has been illustrated by Lester Ralph.

DUFFIELD & CO. will bring out on the 22d inst. "The Sword of Dundee," a story of the time of "Bonnie Prince Charlie," by Theodora Peck, whose "Hester of the Grants" had a large sale for a first book. They will publish on the 29th inst. an edition of Lewis Carroll's "Alice in Wonderland," with pictures in colors by Millicent Sowerby; "Childhood," verses and pictures by Millicent and Githa Sowerby, with twelve full-page pictures in colors, which, by English critics, have been described as a blend of Kate Greenaway and Boutet de Monvel; also, "Bumbletoes," by the Sowerby sisters, a gay little fairy tale with bright pictures in colors.

THE REID PUBLISHING COMPANY, 30 Huntington Avenue, Boston, have just ready a novel entitled "The Realm of Light," by Frank Hatfield, describing the experiences of two Chicago business men who are persuaded by an old Hungarian to go with him into the heart of Africa on a voyage of discovery. After months of hardship they reach a mountain, the summit of which they scale by an almost superhuman effort. There they find a people—a race of giants—who for thousands of years have lived a life free from self-seeking—in fact, the ideal life. Since our year one they had controlled the solar energy and made it subservient to their needs; had constructed telescopes that brought the moon and planets within the range of intelligent perception and had achieved other miraculous things. The book abounds in romance and food for thought and discussion for the reader who can read between the lines. They have also just ready the tenth thousand of "Paul Anthon Christian," by Hiram W. Hayes, which will appeal to those interested in Christian Healing.

Author is member of American Society of Inspectors of Plumbing and Sanitary Engineers, member Royal Sanitary Institute of Great Britain, etc., etc. The book includes Constructing the house sewer, The house drain, Materials for the house drain, Installing the house drain, The installation of rain leaders.

Amundsen, Captain Roald. The Northwest Passage: being the record of a voyage of exploration of the ship "Gjoa" in the years 1903-07; [with a supplement by Lieut. Hansen.] 2 v. N. Y., Dutton, 1908. il. maps, O. cl., *$8 net.

The accomplishment of a voyage from the Atlantic to the Pacific along the northern coast of the American continent—the dream of explorers for nearly four hundred years—is in itself enough to give vital interest to these volumes. The work has scientific value as well, on account of the investigation of magnetic conditions around the north magnetic pole carried on by Captain Amundsen and his men, and ethnological importance through the new information given on the subject of the Eskimo. But what will probably appeal most fully to the readers is the day to day record of a few brave men penetrating icy straits and uncharted seas, the story of their life among the friendly Eskimos, and their final success after more than three years of dangers and triumphs. Lieut. Hansen gives the record of his sledge expedition to Victoria Land in the spring of 1905.

Ayscough, J:, (pseud.) Marotz. N. Y., Putnam, 1908. 415 p. D. cl., †$1.50.

A story of Sicily at the time when Victor Emanuel ruled Italy and Pope Leo XIII. led his world-embracing life within the limits of the Vatican. Marotz is the "daughter of a hundred earls." She is a spiritual nature. Five months of her convent life are described in detail; also her inspiring meeting with Pope Leo XIII. when she attended his private mass. Between forty and fifty characters play their parts in the life of Marotz, who becomes the mother of an inspired young priest. It is said a military officer writes over the above pen name.

Author is fellow of Magdalen College, Oxford, and honorary member of the English, French and Italian Alpine Clubs. He writes from an experience of over forty years' wandering through the Alps. The early chapters treat of the mountains on the physical side—their pastures, glaciers, flowers, beasts and birds. Later chapters describe the diverse people dwelling in the Alps, and the explorers and guides who have penetrated their recesses. In the closing chapter the Alps are considered in detail, as forming twenty groups with diverse characteristic features.

Oklahoma is the scene. Two young girls from New England are there as teachers in the Indian schools in the early '80's. One succumbs to the conditions and meets an early death. The elder, wilful, daring, fearless and beautiful, is a force among both the whites and the Indians. A young Indian crosses her path and almost wins her, but the sheriff of the county, a man with a history, conquers her wild nature. Both love truly, both forgive and forget, and the end is satisfying.

The author of "The centainty of a future life in Mars" and "A woman of the ice age" again indulges his imagination to picture what would happen if the Isthmus of Panama sank into the sea and the Gulf stream of the Atlantic ocean flowed into the Pacific. He pictures the changes of geology, climate, physical and political geography that would result throughout the world. England would be too cold to live in and its evacuation organized by King Edward VII. is described. The king reaches Australasia and finds himself again king "by popular vote." Under this ingenious skit the author shows his knowledge of science and contemporary human problems.

The title is taken from a poem of Swinburne's. When the heroine, Amy Steevens, first appears she had been for years a rolling stone. She had assisted in a dressmaker's shop and in a typewriting establishment; had been secretary to an author and companion to an idle lady abroad; had been on the stage, to Russia with conspirators and on a battlefield in South Africa and in the hospitals afterwards. She was efficient under every combination of circumstances. She becomes housekeeper for an English authoress with an abnormally clever daughter of twelve and a husband who proves Amy's fate. An enlargement and adaptation of "Revised normal lessons," which was itself a revision of "Outline normal lessons." The reason for another revision is that the International Teacher-Training Committee have established a standard for obtaining their diploma, and it became desirable to prepare a new edition of lessons fully conformed to that standard. The book presents a general view of the most important subjects necessary to a knowledge of the Bible and of Sunday-school work.

The Publishers' Weekly.

FOUNDED BY F. LEYPOLDT.

AUGUST 15, 1908.

The editor does not hold himself responsible for the views expressed in contributed articles or communications.

All matter for advertising pages should reach this office not later than Wednesday noon, to insure insertion in the same week's issue.

Publishers are requested to furnish title-page proofs and advance information of books forthcoming, both for entry in the lists and for descriptive mention. An early copy of each book published should be forwarded, as it is of the utmost importance that the entries of books be made as promptly and as perfectly as possible. In many cases booksellers and librarians depend on the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY solely for their information. The Record of New Publications of the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY is the material of the "American Catalog," and so forms the basis of trade bibliography in the United States.

"I hold every man a debtor to his profession, from the which, as men do of course seek to receive countenance and profit, so ought they of duty to endeavor themselves by way of amends to be a help and an ornament thereunto."—LORD BACON.

THE AMERICAN PUBLISHERS' ASSOCIATION.

THE withdrawals from the American Publishers' Association indicated in our issue for July 18 as contemplated, have amounted to about one-quarter of the active membership of the Association—the more important withdrawals being those of houses engaged in the school-book business which feared that their membership might be used against them in Texas and other states. It would be unfortunate if these withdrawals should be construed as an admission on the part of the withdrawing members that the American Publishers' Association is an illegal body, or contrary to public policy. As we understand their position, the withdrawals are not because of this view, but because public sentiment in some of the Southern and Western states against trusts has been worked up to such a point that it has become regardless of actual facts or legal questions and is ready to seize upon any pretext to "hit the heads" in sight.

As we have already indicated, the remaining membership in the American Publishers' Association hopes to continue the organization and its good work despite these withdrawals, either on the present basis or by some reorganization which will avoid possible criticism while accomplishing satisfactory results. Whether there will be any change in the form of organization, or in what direction such change should be, will scarcely be decided during the vacation season, or until early fall, when more careful attention can be given to the matter by the houses chiefly concerned. We can at this writing say only that there is a strong feeling on the part of many publishers, as well as among the great body of booksellers, that to leave the publishing trade without an organization would be a serious disaster to the entire book-trade.

The American Publishers' Association at the start inadvertently made some mistakes in methods, particularly as to the treatment of non-copyright books; but the effects of the legal decisions against it have been exaggerated by the undersellers chiefly concerned. On the whole, it has given to the publishing trade an esprit du corps which otherwise it would have lacked, and has been of real service to all concerned in publishing and selling books. That a calling which should rank among the first of all should be without any kind of trade organization would make it almost a unique exception in this day of commercial associations and general organizations.

In the meantime, the American Booksellers' Association has no unimportant part to play in relation to the trade and the betterment of its methods. We have never advised anything like a boycott of the publishers who did not conform to the best trade methods or meet the views of the booksellers' organization. The public has some right to expect that on the bookseller's counter it shall see the new books without reference to questions of trade methods. But the bookseller is, from the commercial point of view, not justified in stocking up largely or pushing liberally, books which he knows are exploited chiefly through underselling, so that, as regards these, he is not on a basis of fair competition. It is therefore quite right for him, in the case of competing lines of books not of distinctive individuality to push those lines on which he knows he is fairly protected. Membership in the American Publishers' Association has indicated to him that books bearing the imprint of its members would not be pushed through underselling methods, so far as the individual member could keep control, and this has been an important point.

The early organizations of the American booktrade were based on a comprehensive scheme in which the publishers and the booksellers joined. There have been certain advantages in separate associations, conferring and co-operating with each other, and it is probably best for the general interests of the members that both associations should be continued as separate organizations.

It is to be hoped that the withdrawals of some of the members of the American Publishers' Association may not be permanent, especially if a satisfactory change of plan of continuing the organization can be devised; but in the present or some other shape, the organization should be continued without further loss of strength, and we trust the present situation may not prove discouraging to those who express their intention of remaining loyal to the Association as the best means of promoting the interests of the whole trade.

THE WAR ON PORNOGRAPHIC WORK.

THE proceedings of the first International Anti-pornographic Congress, held in Paris on May 21 and 22, just brought out,* notes that there were represented at the congress eighty-six societies organized for the suppression of indecent books and pictures. Among these France was represented by 42 societies; Germany by 14; Holland by 5; Hungary by 7; Italy by 8; Switzerland by 5; Belgium by 2, and England, Denmark and Norway by one each.

In the United States there are at least a dozen societies, chiefly in the larger cities, prominent among which are the Society for the Prevention of Crime in New York City, and the Law and Order Society in Boston.

According to the report of the congress, Belgium, which for years has been in ill-repute for its enormous production of so-called facetiæ, has practically exterminated this class of work by presistent prosecution of the offenders and by practical legislation.

On August 11, the second business day of the National Convention of American Federation of Catholic Societies held in Boston, the subcommittee on social affairs of the Resolutions Committee submitted a partial report, which was adopted. Among the resolutions was the following:

> We earnestly urge Catholics to keep up ceaseless warfare against indecent books, plays, periodicals, pictures, post-cards, billboards, and the like, and we further earnestly urge upon every Catholic society in the United States to demand of prosecuting officials the punishment of all such offenses against public morality.

MUST ALL PRINTED MATTER BEAR THE UNION LABEL?

EITHER some one has tried to play a joke on Mr. Hafeley, of the Hills & Hafeley Company, of New York, or else the Allied Printing Trades Council in Kansas City has been so affected by the heat that its members should be sent to a sanatarium for treatment. A couple of weeks ago the Hills & Hafeley Company sent out 4000 sets of folders giving descriptions and prices of cards, booklets and other novelties which the firm handles. Each of the sets consisted of three folders and a circular letter. They were sent to book and stationery dealers all over the United States. Nineteen of the sets were sent to dealers in Kansas City.

On July 24 the firm received an envelope bearing the Kansas City postmark, and inclosed were three of their folders. Across the front page of each was pasted a pink label bearing this inscription:

> RETURNED
> because of absence of union label.
> DEMAND THIS LABEL
> [here is given the cut of the union label] > on all your printed matter. It represents good workmanship, good wages, and good conditions.
> Allied Printing Trades Council.

There was nothing on the envelope to tell by which of the nineteen dealers the folders were returned, and therefore it is to be presumed that some one has been playing a joke on the American representative of the firm.

The fact of the matter is that these folders and the circular were printed in a union shop in New York City, and the members of the Allied Printing Trades Council could have satisfied themselves of this fact before they undertook to interfere, if they really did interfere, with the business of the firm. Many publishers object for good and sufficient reasons to permit their printers to place their imprint on their printed matter, and a number who patronize union printers object to having their books and other printed matter disfigured, as they call it, with the union label, which is not a work of art to say the least, as they would object to wearing a button or a badge to give evidence that they are in sympathy with union labor.

The firm is taking steps to ascertain whether the Allied Printing Trades Council has combined to take action in holding up advertising matter in this fashion, and if so to bring the matter to the attention of the United States Attorney General in order to secure relief.

WANTS FICTION PROTECTED FOR FIVE YEARS.

E. P. DUTTON & Co. are making a practical protest against the cheap reprints of popular novels by printing or stamping the following upon their orders:

"The order for this book is given with the understanding that no cheap edition shall be issued within five years. Even in such an event we reserve the right to return all unsold copies."

INTERIOR OF BROWNE'S BOOKSTORE, CHICAGO.

A UNIQUE BOOKSTORE.

THE choice of a location for a bookstore is always a matter of concern and perplexity. Given a favorable vicinity, where shall the store be located? If on the main thoroughfare, shall the store be on the corner or nearer to car connections, even if the store must be in the middle of the block, or on a side street near the main thoroughfare? Must the store be on the side of the street that is free of the sun in the afternoon, or may a store in a good location on the sunny side have attractions that will more than balance the advantages of a store in a less favorable location on the shady side of the street? and so on to the end of the chapter. Of course, in most cases the question of rent will decide the choice; but sometimes a more expensive location will outweigh other considerations. But, wherever a bookseller will establish himself, he insists that his store shall be on the "ground floor," in more senses of the word than one.

Occasionally, a dealer in second-hand books, whose business is largely conducted through the mails, has found is more convenient as well as economical to set up his shop in an upper floor of some large business building. Indeed, there are quite a number of these in the larger cities of this country.

Thus far, however, only one dealer in all classes of books has had the courage to locate his store up "in the air," and the credit of being the pioneer in this respect belongs to the Dial Company of Chicago, of which Francis Fisher Browne is president, which, as already noted by us, has located Browne's Bookstore on the seventh floor of the Fine Arts Building on the Michigan Boulevard in Chicago.

It would, perhaps, be rash to say that Browne's Bookstore has set up an example that will be imitated to any extent by booksellers. On the contrary, such a move would likely prove disastrous unless another location could be found that possessed so many of the happy circumstances that conspired to make the Browne undertaking possible. The Fine Arts Building in Chicago seems about the best kind of foundation upon which to build a bookstore, occupied, as it is, by a clientage almost large enough, independently, to support such an institution. In it are housed artists, musicians, some of the leading picture dealers, the arts and crafts people, teachers of foreign languages, book binders, the Western offices of some of the leading Eastern magazines and publishing houses, the cartoonists, certain of the city's best-known clubs, and other interests more or less in touch with literary, art and cultural matters. When one goes down town, providing he is a certain sort of a person, he inevitably goes to the Fine Arts Building. Then, each one of the tenants attracts numbers of others of kindred tastes, and, therefore, as we have said above, a bookseller in such surroundings would have about as good a chance of succeeding as if located in a store on the street.

Having found his location, Mr. Browne, in planning and fitting his bookstore, sought to combine the best features of a well-equipped bookstore with those of a choice home library. Through the co-operation of Frank Lloyd Wright as architect, the interior has been given a beauty and distinction, combined with special provisions for the comfort and convenience of visitors, that make it unique among existing bookstores.

The store, which is accessible by swift elevators that fly from street level to the seventh floor at the rate of several a minute, looks out on the clear waters of Lake Michigan through an atmosphere but slightly smoked and undisturbed by the noise and clatter of the streets. Entering, the visitor loses himself in the low vaulted cloisters whose monastic-like cells are lined with the best books, arranged in the most tempting manner, and, as the Rev. Jenkin Lloyd Jones has said, presently "wonders whether he is not in Florence and looks around for the Fra Angelico frescoes or a Savonarola chair, for there is something in the architecture that suggests San Marco." The space is divided into two rooms. In the larger, there is an arrangement of alcoves along one side; each alcove has its chairs and table and reading light. The shelves extend only part way up the walls, giving the effect of a home library. By a unique system of shelf-lighting, the title of every volume from top shelf to bottom may easily be read, while at the same time the lights are wholly hidden from the eye. The smaller room contains no shelving, but is arranged with cases and tables for the display of fine bindings and special editions. A large fire-place and comfortable easy-chairs give this the appearance of an attractive living-room. Every fixture and every piece of furniture in both rooms has been specially designed and manufactured to order. The cases, tables, chairs, and wall trimmings are of quartered oak throughout.

The book shop has lowered its ceilings, economized its space, and set between every tier of shelves—for the shelves are disposed as in some libraries, at right angles to the wall—a long library table, with dependent reading lamps, high-backed chairs, and every convenience for passing a pleasant afternoon. One is invited to come in and be happy. Clerks who really know something about the books are in evidence, but are scrupulously inattentive. When they are required, they can be summoned. The price of every book is marked in plain figures, and it is unnecessary to ask the cost. Certain afternoons tea is served by clever women. Folk drink and talk, buy books and incite others to do the same. It is unnecessary to say that the scheme of furnishing and decoration is beautiful. Even the oil sketches upon the wall are unusual and charming. The soft oiled wood, the originality of every article in the place, and the air of aloof leisure are vastly inviting.

The firm has prepared an attractive booklet describing its shop in detail with illustrations of its more prominent features, which will be sent free to all who may be interested. We advise every bookseller to avail himself of the opportunity of securing one.

THE U. S. GOVERNMENT AT THE ESPERANTO CONGRESS.

ESPERANTO has been recognized officially by the United States Government in the appointment of Major Paul F. Straub, of the army medical corps, to represent this country in the Fourth International Esperanto Congress, held at Dresden, Saxony, this month—from August 16 to 22. Belgium was the first nation to give its official recognition to this language by sending Lieutenant Cardinal to the third congress, held at Cambridge, England, last August.

The War Department library was the first institution in Washington to recognize the value of Esperanto as an auxiliary language, and it began the accumulation of Esperanto literature in January, 1906. The Washington Esperanto Society was organized in the spring of 1907. Its presidents thus far have been James W. Cheney, librarian of the War Department, and Charles W. Stewart, superintendent of the naval war records and library, both of whom hold certificates given to those who have passed the advanced examination of the British Esperanto Association.

That Esperanto has taken a firm root throughout the world is indicated by the number of groups formed in various countries and the diversity of their scope and composition. Its advocates say Esperanto is destined to become one of the most important factors of the world's progress. At the end of December, 1907, the total number of Esperanto schools and societies throughout the world was 753. At the present time the total is practically one thousand. A proof of the progress of the Esperanto movement is the constant appearance of new Esperanto periodicals. On June 25 last there were fifty-five Esperanto gazettes, most of them monthlies, an increase of eleven over the number of December, 1907.

In Bohemia the postmaster-general has authorized the use of Esperanto in telegrams on an equal footing with European modern languages.

POPULAR FICTION IN ENGLAND DURING JULY.

Love the Harvester, by Max Pemberton. Methuen.

The Easy-Go-Luckies, by Maud Stepney Rawson. Methuen.

Aunt Maud, by Ernest Oldmeadow. Grant Richards.

The Bloom o' the Heather, by S. R. Crockett. Eveleigh Nash.

Handy on the Hill, by M. E. Francis. Methuen.

Referring to the serious books The Book Monthly says "one is struck with the quantity of verse which has been issued in July. Can it be that the minor poets are changing the season of their singing from spring to midsummer?"

OBJECTION TO UNION-MADE HISTORIES SUSTAINED.

THE Confederate veterans have succeeded in having objectionable text book matter banished from the public schools of Texas. Governor Campbell, of Texas, on August 7, approved certain changes to be made in the Myers books, adopted for use in the Texas schools. These changes eliminate the objections first raised by John B. Hood Camp of Confederate Veterans and seconded generally by Confederate veterans' camps.

A number of matters relating to Texas history are substituted for the so-called objectionable matter, which consisted mainly in reference to northern generals who participated in the war between the States while omitting all reference to Confederate military or civil leaders.

OBITUARY.

AINSWORTH RAND SPOFFORD.

AINSWORTH RAND SPOFFORD, librarian of the Library of Congress from 1864 to 1897 and later chief assistant librarian, died on August 12 at Shepard Hill, Holderness, N. H. Mr. Spofford was the son of a clergyman and was born September 12, 1825 at Gilmanton, N. H. He received a classical education at home under private tutors, and early developed a love for literature and books that gave direction to his future career. When only nineteen years old he went to Cincinnati and started in business as a bookseller and publisher. He studied modern languages, engaged in literary pursuits in his leisure time, and was one of the founders of the Literary Club of Cincinnati in 1850. Nine years later he became assistant editor of The Cincinnati Daily Commercial. Going to Washington in 1861, Mr. Spofford was appointed by President Lincoln first assistant librarian of the Library of Congress, and in 1864, upon the resignation of Mr. Stephenson, he was made librarian in chief, a post he held until 1897.

Washington knew Mr. Spofford as an "encyclopædia of encyclopædias." He knew everything about books except the books that a business man keeps. He had charge of the pay roll and the accounts of the fees received for copyrights. The Treasury Department rarely called for an accounting. When it did so, in 1895, the auditors found a discrepancy which was figured out finally as $22,000.

Mr. Spofford was surprised when he heard of it, but he made good the $22,000 without question. There was no idea that the shortage was due to anything but carelessness. The matter was explained when the work of removing the books from the Capitol to the new building was begun. In a drawer in Mr. Spofford's private desk $800 in currency and a number of checks were found. Another drawer was filled with money orders, some of them for as much as $500. Bundles of postal orders were in other desks in his office. Some of these bore dates as far back as 1870.

The total of these finds made up the shortage, and as Mr. Spofford had already made good the deficit he got the money. It was learned then that Mr. Spofford's habit was to take the checks or money orders he received for copyrights, thrust them into a drawer and then go on about the business he was interested in—running a library.

Congress decided that the added responsibilities of the new building demanded talents of a different kind from those possessed by Mr. Spofford, and so he was made chief assistant, a change that pleased him, for it gave him all his time for books.

Promoters of bookselling schemes, notably the men who exploited "Messages and Papers of the Presidents," used Mr. Spofford's name to help them, but it was shown that he had allowed the use of his name without realizing the purpose of it. Mr. Spofford was the author of a "Practical Manual of Parliamentary Rules," "A Book for All Readers," and edited the "Annual American Almanac," 1878-1898, the catalogues of the Congressional Library, etc.

MRS. LOUISE CHANDLER MOULTON, novelist and poet, died on August 10 at her home in Rutland Square, Boston, Mass. Mrs. Moulton was born in Pomfret, Conn., April 10, 1835, and spent her entire life in literary work. When eighteen Mrs. Moulton brought out a small volume of stories, poems and sketches she had had published in periodicals up to that time. Several of these poems and short stories appeared in The Boston True Flag, then edited by William V. Moulton. This editor became greatly interested in his young contributor, and in 1855 they were married. He helped her afterward in a great deal of her work, and in 1889 died. Mrs. Moulton during her married life became one of Boston's social leaders. At one of these functions Longfellow, Oliver Wendell Holmes, Julia Ward Howe and Thomas Wentworth Higginson were gathered at the table. Among her best-known works are "This, That, and the Other," "My Third Book," "Lazy Tours in Spain and Elsewhere," "Bed-time Stories," "Some Women's Hearts," "Random Rambles" and "Firelight Stories." In 1870 Mrs. Moulton became identified with the New York Tribune and wrote literary reviews for that paper until 1876, when she went to Boston and did the same work for the Herald until 1892, when she retired from the newspaper field and devoted herself to writing books.

NOTES ON AUTHORS.

ANATOLE FRANCE, whose complete works are being brought out in English by John Lane Company, New York, has recently gone on a visit to Greece. At his departure from Paris one of his facetious comrades remarked: "France has, for a time, now left us for Greece, and he is carrying with him honey to Mount Hymettus and salt to Athens." France, by the way, is the author's pen name. His real name is Jaques Anatole Thibault. John Lane Company are adding this week to the complete limited edition the novel called "The Red Lily," translated by Winifred Stephens, author of "French Novelists of To-day."

BIBLIOGRAPHIC NOTES.

THE OFFICE OF THE PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY is about ready to send out "The Publishers' Trade List Annual," for 1908. The volume this year contains the lists of 313 publishers, filling in all 5640 pages, or 300 pages more than in 1907. It seems hardly necessary to point out the importance of this reference book for those in the booktrade or in libraries, as well as for those interested in the books that are in the market. The price of the volume, until September 1, will be $1.50, paid in advance. After September 1 the price will be $2. "The Publishers' Weekly American Educational List," for 1908, in leatherette binding, is also just ready. This list plans to include all text-books used in American schools and academic institutions, (not in universities, professional or technical schools,) and books prepared especially for supplementary reading in primary and grammar schools; also, classical and foreign texts as are required for college entrance examinations, 1908-1911. The list is up-to-date, and helpful to all interested in the sale as well as in the use of text-books. (130 p. 8°, 50 cents.)

WILLIAM TIMOTHY CALL, 123 Liberty Street, New York City, has compiled and published a neatly printed bibliography entitled "The Literature of Checkers, embracing all the Books, Pamphlets, and Magazines on the Game of English Draughts, Commonly Known as Checkers." Mr. Call says that the game of checkers has been called "the ancient game," to distinguish it from Spanish, Italian, Polish, German and Turkish draughts, each a distinct game, with more or less of a literature of its own. A game played in Spain before America was discovered, however, was so like modern checkers that collectors of books on checkers eagerly seek the treatises on the Spanish game by Canalejas (1650) and Garces, (1684.) Besides Pierre Mallet, Quercetain and others wrote early French books on the game. It is interesting to know that there are ten collections of books on checkers in England and in the United States which Mr. Call considers "first-class." There are perhaps fifty of the second grade. Collectors of checker literature, it will be seen, form an exclusive set among the bibliophile. Mr. Call says that the checker library of Henry Hutzler, of Cincinnati, is complete, except for the omission of B. Pearce's work, the first American book on the subject. This is a paper-covered pamphlet of twenty-four pages, published at Albany in 1815. (12°, $1.)

CATALOGUES OF NEW AND SECOND-HAND BOOKS.

Charles Higham & Son, 27 Farrington St., London, E.C., Theology. (No. 472, 1118 titles.)

Charles E. Lauriat Co., 385 Washington St., Boston, Mass., Fine old books from London. (Lauriat's Boston Book Notes, v. IV., No. 3, 113 titles.)

Toronto Antiquarian Book Co., 5 Jordan St., Toronto, Can., Miscellaneous books, including standard books for the library, history, etc. (No. 27, 510 titles.)

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

MITCHELL KENNERLEY, New York City, has brought out a scholarly edition of "Everyman," with introduction, notes and a bibliography by Montrose J. Moses, and illustrations from the recent representation of the old morality play.

MOFFAT, YARD & Co. will publish this fall a story for children by Frances Hodgson Burnett, entitled "The Good Wolf." Through its serial publication the four-legged hero is already one of the most popular of her characters. The book will be illustrated in colors by Harold Sichel.

THE J. S. OGILVIE PUBLISHING COMPANY have just ready a new edition of "Wilful Gaynell," under the title of "The Beauty of the Passaic Mills," by Laura Jean Libbey. The story is now running serially in the New York Evening Journal and the demand for it in book form is already quite large.

SAMUEL REIS, for years manager of the retail department of the American Tract Society, has resigned his position to take charge of the advertising department of The Congregationalist of Boston. Mr. Reis will devote two days of the week to the business in Boston and the remainder of the week to the business in New York. His appointment will date from September 1.

JOHN F. DWYER, 83 Nassau Street, New York City, has just brought out the thirty-eighth annual issue of the Phillips Business Directory of New York City and representative business houses of Brooklyn, Jersey City, Newark and Hoboken. It contains also a French department, which gives the names of French dealers in automobiles, balloons, cognacs, billiard articles, jewelry and other supplies.

L. C. PAGE & Co. have in preparation "Tales from Bohemia," a collection of the early short stories of the late Robert Neilson Stephens. Nearly all of them are connected with the theatre. They have also in preparation "The Travels of a Lady's Maid," by an anonymous author, who prefaces, ends and slightly flavors a pleasant story of an English party's journey around the earth by gossip supposed to be written by a Scotch lady's maid.

THE H. R. HUNTTING COMPANY, Inc., Springfield, Mass., has prepared a list of one hundred of the best novels in constant use by a number of libraries. If the plan meets with sufficient support the Huntting Company will purchase from the publishers the best sheets obtainable of the books on their list and bind them for libraries in durable bindings, sewed with Rademaekers' flexible overcasting stitch, with the best English pigskin backs and keratol weather-proof sides. At a small additional expense the library's name will be stamped on each book.

B. W. HUEBSCH will publish in the fall a book by Franklin Matthews describing the cruise of the sixteen battleships of the United States Atlantic fleet from Hampton Roads to the Pacific. Mr. Matthews was one of the correspondents accompanying the fleet, and his articles giving an account of the cruise furnished a record of life on shipboard, the trip through the Strait of Magellan, the receptions to officers and men at the various South and Central American ports. These articles will now be brought together and issued, with appropriate illustrations, as a continuous chronicle of a voyage unique in the history of our navy.

Y. OKURA & Co., Nihonbashi, Tokyo, Japan, have just brought out a translation of one of K. Natsume's ingenious conceits, entitled "I Am a Cat." The story deals with every-day affairs, but with much force and humor. The translation made by Kan-ichi-ando, was revised by the author. The book has already gone through six editions. Okura & Co. have also ready a volume entitled "Stray Leaves," by Professor K. Wadagaki, a collection of famous Japanese poetry, dramas, plays and various masterpieces of Japanese and Chinese literature, given in the original and in English translations. The text is illustrated, in colors, by native artists.

G. P. PUTNAM'S SONS have in press an English translation of "A Woman at Bay," ("Una Donna,") by Sibilla Aleramo, a story concerned with the delicate problem of divorce, which has created a sensation in the original as well as in translations into Russian, German, French and Spanish; "Judith of the Cumberlands," by Miss Alic MacGowan, originally announced as "The Strength of the Hills," a story of life in the Tennessee mountains; also, "The Century of the Child," by Ellen Key, the Swedish writer, whose views of education will appeal to those who are opposed to the mechanical methods of bringing up young people.

FLEMING H. REVELL COMPANY will bring out in September a love story of Milton by Mrs. Caroline Atwater Mason, entitled "Binding of the Strong;" "The Web of Time," by Robert E. Knowles, author of "St. Cuthbert's," etc., the story of a lad whose fate is whittled out with merciless severity, but leaves him a rare man; "The Victor," by Richard S. Holmes, the editor of The Westminster of Philadelphia, a story which centres in the life of the Pennsylvania mountains in the days preceding and during the oil boom, whose plot is of unusual dramatic interest—full of the mystery of plots and counterplots that carries the reader as far afield as a Maine village and Japan before returning to the centre of interest; also, a new novel by W. J. Dawson, entitled "A Soldier of the Future," which is said to touch on some live questions of the day.

ARRANGEMENTS are being made to hold a booktrade dinner in London on October 9 next. This is being organized by the newly-formed Publishers' Circle with the approval of the principal members of The Publishers' Association. The president of the Association, Edward Bell, will be in the chair, and Mr. Keay, the president of the Booksellers' Association, has joined the organizing committee. The proposal has also received the approval of the committee of the Authors' Society, and several well-known authors will attend as the guests of their publishers. Invitations to be present have also been sent to a few well-known publishers and booksellers on the Continent. Any American publishers who may be in England during October are asked to communicate with the honorable secretary of the dinner committee, A. D. Power, care Isaac Pitman & Sons, 1 Amen Corner, London.

A. WESSELS COMPANY will bring out next month a work on the "Evolution in Italian Art," by Grant Allen, based on studies made in Italian galleries, edited by J. W. and A. M. Cruikshank, which will serve as an authentic guide to the study of Italian art; "Pagan Rome," a new volume in their series of Historical Guide Books; "Abraham Lincoln," a stirring eulogy by George Bancroft, a literary treasure recently discovered; "The Wisdom of Lincoln," extracts from the speeches and state-papers and letters of the great President, edited by Dr. Marion Mills Miller; "Vaiti of the Islands," by Beatrice Grimshaw, with illustrations by H. C. Williamson; also, two essays on "Friendship," by Emerson and Cicero, the "Maxims" of La Rochefoucauld, with the French and English on facing pages, and the Rubáiyát with John Hay's address, "In Praise of Omar," in the Bradford Series, a series of classics gotten up for presentation purposes, carefully printed with border in two colors and a portrait frontispiece.

C. S. HAMMOND & Co., 152 Broadway, New York City, have brought out a "Road Map of the Country Around New York," showing good roads, fair roads, etc., which retails at twenty-five cents; a "Guide Map of Brooklyn, N. Y.," showing all streets, subways, tunnels, ferries, elevated and surface railroads, parks, etc., which retails at fifteen cents; also, a "Guide Map of Queens Borough, N. Y.," giving the same information as the map of Brooklyn and retailing at the same price. These maps are folded so as to fit into any coat pocket. They have also brought out "Hammond's Atlas of New York City and the Metropolitan District," a quarto, giving new maps of each borough on large scale, (10¼ x 13½ inches,) showing streets, avenues, subways, tunnels, all transportation routes, etc., also road maps of the country around New York, with automobile routes, etc. Another interesting book just ready is "The United States Navy," a series of over sixty reproductions of the battleship of the United States from original photographs.

HENRY HOLT & Co. will bring out this month the following fiction: "A Lord of Lands," by Ramsey Benson, the simple story of a man with a very small income and a large family who determines to leave the city and become a farmer in the Northwest, told by the man himself with much humor and good sense; also, "Angel, Esquire," by Edgar Wallace, a good detective story, in which an inexperienced girl has to contend with three unscrupulous and daring criminals for millions strangely bequeathed to one of the four. For young people they are preparing for publication during August "The Adopting of Rosa Marie," a sequel to "Dandelion Cottage," by Mrs. C. W. Rankin, illustrated by Mrs. Shinn, a story for girls, which is concerned with the fate and fortunes of a little Indian papoose; "Roy and Ray in Canada," by Mary W. Plummer, director of the Pratt Institute Library School," and author of "Roy and Ray in Mexico," which embodies very much that is interesting concerning Canadian history, manners and customs, as well as descriptions that describe and pictures that really illustrate, making the book useful as a travel guide as well as useful to teachers and school children; also, "Pete, Cow Puncher," by Joseph B. Ames, illustrated by Victor Perard, which, while originally intended for growing boys, will also appeal to their elders.

AMONG the novels announced for the fall by The Macmillan Company is a story entitled "Helianthus," on which Ouida worked for years and which was completed just before her death. It is a brilliant historical romance of the present time in which many of the makers of modern history appear but thinly disguised. Other novels in active preparation are "The Diva's Ruby," by F. Marion Crawford, the third of the trilogy that began with "Fair Margaret" and "The Primadonna," the three telling the whole story of the English girl who became known to fame as a great singer; "Friendship Village," another attractive book by Zona Gale, whose charming story of "The Loves of Pelleas and Etarre" is one not soon to be forgotten; "The War in the Air," a romance of aviation, by H. G. Wells; "Wroth," by Agnes and Egerton Castle, a story full of the romantic spirit for which the Castles are famous, the plot centering around an old English abbey; "A Canadian Girl in London," by Mrs. Everard Cotes, (Sara Jeanette Duncan,) a tale that concerns a Canadian girl and her brother who visit London for the first time and become involved in adventures that lead up to a pretty love affair and give the author opportunity for some of her most original observations on English society and the English character; also, "Joan of Garioch," by Albert Kinross, author of "Davenant," etc., a book which takes its readers well over the world—from South Africa to England, then to France, Italy, Russia and back to England.

E. P. DUTTON & Co. will publish in September the following books for young people: "In Texas with Davy Crockett," by Everett McNeil, the story of the adventures of two boys during that dramatic period when Texas won her independence from Mexico; "Bob Knight's Diary with the Circus," by Charlotte Curtis Smith, another of the interesting "Bob Knight" books; "The Story of Sir Galahad," by Mary Blackwell Sterling, in which the author has taken the thread of the story from the old sources and has separated it from the mass of material found in Malory and the earlier writers, with illustrations in color by William Ernest Chapman; "The Jimpy Stories," by H. Grace Parsons, stories for younger readers told by a mother at bedtime, with illustrations; "The Millers and their New Home," by Clara Dillingham Pierson, the fourth of The Pencroft Books, telling in simple language the story of the adventures of a normal family of children in a quiet home in the country; "The Story of Grettèr the Strong," by Allen French, an old hero tale from the Norwegian, with illustrations in color by F. I. Bennett; "The Water Babies," by Charles Kingsley, with illustrations in color and in black-and-white by Arthur A. Dixon; "Jumbo and his Family," the adventures of a family of elephants told and pictured by Henry Mayer; The Little Mother Stories, four new numbers by John Howard Jewett, including "Bunnies, Birds and Blossoms," "Wild Rabb and his Bunny Friends," "Tame Bunnies and Wild," and "Toy Bearkins at School," with illustrations in colors, and in the same series "Warriors Brave," by M. M. Jameson, the stirring adventures of a regiment of tin soldiers, also, "A Day with the Gnomes," by Ernest Endres, both with colored illustrations; six new volumes in The Told to the Children Series, including "The Story of Roland," "Stories of the Saints," "The Story of Undine," "Simple Susan," "Stories from Beowulf" and "Stories from the Nibelungen;" two new volumes in The Children's Heroes, by H. E. Marshall, on Napoleon and Cromwell; two new volumes in the Stories from History series—"Stories of the Vikings" and "Stories from the History of France;" "The Playmate," a new book for boys, by Charles Turley, with illustrations by H. R. Millar; "The April Fool Twins," by Elizabeth Westyn Timlow, author of the "Cricket Books," describing the events in an American family of the best sort; "Our Farm," a story box of four simple stories for children, by Virginia Bennett; also, four new books in Every Child's Library, edited by Thomas Cartwright, including "One for Wod and One for Lok," "Sigurd the Dragon Slayer," "The Old, Old Myths of Greece and Rome" and "The Seven Champions of Christendom," all fully illustrated. They have in preparation for publication in the fall "The Chronicles of England, France and Spain," a condensed version of Froissart's Chronicles, with illustrations in colors and in black-and-white.

TERMS OF ADVERTISING.

Under the heading "Books Wanted" book-trade subscribers are given the privilege of a free advertisement for books out of print of five nonpareil lines, exclusive of address, in any issue except special numbers, to an extent not exceeding 100 lines a year. If more than five lines are sent, the excess is at 10 cents a line, and amount should be inclosed. Bids for current books and such as may be easily had from the publishers, and repeated matter, as well as all advertisements from non-subscribers, must be paid for at the rate of 10 cents a line.

Under the heading "Books for Sale," the charge to subscribers and non-subscribers is 10 cents a nonpareil line for each insertion. No reduction for repeated matter.

All other small undisplayed advertisements will be charged at the uniform rate of 10 cents a nonpareil line. Eight words may be reckoned to the line.

Parties with whom we have no account must pay in advance, otherwise no notice will be taken of their Communications.

BOOKS WANTED.

☞ In answering, please state edition, condition, and price, including postage or express charges.

Houses that are willing to deal exclusively on a cash-on-delivery basis will find it to their advantage to put after their firm-name the word [Cash.]

☞ Write your wants plainly, and on one side of the sheet only. Illegibly-written "wants" will be considered as not having been received. The "Publishers' Weekly" does not hold itself responsible for errors.

It should be understood that the appearance of advertisements in this column, or elsewhere in the "Publishers' Weekly," does not furnish a guarantee of credit. While it is endeavored to safeguard these columns by withdrawing the privilege of their use from advertisers who are not "good pay" booksellers should take the usual precautions, as to advertisers not known to them, that they would take in making sales to any unknown parties.

A Delightful Work of Humor

By LAURA E. RICHARDS

Author of "Captain January," "Geoffrey Strong," "Mrs. Tree's Will," etc., etc.

In this story, the creator of "Geoffrey Strong" and "Mrs. Tree" reverts to one of the happiest of her many phases of activity, and portrays with delightful reality the queer, quaint, odd, and lovable characters of her own "Down East" neighborhood. With loving touch and without the suspicion of exaggeration or unkindly caricature, she acquaints us with the homely virtues, droll conceits, and pithy saws of the fast vanishing New England types. It is a book with a laugh on every page, a surprise in every chapter, and not a tear from beginning to end.

THE STATUE

By EDEN PHILLPOTTS and ARNOLD BENNETT

THIS is a big novel in every sense of the word, big in conception, powerful in plot and action, vigorously drawn. The scene is in England; the story has an international flavor; the issues involved, political and social, are of the larger kind; several of the principal characters have force, individuality and reality sufficient to make them, and the fine story that gives them birth, long remembered.

The novel is finely written. It has style, power. It sweeps the reader from scene to scene, holding his interest, absorbing him wholly. It leaves him, at the close of the exciting climax, with the feeling of satisfaction that follows the reading of only a few books each year.

Illustrated by T. K. Hanna. 12*mo*, $1.50.

THE MAN WITHOUT A HEAD

By TYLER DE SAIX

HERE is a detective story which is at least the equal, in power and suspense, of any which has appeared in many years. The scene is laid in England, principally in London, and the hero is a young German recently annexed to the staff of Scotland Yard. The story is one which depends for its powerful grip on the attention upon the keen clash of wits between the pursuer and the pursued.

It, therefore, harks back to the brainier school of detective fiction, of which it is a highly successful example. Its hold on the imagination and attention of the reader is simply irresistible. Its success ought to be pronounced.

Illustrated by M. Leone Bracker. $1.50.

NOTE: These two novels are both of the sort that often sell in very big figures. Do not compare THE STATUE with Mr. Phillpotts's usual output. It bears no comparison whatever with his other books. It is a fine example of the OPPENHEIM kind of book, and ought to win. As to THE MAN WITHOUT A HEAD, just read it yourself when it comes along. You'll be glad of the tip. We rest our case on the result. Be sure and read it.

REMEMBER, September 5 is the day for FREDERICK PALMER'S big, fine American novel.

TWO NEW NOVELS BY POPULAR AUTHORS

By GEORGE CARY EGGLESTON

Two Gentlemen of Virginia

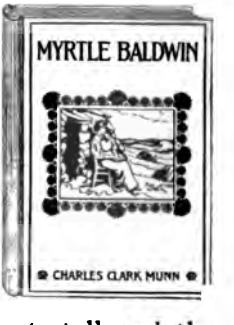
Illustrated by FRANK T. MERRILL. $1.50

NO one but a Virginian gentleman is quite capable of depicting the ideal called to mind by that term, and no one lives better qualified to do so than George Cary Eggleston. He tells, with great feeling and deep knowledge, how a young man who had won prosperity in the West, inherited a run-down plantation with its outfit of negroes, in connection with whom the young master tried interesting social experiments. As a love story, it is charming; as a picture of the "Old Régime," it is matchless.

By CHARLES CLARK MUNN

Myrtle Baldwin

Illustrated by HENRY ROTH. $1.50



THE heroine arouses first the pity and then the love of the hero. Pride and mistakes lead to a double quest, each for the other, and the tangled threads of their lives continually fail of unwinding in unity until almost too late. Both the baseness and the goodness of the world as it is, with love triumphant over the discouragements, are brought out with the power of a man who has something to tell, and th practised skill of one who has reached the height of success in his own fiel with which to tell it.

A London Critic Says:

"A very delightful work . . . We recommend it most earnestly to anybody who is in low spirits. Jack Spurlock is good to meet. SPECIAL ANNOUNCEMENT TO THE TRADE

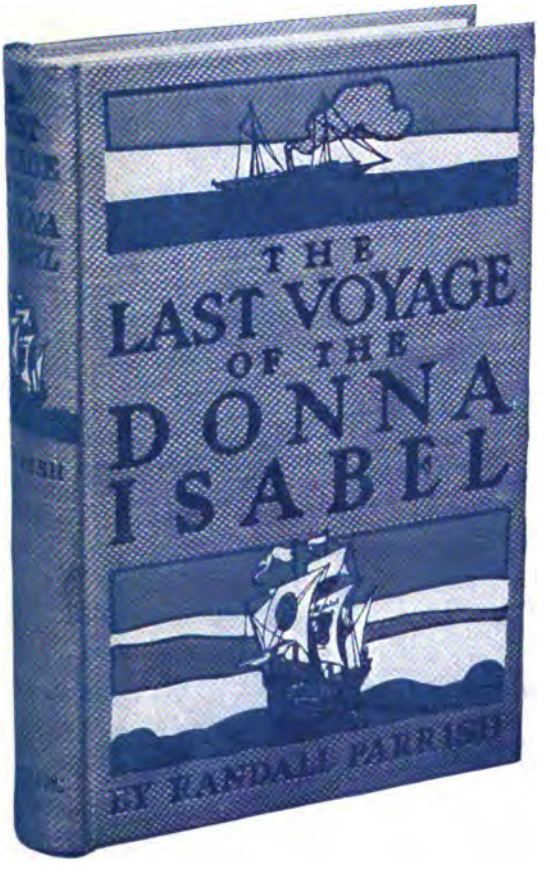
Ready September 12

MR. PARRISH'S FIRST SEA STORY

THE LAST VOYAGE OF THE DONNA ISABEL



¶ The publishers believe that this is the best story they have yet brought out by Randall Parrish. It is no exaggeration to say that it is worthy of a place on the same shelf with the sea romances of Clark Russell and Stevenson—so absorbing is the plot and so vivid are the pictures of wild adventure on Antarctic seas.

¶ The story concerns the search for a lost Spanish galleon which the hero believes to have been buried in the ice for over a century. There is plenty of mystery and excitement, and Mr. Parrish can be depended upon for a delightful love story.

PETER: A NOVEL OF WHICH HE IS NOT THE HERO

Illustrated. $1.50

This remarkable novel has not been published before in any form. Fine, wholesome and optimistic; will be a source of joy and delight to those who believe that our civilization is growing better rather than worse. Peter Grayson is a banker of the old school, a middle-aged man of high ideals and of a buoyant, cheery optimism. The young hero, quixotic, illogical but true-hearted, and the heroine, a fascinating girl who can work and play with equal charm and grace, and the other characters are people of moderate means and fine, healthy principles, who live in an atmosphere of simplicity and good breeding. It is a sane, reasonable and happy story, full of amusing incidents and of excitement.

JAMES B. CONNOLLY'S

new story

A STORY OF THE MODERN GAMES Illustrated. $1.25

A vigorous, thrilling love story of modern Greece, full of delightful sentiment and which reaches its climax in the great Marathon race at the revival of the Olympic Games in 1896. Loues, the hero of the story, is one of the Greek contestants in that race. No description in modern fiction of an athletic struggle can equal this account of that thrilling race. His story of the straining, gruelling struggle, the heart-breaking efforts of the runners over those twenty-four miles of country roads from Marathon to Athens, the gradual collapse of one man after another until the stadium with its thousands of tumultuously cheering spectators greets the victor with the cry, "A Greek," "A Greek," is soul stirring.

NOTES IN SEASON.

LITTLE, BROWN & CO. have just ready Oppenheim's latest novel, "The Avenger," an ingenious and exciting mystery tale fully up to the standard of this prolific and ingenious teller of stories. The plot is even cleverer than usual and the method of telling highly original.

J. B. LIPPINCOTT CO. will issue early in September a new novel by Ezra S. Brudno, entitled "The Tether," a novel of virile realism, depicting the life of the American Jew with exceptional strength. The author will be remembered by his novel "The Fugitive," which was a success a few years ago.

CHARLES SCRIBNER'S SONS will publish August 29 F. Hopkinson Smith's new novel, "Peter;" James B. Connelly's "An Olympic Victor," a vigorous love story of modern Greece; and Henry B. Fuller's "Waldo Trench and Others," tales of love and adventure among the Americans who live in Florence, Rome and other foreign cities.

MOFFAT, YARD & CO. have just issued the long-expected novel, "The Statue," the joint work of Eden Phillpotts and Arthur Bennett, two totally dissimilar novelists, of which the scene is England and its interests, social and political, of the larger kind; and an exciting detective story by Tyler de Saix, entitled "The Man Without a Head." Early in September they will bring out "The Big Fellow," by Frederick Palmer, author of the very remarkable novel "The Vagabond." Mr. Palmer has taken a big American for his hero, simple, magnetic and full of boyish unaffectedness.

DOUBLEDAY, PAGE & CO. have just ready a novel by Henry L. Stewart, a new writer, entitled "Weeping Cross," which deals with the Puritan period of New England, the hero of which is a young Irish cavalier, educated as a Jesuit priest, of several years' service as a soldier, who is sold into slavery to a New England planter by the British Crown; "Blotting Book," a detective story involving a mysterious crime, by E. F. Benson; "My School and My Gospel," by Sir Hubert Herkomer, the first account by Sir Hubert Herkomer himself of his famous school at Bushey, where he worked from 1883 to 1904, and which has been a subject for controversy among artists and critics ever since it was opened; "Round the Corner in Gay Street," by Grace S. Richmond; "Studies in the American Race Problem," by Alfred Holt Stone; also, "Altar Stairs," by G. B. Lancaster.

THE LOTHROP, LEE & SHEPARD CO. will publish September 1 a novel entitled "Myrtle Baldwin," by Charles Clark Munn, author of "Uncle Terry," and other widely-read works of fiction. The object of Mr. Munn's new book is to present the actual events of life amid the workaday people of a busy city, and beyond that how hard it is for a self-respecting young girl of average good looks, and without friends or money to obtain an honest livelihood there. The story shows with great dramatic force how many allurements she will inevitably meet, how many temptations will assail her, and how she will eventually have to show herself made of heroic fibre. To add to this piquant interest, the hero of the story is one of those often-abused, heroic, keen-witted men, known as commercial travellers, one who knows both the upper and the under world of the great city as only these wide-awake men do. The Rev. George W. Hinckley, head of Good Will Farm Association, after reading an advance copy, says: "This story is full of intense human interest, carries a strong moral lesson, and because of the light it throws on imperilled girlhood, and the warning, wholesome and strong, that it contains, I wish it might go into every home in the land."

WEEKLY RECORD OF NEW PUBLICATIONS.

☞ The prices of net books published under the rules of the American Publishers' Association are preceded in this list by a double asterisk , and the word net follows the price. The prices of fiction (not net) published under the rules are preceded by a dagger †. The prices of net books not covered by the rules, whether published by members of the American Publishers' Association or not, are preceded by a single asterisk, and the word net follows the price. ☜

The abbreviations are usually self-explanatory. c. after the date indicates that the book is copyrighted; if the copyright date differs from the imprint date, the year of copyright is added. Books of foreign origin of which the edition (annotated, illustrated, etc.) is entered as copyright, are marked c. ed.; translations, c. tr.; n. p., in place of price, indicates that the publisher makes no price, either net or retail, and quotes prices to the trade only upon application.

A colon after initial designates the most usual given name, as: A: Augustus; B: Benjamin; C: Charles; D: David; E: Edward; F: Frederic; G: George; H: Henry; I: Isaac; J: John; L: Louis; N: Nicholas; P: Peter; R: Richard; S: Samuel; T: Thomas; W: William.

Chambers, Rob. W: The firing line. N. Y., Appleton, 1908. c. 9+450 p. il. D. cl., †$1.50.

A young New Yorker educated as a landscape gardener is hired by a Florida millionaire to beautify his acres at Palm Beach. He meets the proprietor's adopted daughter, falls in love, and learns she has married clandestinely to have a right to a name, she being a foundling. The whole story turns around the lover and the husband. The husband plays a most unselfish rôle; the end is satisfactory. Quite a picture of the life of the rich and idle. The firing line is the line of danger, which the heroine often crosses recklessly but ignorantly.

Emerson, Willis G: The smoky god; or, a voyage to the inner world; with il. by J: A. Williams. Chic., Forbes & Co., 1908. c. 186 p. D. cl., $1.

Olaf Jansen tells the story of his astounding discovery of the inner world—the hollow centre of the earth, inhabitated by a race of gigantic and highly civilized people. In the identical centre of this vast vacuum is the seat of electricity—a mammoth ball of dull red fire, surrounded by a white, mild, luminous cloud, giving light to the country and known as the abode of the "smoky god." Openings at the poles of our world form the only entrances to the "inner world." The long-lost Garden of Eden is supposed to be situated in this marvelous "within" land.

Herkomer, Sir Hubert von. My school and my gospel. N. Y., Doubleday, Page & Co., 1908. 10+223 p. il. Q. cl., *$7.50 net.

In simple, straightforward style, Sir Hubert von Herkomer, one of the best known of living English artists, relates the story of his school and his theories of painting. He established his famous art school thirty-four years ago in the little village of Bushey, England. The book is a very handsome one, neatly bound in gray boards, with canvas back and paper label; it contains a wealth of illustrations, some by the author, others by his pupils, reproduced from the Palette, the magazine published by the school, and two at least from Punch, the latter reflecting with gentle satire upon the Professor and his methods.

Megargel, Percy F., and Mason, Grace Sartwell. The car and the lady. N. Y., Baker & Taylor Co., 1908. c. 276 p. D. cl., †$1.50.

Percy Megargel is known as a long distance motor driver in this country, having driven from New York to Portland, Oregon, and to Los Angeles, Cal. The story tells of a bet between an Italian designer and driver of high grade foreign cars and a young American manufacturer. The race is from New York to Portland. The bet is $50,000. The lady is Betty, the daughter of a millionaire, also a great "motorist." Both the men make love to her while striving for their bet. Story describes in detail all the breakdowns and ways of mending autos, and also the many kinds of country and people on the 3000 mile ride.

Each chapter is preceded by references to certain pages of leading works in the same line. Bibliographical note (9 p.).

Morrow, W: C. Lentala of the south seas: the romantic tale of a lost colony; the illustrations from oil paintings by Maynard Dixon. N. Y., Frederick A. Stokes Co., [1908.] c. '07. 5+278 p. O. cl., †$1.50.

The barkentine "Hope," carrying two hundred and fifty English colonists, consisting of men, women and children, after a series of frightful storms is wrecked on a strange volcanic island in the South Sea, which at first appears uninhabited until a band of savage warriors appears upon the scene. Following are singular and thrilling adentures with the natives and the perils of the place. The story of the colonists' escape from inminent death through the agency of the mysterious Lentala, and their wandering through the chasms and on the heights of the remarkable island, holds one spellbound. There is an unusual love affair.

The Publishers' Weekly.

FOUNDED BY F. LEYPOLDT.

AUGUST 22, 1908.

The editor does not hold himself responsible for the views expressed in contributed articles or communications.

All matter for advertising pages should reach this office not later than Wednesday noon, to insure insertion in the same week's issue.

Publishers are requested to furnish title-page proofs and advance information of books forthcoming, both for entry in the lists and for descriptive mention. An early copy of each book published should be forwarded, as it is of the utmost importance that the entries of books be made as promptly and as perfectly as possible. In many cases booksellers and librarians depend on the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY solely for their information. The Record of New Publications of the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY is the material of the "American Catalog," and so forms the basis of trade bibliography in the United States.

THE HANDLING OF BAD BOOKS.

THE question of how to stem the tide of actually bad books is a very serious and vital one to the American booktrade. Much attention has been given in the public press and by the booktrade itself to this question, and it is worth while to emphasize again and again the following resolution adopted by the American Booksellers' Association at this year's annual convention:

Resolved, That recognizing the responsibility of the bookseller in disseminating the literature of the community, this Association feels called upon at this time to use its influence to discourage the publication and sale of books of pronounced immoral plot and tone.

Until quite recently, books of the character indicated were sold sneakingly and surreptitiously. Publishers of this class of printed matter did not expect respectable booksellers to sell them, and the handling of them was mostly done by dealers in little shops in by streets and lanes or on the street by furtive peddlers, who appealed to the salacious element of human nature as the tout laid for the victims of the gambling houses. We have gotten bravely beyond that stage, and the so-called "problem novel" of to-day, of the sexual variety, flaunts itself in flaming advertisements, and has until recently been found on the counters of reputable dealers. The evolution of this class of novel has been gradual. The "problem novel," naturally, took up problems dealing with the relations of men and women as such, and some of the great classic novels are founded on this question. The "Scarlet Letter," "Adam Bede" and "Tess" do not, however, depict salaciously criminal relations, but logically and dramatically present the evil consequences that follow such relations. The Manchester School Board, in confusing such books with the modern salacious novel, therefore, made a fundamental mistake. The "questionable" books of the day find no excuse for being in the examples of the great novelists of the past.

Some of the recent productions of the English and the American publishing houses come uncomfortably close to the border line of the indecent, the deluge being chiefly from English writers—women writers at that; but American novelists have recently also been following the pace set abroad.

More than one magazine has been at least careless in permitting writers to picture or discuss scenes that transgress good taste or good morals; and it has been extremely difficult for editors of literary and booktrade journals to draw the line as to books which, in the interest of decency and morality, should be excluded from exploitation. It is claimed for the most notorious of these books that its offense has been chiefly in inviting reckless imitation. It is true that there has been such reckless imitation; but that there have been worse books does not make this particular book better. We shall not quote specific titles, because nothing is more unwise than to advertise the Index Prohibitorum. The book in question, after it had been rejected by several publishers, appeared on the list of an otherwise reputable publisher, and was widely exploited before attention had been drawn to its now notorious character. THE PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY, when it became fully aware of its character, declined to take part in its further exploitation, with the result that the publisher has chosen to sever all relations with this office.

When a druggist dispenses poison, he is required by law to put a red label on the bottle, or to mark it in some distinctive manner by confining it in a corrugated bottle, and locking it up in a special closet, admission to which, besides, is announced by the ringing of a bell to make clear that it is poison. One American publisher has chosen to print a series of books of the class named, in characteristic red covers and to exploit them on yellow paper, segregating this class of books by another imprint than that of his personal name and list. But most publishers who have permitted themselves to indulge in this class of books have not been so candid, and it has been difficult therefore for the retail booktrade to know in advance what to avoid.

The publishing business is, and should be, one of the most creditable of occupations. The publisher should have a pride, as the author should have a pride, in presenting books which elevate instead of inflame their readers. Doubtless, books have appeared on reputable publishers' lists without due thought as to their character and consequences. But when a publisher allows himself to issue this class of publications he lowers the level of his calling, and if he is shunned in society or cut in his club, he has only himself to blame. This wave of bad literature undoubtedly is already on the wane and will shortly pass away altogether; but it is a present danger to the booktrade. Several journals have declined advertisements of such books, and many retailers have declined to permit their shelves to be made a medium for the corruption of the people; and it is to be noted to the credit of the American booktrade that the firm whose name is most closely associated with the wide distribution of fiction in cheap form has declined in specific cases to take up books which were certain of large sales for the definite reason that they were as unwilling to lend a hand in distributing such poison to the masses as they were unwilling to engage in the rum business. The fair fame of the booktrade is involved in this question, and it is to be hoped that the retailers will do their best to fulfil the spirit of the resolution of the American Booksellers' Association.

AN APPEAL TO THE TRADE.

The following letter, and the accompanying resolutions, addressed to the trade by the American Booksellers' Association, are commended to the careful consideration of every publisher and bookseller interested in the preservation of publishing and bookselling. Words without action, however, will avail nothing, and it will require the best efforts of the weakest in the trade to bring about the results aimed at in the resolutions:

New York, August 12, 1908.

We submit to you the resolutions adopted by the American Booksellers' Association, at its recent convention, held in New York City, May 19 and 20. They are the result of careful consideration; represent the wishes of practically the entire booktrade of this country, and it is firmly believed that the adoption of the suggestions contained therein would end the present era of unprofitable bookselling, and put the business on a basis of profit for author, publisher and bookseller alike, and result in a much increased sale of books.

Relative to the unprofitableness of bookselling, we quote from carefully-prepared papers presented at our convention, written by men of ability and experience, as follows:

In a recent business convention a leading manufacturer made the statement that no retail business could be profitably or safely conducted on a margin of less than 33⅓ per cent. of the selling price. He further stated that when his house found a dealer was doing business on a less profit than 33⅓ per cent. they declined to sell him, because they knew it was only a question of time when that dealer would fail. And yet, in spite of this established law of merchandising, (and it is an established law observed in nearly all retail lines,) many booksellers are endeavoring to conduct their business on half this margin; that is, they frequently buy $1.50 books at 40 off, or 90 cents, and sell at $1.08, leaving the absurd profit of 18 cents, or 16⅔ per cent. As it costs 25 per cent. to do business, it can readily be seen why booksellers do not own automobiles or steam yachts.

To the bookseller's mind the fault is probably with the publishers. Either they should give the retailer a larger discount or they should compel the retailer to sell his books at a higher price.

And as follows:

It is absolutely correct to say that the cost of doing business is 25 per cent. rather than 20.

It does not seem to have occurred to many booksellers that, when they buy a special bill of the "standards" at, we will say, a discount of 40 per cent., and, possibly, in some few instances, on slightly better terms, there is still a greater possibility of loss than of profit. These books which are usually retailed at a discount of 25 per cent. only show a margin of just 20 per cent. on a business costing 25 per cent. to carry on. In other words, a $1.50 book sold for $1.12, costing 90 cents, pays a gross profit of 22 cents, and the expense of doing business being 28 cents, there is a loss of 6 cents. If the same book is sold to a library at one-third, or $1, and the expense of doing business is 25 cents, the bookseller has made a gross profit of 10 cents to offset the running expenses of 25 cents, and, consequently, a loss of 15 cents.

It is a probable fact that no payment for new books has been made to publishers in this country during the past five or ten years by any bookseller, without drawing for such payment money acquired by selling merchandise other than new books.

These extracts tell in brief, but truly, the exact situation of the general retail bookselling business.

It is earnestly hoped you will see the way clear to put into immediate operation the recommendations made in the resolutions. Such action will surely result in benefit to all concerned, and insure for such publishers as do accede the good will and hearty co-operation of the entire booktrade of the country. The American Booksellers' Association asks for every bookseller in this broad land of ours a chance to sell books at a price that will yield a fair living profit, and it is earnestly hoped, nay, it is firmly believed, that the publishers will see fit to sell their publications at such prices and on such terms as will insure this end.

The resolutions are:

Resolved, In the strong and well-considered resolutions adopted by this convention last year, we would again urge the publishers that they issue all new copyrighted books in the future at a fixed price, which shall be the actual selling and published price, based upon the salable value of the books, with an additional charge for postage when mailed; and we further urge the attention of the publishers to the other resolutions passed at the convention of last year, and venture to suggest that unless the subject matter covered in these resolutions is acted upon, all hope as to the successful future of the "new book" business of the United States may as well be abandoned. With the adoption of such policy and the making of the publishers' advertised price the real price, thus cutting off the qualifying terms, such as "net," "protected," etc., there is no reason why the book business cannot be maintained and made profitable to author, publisher, dealer and purchaser alike.

Resolved, That in our opinion it is radically wrong to ask the American booksellers to stand the cost of manufacture, advertising, etc., of the books published by our American publishers and have these [books] in turn sold by said publishers at such prices to foreign dealers that will permit importation by our American libraries at lower or as low rates as they are sold direct to the American bookseller.

It would seem only fair that the cost of production should be distributed equally over the entire output, whether sold in America or Europe, and we would request that our Committee on Relations with the Publishers give this matter its immediate attention.

Resolved, That we deprecate such methods of doing business as secures to libraries and other consumers not dealers a price as low or lower than is given to the bookseller.

Resolved, That, recognizing the responsibility of the bookseller in disseminating the literature of the community, this Association feels called upon at this time to use its influence to discourage the publication and sale of books of pronounced immoral plot and tone.

Your early and favorable action is hoped for.

Very truly yours,

Committee on Relations with Publishers.

The following are the resolutions adopted at the 1907 convention of the American Booksellers' Association:

WHEREAS, The members of the American Booksellers' Association, assembled together at their seventh annual convention, recognizing the necessity for improving the unsatisfactory conditions prevailing in the retail book business of the United States, now therefore be it

Resolved, That we urge the publishers of new copyrighted books to issue all such volumes in the future at a net price based upon the salable value of the books, with an additional charge for postage when mailed.

Resolved, That we request a minimum discount from the advertised price, sufficient to cover the cost of transacting business with a margin for profit, in accordance with custom in other branches of mercantile business.

Resolved, That it is desirable to have the net price permanent, except that works of fiction and juvenile books may, if not successful, be sold as remainders one year after publication, and books may be utilized for the "Rebind" trade after two years, at a net price to be maintained for at least one year additional.

Resolved, That we recommend that the sliding scale of discount be materially revised, in order to reduce the wide discrepancy in purchasing price between the buyer of small quantities in all classes of literature, and the large buyer of a few titles in a special class.

Resolved, That we suggest that the extra discount to the jobber on all books be discontinued, except on condition that he shall not use the special reduction in competing with the retail dealer, for whose benefit he has been specially favored.

Resolved, That we think it desirable to still allow to public libraries only the 10 per cent. discount upon net books, as at present.

Resolved, That we consider that the established discount allowed to dealers be conditional upon such dealer carrying a stock of books of reasonable size, and that a book is understood to be a printed volume bound in covers more substantial than paper.

Resolved, That we deprecate the breaking of the subscription price of periodicals, and recommend that abolition of the "Combination" system, and commend those publishers who have firmly maintained their publication price.

Resolved, That this Association recommend that the booksellers of the United States make an unusual effort on their part to push the sale of such volumes of salable fiction as may be published at a net price with a proper discount.

Resolved, That we recognize with grateful appreciation the cordial spirit of co-operation with which so many department stores, proprietors and their managers have responded to the efforts now being made to prevent the extinction of the new book business, and that all such department store proprietors are cordially invited to ally themselves with the American Booksellers' Association.

Resolved, That these resolutions be sent to the publishers of the United States, and that the president and secretary be directed to explain to them the reasons for the resolutions, and to convey to each publisher our grateful appreciation of their efforts in our behalf.

Resolved, That the President and the Postmaster-General be, and are, hereby requested to offer the extension of our domestic letter rate to all the world.

COMMUNICATIONS.

A SUGGESTED REMEDY FOR PRICE-CUTTING.

To the Editor of The Publishers' Weekly.

SIR: It is generally admitted, I believe, that the price-cutting evil in the American book-trade is scarcely less detrimental in the long run to the publisher than to the bookseller; and that both would earnestly support any feasible remedy for the evil.

It is also admitted that, to be successful, any method of abolishing price-cutting must be in the nature of a co-operative movement between publishers and booksellers—that it must be accepted and religiously supported by the best publishers and the best booksellers. Neither could accomplish the purpose without the other, and each body would need the support of a majority of its own members.

With the above points admitted, or taken for granted, I should like to outline a plan for maintaining the retail prices of current books which, as it seems to me, would be feasible and effective.

In the first place, let the members of the American Publishers' Association agree that, beginning January 1, 1909, they will issue all new books at net prices, with a uniform discount to the trade of 10 per cent. Then let the Association submit to every bookseller in the American trade a blank contract form substantially like the following:

In consideration of special discounts allowed us, we hereby agree to maintain for one year from publication date the full published price of every new book issued by the firms named herein.

Every dealer signing this contract and filing it with the American Publishers' Association would be entitled to such further discounts during the term of his contract as might be agreed upon, these discounts to be so fixed as to allow the dealer a gross profit of not less than 30 per cent. A list of all dealers signing this contract would then be sent to the various publishers in the Association and to all jobbers of books, and bills for purchases rendered accordingly. No dealer whose name did not appear in this list would be entitled to a discount of more than 10 per cent. Jobbers would be supplied by the publishers only on condition that they maintained the terms of this agreement.

The effect of such a plan would be that those who refused to maintain published prices could buy books only on terms that would make price-cutting prohibitive. Those who signed the agreement and then cut prices would be subject to suit for breach of contract.

There are, of course, a number of minor points to be worked out in connection with the plan; but these would not effect the main idea as I have tried to outline it. I should be much interested in knowing how such a plan is regarded by the trade.

W. R. BROWNE.

CHICAGO, Aug. 18, 1908.

THE DANGER OF ADVANCE PAYMENTS TO AUTHORS.

THE subject of advance payments to authors has become a burning question with the English publishing trade. H. A. Moncrieff, a well-known accountant in London, is responsible for the following statement quoted by the London correspondent of the New York Herald:

"It is certain that the profits now made by legitimate publishing houses do not warrant the fancy prices constantly demanded and too often paid for modern fiction. I shall betray no confidence when I state that in at least three businesses which I have wound up I have found that the amounts lost by way of advances and overpayments to authors, chiefly novelists, more than equalled the total liabilities due to ordinary creditors."

LARGER PACKAGES BY FOREIGN POST.

POSTMASTER MORGAN, of New York City, has received advice that the limit of weight on parcels post packages for and from Great Britain will hereafter be eleven pounds, or five kilograms, and that there will be no limit to the value of the contents. The limit heretofore has been four pounds six ounces in weight and $50 in value. The postage rate remains at 12 cents a pound.

THE ESPERANTO CONGRESS.

THE fourth international congress of Esperantists noted in last issue shows this special form of a universal language is meeting with more and more favor. Ten new societies were reported in the United States and five in the Philippines. Count Leo Tolstoi sent special greetings. The congress has decided to publish books in Esperanto for the blind and to prepare exhibits to give information concerning the world language.

OBITUARY NOTES.

JOHN H. HENNESSY, for several years associated with the Collier publications, died August 12 in the Jewish Hospital, Brooklyn, N. Y., where he was operated on for appendicitis. His home was at No. 447 East Ninth Street, Flatbush. He was forty-three years old.

REV. DR. HENRY HOPKINS, who recently resigned as president of Williams College, died at Rotterdam, Holland, on Tuesday, August 18. Dr. Hopkins was born at Williamstown in 1837. He was the son of Mark Hopkins, who also served as president of Williams College from 1836 to 1872.

IRA D. SANKEY, who achieved world-wide fame as evangelist, singer and author of hymns sung specially in the Moody and Sankey revival meetings of a generation ago, died Thursday, August 13, at his home at 148 South Oxford Street, Brooklyn, N. Y. Mr. Sankey was born at Edenburg, Pa., in 1840. He had been blind for five years before his death. His song books are said to have had a circulation of 50,000,000 copies.

LEROY E. HARTLEY, a member of the news staff of The Brooklyn Eagle, died Monday, August 17, after a long illness at his home, 285 Clarkson Street, Brooklyn, N. Y. Mr. Hartley practiced law in New Jersey for a while, and at the outbreak of the Spanish-American war went to Cuba with the Fifth Regiment, N. G. N. J., as a lieutenant. He served as aide-de-camp on General Wheeler's staff. After the war he took up newspaper work. Mr. Harley reported the San Francisco earthquake and a number of other large disasters for Eastern newspapers.

JOURNALISTIC NOTES.

CHARLES HANSON TOWNE has become literary editor of The Delineator, The Designer and The New Idea Woman's Magazine.

JOHN VANCE CHENEY, the librarian of the Newberry Library of Chicago, will hereafter conduct the review pages of The Chicago Examiner.

J. F. MEEHAN, the well-known bookseller of Bath, Eng., has contributed to the London Album, for August, an illustrated article on Mrs. Trollope, the author of "Widow Barnaby," and the at one time much-discussed "Domestic Manners of the Americans."

M. B. MORONEY, the well-known dealer in second-hand books at 404 Central Avenue, Cincinnati, O., has begun the publication of a monthly publication entitled The Thought of the Time, which will oppose "booze" in every form. It is published at fifty cents the year and five cents the copy.

The Atlantic Monthly for September will have an article on "Bret Harte's Heroines," by Henry C. Merriam; on "Edwin Lawrence Godkin," by James Ford Rhodes; on "The Spanish Drama of To-day," by Elizabeth Wallace; and on "The Playwright and the Playgoers," by Brander Matthews.

NOTES ON AUTHORS.

STANLEY WEYMAN, according to the London correspondent of the New York Herald, will write no more stories. His latest work, "The Wild Geese," just issued in England, will probably be his last fiction.

MME. MODJESKA has written her memoirs and impressions in two volumes. The first deals with her life in Poland, where her friends included Paderewski, the De Reszkes and Sienkiewicz, the author of "Quo Vadis." The second volume tells of Mme. Modjeska's early life in the United States. She did not go there is the first place to act, but as the leader of a group of Poles who hoped to establish a new Utopia in California.

THE widespread interest which "The Career of a Journalist," recently published by B. W. Dodge & Co., has aroused has already rendered necessary a second edition. This gives the author opportunity in a new preface to insert an answer to certain strictures and criticisms which have appeared in the reviewing press. He gladly admits that among the great flock of newspaper goats are a few sheep.

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

H. M. CALDWELL & Co. will bring out this fall "Caldwell's Boys' and Girls' Home Annual," which is planned to resemble the old English and American annuals for adult readers, in being composed of entirely new stories, new verses and new pictures.

JAMES POTT & Co. will publish in the fall a book by Edward B. d'Auvergne on "The English Castles," discussing the architecture of the English castles, and endeavoring to reconstruct for his readers those old strongholds of feudal times. The book will be furnished with thirty-two illustrations.

THE OUTING PUBLISHING COMPANY have in preparation a practical handbook on the horse, entitled "The Horse—How to Ride and Drive," by F. M. Ware, which will give information on such subjects as "How to know the horse you buy," "How to feed your horse," "How to harness, saddle and bridle," etc.

THE GRAFTON PRESS, New York City, have just brought out a genealogy of the Coles or Cowles family, by Ernest B. Cole, of Indianapolis, entitled "The Descendants of James Cole of Plymouth, 1633;" also, "Egypt and Its Betrayal," by Elbert E. Farman, ex-consul at Cairo, already fully described in these columns.

WARNER'S "American Charities," which for several years has been the standard work of reference upon its subject, is to be presented in entirely revised and enlarged form by its publishers, Thomas Y. Crowell & Co., this fall. The same firm announce a new poetic version of "The Pearl," a medieval poem, by Professor Sophie Jewell, of Wellesley.

L. KNIGHT, 16 Cortland Street, New York City, handles the fine art edition of "The Greater Works of Bulwer-Lytton," gotten up by G. J. Howell & Co., London. The edition is in twelve volumes, with photogravure illustrations, beautifully printed by T. & A. Constable, of Edinburgh. It will be known as the Edinburgh edition of Bulwer.

THE FUNK & WAGNALLS COMPANY will publish in September the poetical works of William Cleaver Wilkinson, Professor of Poetry and Criticism in the University of Chicago. The bulk of the forthcoming "Poetical Works," which will be in five volumes, is comprised in the following titles: "The Epic of Saul," "The Epic of Paul," and "The Epic of Moses."

THOMAS WHITTAKER, INC., has just placed upon the market "Whittaker's Model of the Motor Cycle. It is gotten up by the same manufacturer who prepared the model of the automobile, locomotive and other mechanical charts. It consists of colored plates with explanatory letterpress, the plates being superimposed and arranged so as to give a proper idea of the size and location of the frame, running gear, motor, etc.

B. H. BLACKWELL, Oxford, Eng., has brought out the Stanhope Essay for 1908, by Edward S. Lyttel, on "Sir Walter Temple." The author has succeeded in drawing a picture of his subject, whom he considers "in some respects a remarkable figure among the statesmen of his generation, in others as dwindling into insignificance," and of his times, that must be taken into account in studying the diplomatic history of England in the seventeenth century.

B. W. DODGE & Co. have in preparation "The Sundial," a mystery story, by Fred M. White, author of "The Crimson Blind;" "The Broken Snare," a psychological romance, by Ludwig Lewisohn; "The Stuff of Dreams," a New York story, by Edith Sessions Tupper; "Pomp and Circumstance," by Dorothea Gerard; "An Adventure in Exile," a romance of Normandy, by Richard Duffy; also, "The Marooners," a story of West Indian wreckers and beachcombers, by Charles Frederick Holder.

MASSENET'S opera, which is to be performed in New York this season with Mary Garden in the leading rôle, "The Juggler of Notre Dame," is founded on the story which Anatole France tells in "Our Lady's Juggler," which is included in the volume "Mother of Pearl," the first volume to appear in the complete limited edition of France's works in English, now being published by John Lane Company, New York City. This week another volume has been added in the series, "The Garden of Epicurus."

THE OXFORD UNIVERSITY PRESS will shortly publish another volume about Canada in Sir C. P. Lucas's Historical Geography of the British Colonies. The author, Professor H. E. Egerton, confines himself to history, starting with British rule to the Quebec Act, and ending with the Dominion of to-day; and the volume contains several appendices, ten maps and an index. J. D. Rogers, who wrote "Australasia" for the same series, will deal with the geography of Canada in another volume, to be issued presently.

"THE DUKE'S MOTTO" has been decided upon as the title of the novel by Justin Huntly McCarthy which Harper Brothers expect to publish next week. This is the second novel the author published this year, his "Seraphica" having been issued by the Harpers last February. Books by the following authors are in active preparation: Mrs. Humphry Ward, Robert Hichens, William Dean Howells, Lew Wallace, Hamlin Garland, George Harvey, Augustus Thomas, Kirk Munroe, Peter Newell and many others.

LONGMANS, GREEN & CO. will publish in the fall "Angling and Art in Scotland," some fishing experiences related and illustrated, in which a parallel is drawn between the art of the angler and that of the landscape painter, with thirty-two colored plates and other illustrations, by Ernest E. Briggs; "Pestalozzi —an Account of His Life and Work," by H. Holman, formerly Professor of Education in the University College of Wales, Aberystwith; also, "The Russian Conquest of the Caucasus," with maps and illustrations, by J. F. Baddeley.

DODD, MEAD & CO. will add to their series of fine color books "The Greater Abbeys of England," by the Right Rev. Francis A. Gasquet, head of the Benedictine Order in England and author of a number of other books dealing with the history of English monasteries. The volume will be illustrated with sixty full-page pictures in color from paintings specially made for this work by Warwick Goble. Another book in this series is by H. J. Mackinder, on "The Rhine," describing the river from its source among the Alps to its mouth. The work will contain fifty-four full-page illustrations in color from paintings specially made for it by Mrs. James Jardine. It will be furnished also with two maps in color and several charts.

PAUL ELDER & CO., San Francisco, Cal., announce a volume of essays by Charles Mulford Robinson, entitled "The Call of the City," in which the author takes up the cudgels for the disparaged town; "Quatrains of Christ," by George Creel, a Kansas City journalist, whose faith is the simple, unquestioning creed of the early Christians, with an introduction by Julian Hawthorne; "Animal Analogues," by Professor Robert William Wood, of Johns Hopkins University by which and the author's free-hand drawings observers will be able to tell an antelope from a canteloupe, etc.; also, a new edition of Professor Wood's irresistible book, "How to Tell the Birds from the Flowers," of which upwards of 20,000 copies were sold last December.

HENRY HOLT & CO. have in preparation for the fall a new book by Charles Battell Loomis, entitled "A Holiday Touch, and Other Tales of Dauntless Americans," consisting chiefly of anecdotes of Americans "who won out smiling;" "The Carolyn Wells Year Book," a volume of fifty-two engagement blanks, faced by pages of light verses, limericks or jests by the inimitable Miss Wells, occasionally decorated by Miss Bertha Stuart, Oliver Herford, Strothman and de Fornaro; "The Pleasant Thought Year Book," for each day of the year, selected by Mary R. J. Dubois; also, "Davy Jones's Yarns, and Other Salted Songs," by Thomas R. Ybarra, with illustrations by Henry Mayer, of the New York Times, a book in which the imagination and humor of both versifier and artist are restrained by nothing but propriety.

J. B. LIPPINCOTT COMPANY have just brought out an important volume on "Hydro-Electric Practice," by Henry A. E. C. von Schon, treating authoritatively of a subject in which there is a rapid growing interest. The volume is profusely illustrated with charts, diagrams, plans, profiles and views. It will be of great value to the engineer, manufacturer, investor, financier and the promoter. They announce a full-length novel by Louis Beck, entitled "The Settlers of Karossa Creek," the scene of which is laid in California and the South Seas; also, notable editions of three of Scott's masterpieces, "Kenilworth," "Ivanhoe" and "The Talisman," each of which will contain a preface by the Hon. Mrs. Maxwell Scott, the granddaughter of Scott's biographer, Lockhart, and the great-granddaughter of Sir Walter himself, and illustrations in color from original paintings by Henry J. Ford, Maurice Grieffenhagen and Simon Harmon Vedder.

HOUGHTON MIFFLIN COMPANY will bring out next month in their Household edition the final complete edition of "The Poems of Edmund Clarence Stedman, with a portrait, which will also be issued in library form; "Poems of American History," a storehouse of hundreds of favorite poems on the history of our country from 1492 to the present day, edited by Burton E. Stevenson; "Poems of New England," edited by Henry Wadsworth Longfellow, now first published in separate form from Longfellow's collection of "Poems of Places;" also, "Heracles," a dramatic poem in twelve scenes, by George Cabot Lodge. Later in the year they will publish a Cambridge edition of "Dryden's Poetical Works," edited by George R. Hayes; a Household edition of "The Poems of Richard Watson Gilder," the first complete edition of one of the foremost American poets of to-day; "By the Christmas Fire," by Samuel M. Crothers, Christmas essays imbued with a spirit of happiness; "A Happy Half-Century," by Agnes Repplier, who writes in her happiest view of some of the manners and customs of our grandmothers; also, "Park Street Papers," by Bliss Perry, editor of The Atlantic Monthly, dealing more or less directly with the magazine and with some of the great New England authors.

G. P. PUTNAM'S SONS announce for September 15 a novel entitled "The Sovereign Good," by Mrs. Archer M. Huntington, ("Helen Huntington,") dealing with the social gayeties of the New York "smart set" in New York, on the Long Island beaches, on the banks of the Hudson, in Paris and other fashionable resorts. New Yorkers need hardly be told that its author is part of the world she portrays, and that her pictures of the manners and customs, tone, temper, and whole surface and aspect of New York society are faithful transcripts from life and at every point in close contact with reality. They have in preparation a volume entitled "The Great Fight: poems and sketches," by the late William Henry Drummond, with a biographical sketch of the author of "The Habitant," etc., by Mrs. Drummond, which brings together the material which remained unpublished at the time of the author's death. The collection has been made by Mrs. Drummond, who has provided the book with a preface containing some illuminating comments upon the poems, and with a brief and very interesting account of Dr. Drummond's life. As to the book itself, it is full of the quaint French-Canadian humor and sentiment, and breathes also the devotion to sport and the love of life in the open which together have attracted a large circle of devoted and appreciative readers.

BUSINESS NOTES.

BOSTON, MASS.—Rockwell & Churchill, printers, who for thirty-four years have been at 39 Arch Street, have removed to 291 and 293 Congress Street, one minute's walk from the South Station.

CLEVELAND, O.—C. W. Hippard, for ten years in charge of the Presbyterian Board of Publication, has now associated himself with F. M. Barton, 708-712 Caxton Building, and together they will continue the publication of theological and religious works, which Mr. Barton has made his special line for years.

NEW YORK CITY.—Sieber & Trussell Manufacturing Co., of New York and St. Louis, have applied for membership in the Stationers' Board of Trade.

NEW YORK CITY.—Newton & Cartwright, a new firm of publishers, are established in offices at 156 Fifth Avenue. The members of the firm are Donald W. Newton, for many years a buyer for the Henry Siegel chain of stores, and Otho G. Cartwright, until recently professor of history at Teachers' College, New York City, and editor of several educational publications. Newton & Cartwright will represent several important Western publishers and will also run a line of stationery.

PORTLAND, ME.—Loring, Short & Harmon, whose entire stock was destroyed by fire on June 19, are now fully equipped for business as to their retail Book and Stationery Department in a store in the Congress Square Hotel, which they secured the morning after the fire. They have now a complete and full line of the goods usually kept by them. Their Office Supply Department is located at 49 Exchange Street, and their general offices, wholesale department and bindery are housed in the building at 28-32 Preble Street. Since the date of the fire they have bought entire new stock and machinery, and are now running as usual, only under the inconvenience of being in five places to carry on the business formerly contained in one building. Their old stand is being rebuilt, and two stories will be added to the building, giving them six extra floors, which they hope to occupy some time late in the fall.

TERMS OF ADVERTISING.

Under the heading "Books Wanted" book-trade subscribers are given the privilege of a free advertisement for books out of print of five nonpareil lines, exclusive of address, in any issue except special numbers, to an extent not exceeding 100 lines a year. If more than five lines are sent, the excess is at 10 cents a line, and amount should be inclosed. Bids for current books and such as may be easily had from the publishers, and repeated matter, as well as all advertisements from non-subscribers, must be paid for at the rate of 10 cents a line.

Under the heading "Books for Sale," the charge to subscribers and non-subscribers is 10 cents a nonpareil line for each insertion. No reduction for repeated matter.

All other small undisplayed advertisements will be charged at the uniform rate of 10 cents a nonpareil line. Eight words may be reckoned to the line.

Parties with whom we have no account must pay in advance, otherwise no notice will be taken of their Communications.

BOOKS WANTED.

☞ In answering, please state edition, condition, and price, including postage or express charges.

Houses that are willing to deal exclusively on a cash-on-delivery basis will find it to their advantage to put after their firm-name the word [Cash.]

☞ Write your wants plainly, and on one side of the sheet only. Illegibly-written "wants" will be considered as not having been received. The "Publishers' Weekly" does not hold itself responsible for errors.

It should be understood that the appearance of advertisements in this column, or elsewhere in the "Publishers' Weekly," does not furnish a guarantee of credit. While it is endeavored to safeguard these columns by withdrawing the privilege of their use from advertisers who are not "good pay" booksellers should take the usual precautions, as to advertisers not known to them, that they would take in making sales to any unknown parties.

JUST PUBLISHED

By FRANK HATFIELD

12mo. Maroon Cloth. Gold Stamp. 430 pages. $1.50

A Narrative of Thrilling Adventure and Experiences

TWO Chicago business men are persuaded by an old Hungarian to go with him into the heart of Africa on a voyage of discovery.

After months of hardship and thrilling adventure, a mountain is reached by the travelers, and owing to a singular phenomenon in which the surrounding hot sea recedes every seven years, an entrance is found to the interior of the mountain, and by almost superhuman effort, they finally reach its summit.

Here they find a people who, for thousands of years, have lived a life free from every form of self-seeking—the ideal life; a race of giants, physically and intellectually, who in our year one, had controlled the solar energy and made it subservient to their needs; had constructed telescopes so far superior to what are known that they bring the moon and planets within the range of intelligent perception; had worked out the principles of acoustics to such an extent that, without a medium, conversation could be carried on at great distances; had through their mastery of the problems of the storage of power, annihilated space; and had discovered wonderful methods of lighting and of time-keeping, through unseen forces.

The book abounds in romance, and food for thought and discussion for him who can read between the lines. Altogether, the work is destined to provoke discussion and create a large interest.

Paul Anthony Christian

By HIRAM W. HAYES

Blue Cloth. 415 pages. $1.50 postpaid

THIS BRILLIANT NOVEL IS NOW IN ITS TENTH THOUSAND

The interest in CHRISTIAN HEALING so rapidly spreading throughout the world finds an answer in the clear statements of this skilfully woven story of adventure, romance and helpfulness.

WHILE the work is pure fiction, it is, as the author says, "written with a purpose," and the story is so simply and dramatically told that it not only succeeds in its purpose, but also succeeds in stamping the author as a writer of the very highest order of fiction. Without going into details, it may be said that the purpose of "Paul Anthony, Christian," is not merely to help pass an idle hour, but to bring out a great truth; and while the love element has been subordinated, it is still a love story of the loftiest type. The book not only tends to elevate the individual, but American fiction as well.

A NEW BAUM BOOK

BAUM'S AMERICAN FAIRY TALES

By L. FRANK BAUM, Author of "The Wizard of Oz"

Hans Christian Andersen and the Brothers Grimm have written the classic fairy tales of the old world. L. Frank Baum has written them for America. Fairies in Chicago? Why not? The idea is audacious and captivating. Here is fairy mystery in the midst of twentieth century rush and roar, and all the more delightful because incongruous, all the more fascinating because unexpected. For every boy and girl in America this is a dear, delicious book of pure fun, rare tales, and bully pictures.

A Little Brother of the Rich

The Most Widely Discussed Novel of the Day

¶ The thousands of columns printed about "A LITTLE BROTHER" in the great newspapers of the country since Friday, August 21st, created such an enormous demand for the book that we were forced to make the publication date Monday, August 24th, instead of September 1st as previously announced.

¶ No book in recent times has created such a sensation as this brilliantly written story.

¶ The first edition (10,000) was sold before Mr. Patterson's name was made public.

¶ The second edition (10,000) is on the press—and was oversold by Monday night, August 24th.

¶ A third big edition has been ordered.

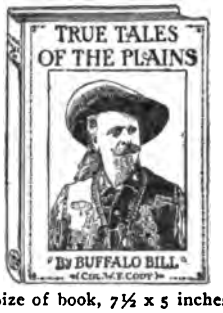
BUFFALO BILL

Writes a New Book Entitled

True Tales of the Plains

There is a great big crowd (a multitude, in fact) of Col. Cody's admirers (many millions) waiting for this extraordinary book. It is far more interesting than any fiction ever written. The events all actually happened just as Col. Cody tells them in his fascinating style.

READ TO-DAY



Size of book, 7½ x 5 inches

How Buffalo Bill killed his first Indian at 11, to save other lives
How his career was nearly ended at 13
His famous pony express ride of 321 miles in 21 hours at 14
His little affair with horse thieves
How Wild Bill killed 10 men. This was the greatest hurry-up fight that ever happened in the West. McCandles and his gang exterminated in this fight by Wild Bill were the worst desperadoes on the face of the earth.
How Buffalo Bill secured his title over Comstock in a great Buffalo hunt
A close shave in a race for life
The Fort Phil Kearny Massacre
The Fight at Elephant Rock
The Battle of Summit Springs—Buffalo Bill to the Rescue
Custer's last Battle
General Miles' narrow escape
The death of Yellow Hand in a duel with Buffalo Bill
Lieutenant DeRudio's hairbreadth escape

These are sample headings of some of the 34 great and thrilling interest-compelling chapters contained in this book of real happenings in the Winning of the West, told with a force never excelled in fiction.

Ask for Buffalo Bill's great book

True Tales of the Plains

It is published in two styles. 1 Vol. 260 pages, large clear type, 16 full-page photo plates of famous Indian fights and action scenes; 33 half-tone engravings of great Indians and Generals in the text; handsome paper covers, 50 cents.

The same in fine cloth binding, embossed in gold with portrait of Buffalo Bill on cover and fac-simile autographed portrait from Rosa Bonheur's famous painting as frontispiece. Sent postpaid on receipt of price, $1.00, or can be had wherever books are sold.

Striking New Fiction

S. P. Hyatt's The Little Brown Brother

A novel of love and war in the Philippines. $1.50

Edgar Wallace's Angel Esquire $1.50

A new creation from Scotland Yard. Sure to please lovers of detective stories. A puzzle in crime with an inexperienced girl contending with three rogues for millions strangely bequeathed to one of the four. Told with a light-hearted good humor that is very alluring.

Ramsey Benson's A Lord of Lands $1.50

A man with a very small income and a very large family tells his unusual experiences following a determination to leave the city and farm it in the northwest. His narrative has the rare and strong appeal that comes from a definite account of attempts to solve the concrete problems of existence under unusual circumstances, something of the appeal of Robinson Crusoe in a story of modern life.

New Juveniles by Standard Authors

FOR BOYS AND GIRLS FROM 9 TO 16 YEARS

Mrs. Rankin's The Adopting of Rosa Marie

A sequel to "Dandelion Cottage." Illustrated by Mrs. Shinn. $1.50.

A most delightful story of natural, fun-loving girls into whose lives there came a little Indian maiden. There are many lively and humorous incidents.

Miss Plummer's Roy and Ray in Canada

By the author of "Roy and Ray in Mexico," "Director of the Pratt Institute Library School," etc. With map, national songs with music, illustrations from photographs. Large 12mo, $1.75 net. Library binding 10 cents additional. Ready Sept. 5

The increasing popularity of the author's book of Mexican travel for children assures a warm welcome to the story of Roy and Ray's trip to modern Canada. The volume embodies very much that is interesting concerning Canadian history, manners and customs, as well as descriptions that describe and pictures that really illustrate. The book will be useful as a travel guide, but it is primarily intended to cover a hitherto neglected field for children.

R. S. Holland's Builders of United Italy

With 8 portraits. $2.00 net

Alfieri, the Poet; Mazoni, the Man of Letters; Gioberti, the Philosopher; Manin, the "Father of Venice"; Mazzini, the Prophet; Cavour, the Statesman; Garibaldi, the Crusader; Victor Emmanuel, the King.

The Sense of the Infinite By Oscar Kuhns

Author of "Dante and the English Poets." $1.50 net.

A study of the trancendental element in literature and life from the time of Plato to the present.

Herbert Trench's Apollo and the Seaman, AND OTHER POEMS

"Deep with thought, deep with significance."—George Meredith. ($1.50 net)

These Fine Exciting Stories Contain Great Possibilities of Sale

THE STATUE

By EDEN PHILLPOTTS and ARNOLD BENNETT

"A new sensation," says the New York Tribune of this astonishingly mystifying novel; "so fresh, so unexpected."

☞ It is a story of the OPPENHEIM kind, and as good a story as even that successful craftsman ever turned out.

☞ It is a "BIG" novel in every sense, one you can confidently recommend to every one, as it is both exciting and admirably written.

☞ It has made a great English success, which is another point you can use effectively when selling it. For instance:

"This clever and ingeniously elaborated novel of intrigue," says the Edinburgh Scotsman, (the book having had a great British success,) "has a conspicuous distinction among books of its kind. The authors have an ingenuity all their own, and the story is entertaining in no common degree."

"It is an audacious and engrossing novel," says the Glasgow News, "and, as might have been expected from two such authors, is written with the utmost ingenuity and skill."

THE MAN WITHOUT A HEAD

By TYLER DE SAIX

"Full enough of mystery and horror," says the New York Evening Sun, "to satisfy the most exacting reader. Thrills are what the readers of these stories ask for, and here are thrills in plenty."

☞ Every one who has read this story, so far, has been crazy about it. In selling it, mention its tremendous sensation in England.

"A masterly detective story."—London Daily Chronicle.

"It is a long time since we have had a detective story so interesting, so thrilling, and so ingenious."—London Court Journal.

"A triumph in detective fiction."—Manchester Courier.

"This volume makes the sensational novel a work of art, a piece of literature. No one could fail to be thrilled by it—and no one should read it late at night."—London Morning Leader.

NOTES IN SEASON.

SAALFIELD PUBLISHING CO. have just ready "The Auto Boys," by James A. Braden, the first volume of the Auto Boys Series, a tale that goes at the speed of the auto boys' 30-H. P. car and has its entertaining records illustrated by Arthur De Bebian.

GEORGE W. DILLINGHAM COMPANY will issue September 10 "The Devil," by Adrian Schade van Westrum, founded on Ference Molnar's play as produced by Harrison Grey Fiske at the Belasco Theatre, New York City. The "novelization" of the version is made directly from the original Hungarian by Alexander Konta and William Trowbridge Larned.

A. C. MCCLURG & CO. will publish September 12 "The Last Voyage of the Donna Isabel," in which the ever-popular and effective Randall Parrish tells his first sea story. The plot concerns the search for a lost Spanish galleon which the hero believes has been buried in the ice for over a century. The voyage takes readers to the Antarctic seas and pictures wild adventures tempered with mystery, and of course this author runs in a delightfully told love story.

B. W. DODGE & COMPANY will publish September 5 Upton Sinclair's new novel, "The Moneychangers," a new interpretation of the panic of 1907, in which is described the struggle for the possession of the Mississippi Steel, the raid on the Gotham Trust Co., the battleship armor contracts made at Pittsburg and "played" at Newport, and the momentous conference that planned the panic. The book was announced for September 12, but the anxiously waiting readers want it a week sooner.

REILLY & BRITTON published August 24 the much-discussed "A Little Brother of the Rich," now openly accredited to Joseph Medill Patterson, a well-known millionaire socialist of the West. The book is said to give truthful pictures of the life of the idle rich who draw their means from the overworked, underpaid poor. The realism of the book is said to be startling, but perhaps such drastic material is needed to make men pause and think of the consequences of the devotion to money, luxury, and materialism in the present reign of lawlessness.

THE EMPIRE BOOK CO., New York, have just ready "True Tales of the Plains," a new book by "Buffalo Bill," (Col. William F. Cody,) containing 34 interesting chapters of real happenings in the winning of the West by one who was there and took part in all the fights with white men and red men, horse thieves and all the circumstances that opposed the spread of civilization. The book is issued in two styles, with many illustrations of great generals and Indians. The cloth edition shows Rosa Bonheur's famous painting of Buffalo Bill on the cover.

HENRY HOLT & CO. publish to-day in fiction "Angel Esquire," by Edgar Wallace, a new creation from Scotland Yard, told with light-hearted good humor and sure to please lovers of detective stories; "A Lord of Lands," by Ramsey Benson, telling of a man with a small income and large family who leaves the city to farm it in the Northwest; and "The Little Brown Brother," by S. P. Hyatt, a novel of love and war in the Philippines. For boys and girls from 9 to 16 years are Mrs. Rankin's "The Adopting of Rosa Marie," a sequel to "Dandelion Cottage," a story of fun loving girls into whose lives there came an Indian maiden; and Miss Plummer's "Roy and Ray in Canada," a companion volume to "Roy and Ray in Mexico," which enjoys ever-increasing popularity. Also out to-day are "Builders of United Italy," by R. S. Holland; Herbert Trench's "Apollo, the Seaman, and Other Poems," pronounced by George Meredith to be "deep with thought and with significance; and "The Sense of the Infinite," by Oscar Kuhns, a study of the transcendental element in literature and life, from Plato to our own day.

Benson, E: Frederic. The blotting book. N. Y., Doubleday, Page & Co., 1908. c. '07, '08. 3-255 p. D. cl., †$1.

The leading character is an unctuous, hypocritical, dishonest middle-aged English solicitor, of whom an elaborate and clever character study is offered. He is the moving cause of the events that make up a story of life that has its scenes in a few wealthy homes at Brighton, England. Morris Assheton is about marrying when the story opens, and an accounting has to be gone into of his estate. His solicitor has been gambling with the funds that he has in trust and dreads the hour when he will be exposed. A murder cleverly planned, for which Assheton stands trial, brings matters to a crisis.

Shows, step by step, how to build a vessel from the mold loft floor, the cheapest method of construction. Every piece of plate and shape is taken up and the method of laying off clearly explained. The book is copiously illustrated with hundreds of line drawings and numerous photographs and affords, in itself, a liberal education in the art of shipbuilding as practiced on the Great Lakes. Frank E. Kirby, who has designed many of the leading passenger steamers on the lakes, gives unqualified endorsement of the book.

Davis, G: Breckinridge. The elements of international law; with an account of its origin, sources and historical development. 3d ed., rev. to date, including the results of the second Peace Conference at The Hague in 1907, and other new material. N. Y., Harper, 1908. c. '00, '08. 30+673 p. O. cl., $3.

Since the last edition of this work was published, in 1900, very considerable changes have been brought about in the relations of the constantly increasing company of states which are now recognized as parties to international law. In this edition the results of the work of the Second Peace Conference have been fully incorporated, and the texts of the several treaties and declarations concluded at the Hague, on October 18, 1907, are given in full in the appendix, with such notation and comment as will enable them to be readily understood by those interested in the study of the international law. The work is a complete account of the origin of international law, its sources and historical development.

Eggleston, G: Cary. The Warrens of Virginia: a novel; founded on the play of W: C. de Mille; il. from scenes in the play. N. Y., G: W. Dillingham Co., [1908.] c. 9-344 p. D. cl., †$1.50.

In shaping his novel from De Mille's play, the author accepts the history of the playwright. The Warrens of Virginia were loyal to the Southern side as Edgar Burton, engaged to a Warren, was to the Northern side in the Civil War. The story shows the horrors of war and the sufferings of both sides. The hero was in danger of death when the surrender of General Lee ended the war. After some time the Northern soldier looks up his Southern love; finds time has smoothed many prejudices and also finds a still willing, faithful Warren of Virginia.

Hayes, Hiram W. Paul Anthony, Christian: a tale of truth. Tenth thousand. Bost., Reid Publishing Co., [1908.] c. '07, '08. 10+415 p. D. cl., $1.50.

The heroine, a young English girl, is engaged to marry a clergyman starting as missionary for Africa. He dies and she decides to devote her life to mission work. In Africa she meets Paul Anthony, a successful business man, who finds time to devote himself to the spread of Christian science. The heathen make strange criticism of the Christian missionaries' doctrines, but they are satisfied with the truth as taught by the great "healer," who explains the Bible and Mrs. Eddy's "Science and health" to meet all circumstances. Romance is secondary to the religious purpose of the story.

Hume, Fergus W. The green mummy. N. Y., George W. Dillingham Co., [1908.] c. 5-324 p. front. D. cl., †$1.25.

Prof. Braddock sends Sidney Bolton over seas to purchase a Peruvian mummy with priceless emeralds in its hands. When reaching the professor's town with his treasure Bolton spends a night at an inn. In the morning the professor receives the case, but it contains the body of the murdered Bolton. Detective work follows; a Peruvian claim is made for the stolen mummy; the mummy is found but the jewels are gone; astonishing facts keep the reader on the alert. The professor's daughter adds her little romance to the tale.

Hunt, Gaillard. John C. Calhoun. Phil., George W. Jacobs & Co., [1908.] c. '07. 335 p. por. D. (American crisis biographies.) cl., $1.25.

Although this is a sympathetic biography of the "great nullifier," Mr. Hunt voices the views of the Southern unionists. He says: "I endeavor to show not only the chief events in the political career of John C. Calhoun, but his complete identification with two opposing popular movements—how he helped to form a broad national sentiment, the part he played in the struggle in his state against that sentiment, and his leadership of the triumphant sectional sentiment. I have shown that, as he was a popular leader, he was dominated by popular forces and that his power lay in his correct interpretation of the will of the people."

The story of a dashing swordsman and soldier of fortune in the days of Louis XIII. He is the avenger of many evil deeds, especially of the murder of Louis of Nevers, whose young daughter falls by accident to his care. The girl stands between her mother's second husband, Louis de Gouzague, and a fortune, and her life must be guarded. The dramatic ending of the story in the presence of the king completes the love story of Henry de Lagardere, the dashing hero.

The date of the beginning of the story is given as April 5, 1879. The man who tells it is John Stephens, aged twenty-four, a native of Massachusetts, who, having gone to South America on business, becomes involved in a revolution on the border of Bolivia. He has fled to Chile, when the story opens, where he finds himself a persona non grata, with every avenue of escape closed to him. A remarkable train of adventures places him in command of an English steam-yacht, which he has innocently helped to steal. The derelict "The Donna Isabel," a treasure ship, supposed to have been lost one hundred years back, plays a ghostly and weird part in the story. There is also a romantic love story.

The characters of this entertaining story are the young members of two families. The Townsends of Worthington Square are wealthy and fashionable and occupy a beautiful home. Their children, however, have known little real pleasure in their lives until the Bells move "round the corner in Gay Street." The Bells are not rich but refined and well educated, the young people active and healthy, full of fun and many interests. A series of incidents brings the families together. The story tells of their many good times, of the influence they have upon each others lives, and of their loves and weddings.

A love story and a first novel by a young matron of Salt Lake City, who utilizes in her descriptions several years' experience in Europe as a student. It opens at Monte Carlo, where a young man loses all his and his sister's funds at the gaming table. He is about to do something desperate when he is approached by Franz Helmar, a celebrated author, who saves him both by advice and money. The young man's sister is the "Virginia Russell" of the story, and they are both Americans. The love story and its interruption for a while by an unscrupulous woman make the plot.

Sinclair, Bertrand W: Raw gold: a novel; il. by Clarence H. Rowe. N. Y., George W. Dillingham Co., [1908.] 7-311 p. D. cl., †$1.50.

A story of adventure in the Northwest in the year 1874. The brave deeds of the famous mounted police of that date are woven into the narrative. They had been sent from Canada to enforce the law, in a territory given over to a lot of "tough" people. The holding up of a party returning from a profitable horse sale is the opening incident. They are robbed of $10,000, and one of their friends murdered. Before his death he tells of a place where he has buried bags of "raw gold." Several parties try to dig this up, with several resulting fights.

Contents: pt. 1, Elementary course; pt. 2, Advanced course. Each part is also issued separately.

Smith, Eleanor. The Eleanor Smith music course. Bk. III. N. Y., American Book Co., [1908.] c. 192 p. O. cl., 40 c.

The principles animating choice and arrangement of music for the preceding books of this course have been closely adhered to in making Book 3. Only songs have been admitted which have charm and excellence of quality. A logical succession of technical problems has been presented, with an abundance of material for their solution. While American composers have contributed largely to the book, it will be found to contain both folk-songs and songs in artistic form from many nations.

Stark, W: Weldon. Guy Hunter. N. Y., Cochrane Publishing Co., 1908. c. 276 p. D. cl., $1.50.

The story of Maude Earle and Guy Hunter. The setting is Georgia since the war, with pictures of the real life in the Southern states, in its social, business and political conditions. Guy Hunter is a well educated man, but poor in comparison with the girl he loves. Her parents are rich and distinguished, and object to the match; but he wins them, as he does Maude, through his integrity and perseverance. The author for many years has been prominent in Southern political life.

A story of Puritan New England of the seventeenth century, in the form of a memoir. The hero is a young Irish cavalier, educated as a Jesuit priest, but serving for years as a soldier. He is captured by the Parliamentary forces during the English civil war, and sent out to the New England settlement as a slave. The story is also told of a passionate love, unhallowed by marriage and ending tragically.

Gives descriptions and histories of 62 ships of the United States Navy, their draught, displacement, complement of men, date of launching, etc.

Upson, H: Swift, M.D. Insomnia and nerve strain; with skiagraphic illustrations. N. Y., Putnam, 1908. c. 13+142 p. D. cl., $1.50 net.

The author contends that mania, melancholia and dementia precox the mental scourges that fill our asylums with young people on the threshold of productive activity are almost always associated with insomnia. He traces the reasons of loss of sleep sometimes to most peculiar causes—dental defects, etc. The influence of very limited inflammatory processes in causing remote and often quite obscure results is given careful attention.

Upton, G: Putnam. The standard concert guide: a handbook of the standard symphonies, oratorios, cantatas, and symphonic poems for the concert goer. Chic., A. C. McClurg & Co., 1908. c. 16+502 p. il. S. cl., $1.75.

Combines in a single volume, in condensed form, the contents of "The standard oratorios," "Standard symphonies" and "Standard cantatas," works long prized by musical students and music lovers. Some new matter has been added to bring the volume down to date, including notices of works by Brückner, Cowen, Dvorak, Elgar, Franck, Mackenzie, Parker, Parry, Sinding, Richard Strauss and Tchaikovsky The text has been made as untechnical as possible, and enriched with portraits of the composers whose works are described.

White, Stewart E: The riverman; il. by N. C. Wyeth and Clarence F. Underwood. N. Y., McClure Co., 1908. c. 6+368 p. D. cl., †$1.50.

This, the most important piece of fiction the author has undertaken since "The blazed trail," is the logical successor of that work. His hero is Jack Orde, "the river man," who from being foreman of a driving gang enters into partnership with an eastern man of his own age, Joseph Newmark, to control log-driving on a Michigan river. At the same time he falls in love with a girl from New York—Carroll Bishop—who is visiting in Orde's home town and whom he follows to New York and marries there. Eight years he and his partner prosper and extend their operations into all directions, buying wood land, cutting their own timber, etc. Treachery both of man and nature nearly ruins the man, but he is shown to have indomitable pluck and wins out in the face of almost inevitable disaster.

The Publishers' Weekly.

FOUNDED BY F. LEYPOLDT.

AUGUST 29, 1908.

The editor does not hold himself responsible for the views expressed in contributed articles or communications.

All matter for advertising pages should reach this office not later than Wednesday noon, to insure insertion in the same week's issue.

Publishers are requested to furnish title-page proofs and advance information of books forthcoming, both for entry in the lists and for descriptive mention. An early copy of each book published should be forwarded, as it is of the utmost importance that the entries of books be made as promptly and as perfectly as possible. In many cases booksellers and librarians depend on the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY solely for their information. The Record of New Publications of the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY is the material of the "American Catalog," and so forms the basis of trade bibliography in the United States.

"I hold every man a debtor to his profession, from the which, as men do of course seek to receive countenance and profit, so ought they of duty to endeavor themselves by way of amends to be a help and an ornament thereunto."—LORD BACON.

THE POSSIBILITIES OF THE BASEMENT.

MOST dealers who have a basement overlook the advantages of this space of their store. Generally, the basement is made the dumping ground of whatever is not in immediate demand or which has been discarded altogether, and so the space is actually degraded to the condition of a cellar into which even the attendants descend with repugnance. And yet, with but little expense and care, the basement may be made a most valuable asset. The general public have a natural aversion to descending stairs, and the inducements to make them do so must be more than ordinary.

One of the best uses for the basement which suggests itself would be a sales place for bargains and reduced merchandise—a place in which to collect odds and ends and in which to dispose of odd and broken lots. And yet it may serve other and better purposes. Let the basement be accessible by as broad a flight of steps as possible, broken with a landing, if the descent be too steep. The shelving and fixtures must be white or in some other bright color. The floor should be covered with an attractive rug and there should be enough easy chairs, with broad backs, to accommodate half a dozen callers. Then, there should be plenty of light, preferably electric lamps with soft white shades. Fresh air and ventilation may be easily supplied with an electric apparatus that will keep the basement cool and supplied with fresh air. The bookseller will find a dozen uses for such a place. In it he may display long sets and odd lines of books which customers like to examine at their leisure. In addition, part of the space may be utilized for a periodical department. Another space may be devoted to commercial stationery, office fixtures, etc., and yet another portion may be allotted to sporting and outdoor goods, the removal of all of which from the store proper will afford more elbow room for the customer and better facilities for the display of the regular stock of books and the higher grades of stationery goods.

From time to time the basement may be utilized for bargain sales of job-lot purchases and the accumulations of various departments throughout the main store. These sales, if properly advertised, will be certain to draw crowds of the bargain-hunters provided the values are real and remarkable, and still leave the store free for the regular trade. Besides, though the natural bent of most women is to hunt bargains, they will not stop at the basement but will travel around the main floor to look around. The initial intention of looking around leads to buying, and anything that will induce this looking around should be fostered. If the basement bargains are genuine and the display of goods and the service in the other parts of the store are attractive and efficient, the dealer in three cases out of five is apt to sell more to the bargain hunter than she really came for.

We would commend to those of our readers who have such space now devoted to baser uses to consider thansforming them into oases from which to derive pleasure and profit.

THROUGH one of those inexplicable blunders at which all the world wonders the "Publishers' Trade List Annual" has appeared with its Supplementary Lists bound ahead of the regular catalogues. After we had seen and "O. K.'d" a correct sample number the binder contrived the Hibernian innovation of leading off with "Supplementary Lists." The Index to these lists appears in its proper place at the end of volume. We apologize and hope the trade will be but slightly inconvenienced by the fact that these important lists are this year to be found in the beginning of the huge book instead of at the end.

COMMUNICATIONS.

INDISCRIMINATE PRICING OF SECOND-HAND BOOKS.

To the Editor of The Publishers' Weekly.

SIR: I think that it would be a good thing for the trade if you would publish an article on the pricing of old books by dealers when answering the advertisements in your "Books Wanted" columns. I make frequent use of the column and get many books that I want through it, but the diversity of prices on the same item is sometimes very great, some dealers seeming to think that merely because a book is advertised for it is very rare, and not considering the fact that they may be competing with other dealers on the same item. A most glaring illustration of this was a book that I advertised for a few weeks ago. It was published about twenty-five years ago, and probably had a fair sale and went out of print. I received thirty-three quotations on it, from a "very good copy $1.25 postpaid" to "good second-hand copy, very rare, $15, expressage extra." Twenty-two of the quotations were from $1.25 to $2.25. Yours very truly,

ISAAC HAMMOND.

CHARLESTON, S. C., August 22, 1908.

PUBLISHER'S IMPRINT SHOULD GUARANTEE CHARACTER OF BOOK.

To the Editor of The Publishers' Weekly.

SIR: Your article on "The Handling of Bad Books" in the issue of August 22 is certainly timely and to the point.

There was a time when a bookseller could judge somewhat of the character of a book by the publisher and author. Such is not the case to-day. Of late, within the last two years, books have been published by a firm that never before tolerated matter of the nature in question, and this fall another reputable firm, following the same line, has left one in doubt whom to trust for decent reading for the public shelf. Just Saturday a librarian told me he was in a quandary as to how to order certain popular novels. Three had already been taken out of the library of recent orders, and it was to him a serious matter as to what to do. The writer told him he was in the same quandary. To be obliged to read every book that came in was a burden that was unwarrantable. A reputable publisher should take care of that in manuscript. He has already taken four books from his reading club that were supposed to be fit for public reading. More is the pity when supposedly religious papers will lend themselves to a complication of the problem by a favorable comment on this sort of stuff.

Within two weeks a librarian purchased a book recommended by a man of good judgment who took his opinion from a favorable review in The Churchman. It was pronounced by four people who read the book to be unfit for the library and it was taken out. This is only one of several that have been removed at a dead loss to the library. The gentleman who recommended the book was greatly incensed at The Churchman for so misleading the public.

It seems strange that, just at a time when two or three French societies are doing all in their power to put a stop to the publication of certain books of this class in France, the American public should have a lot of the same sort put on the market, and that, by publishers who have hitherto been free from such notoriety.

The harm done by the insidious poison of a bad book cannot be overestimated. It strikes at the very root of our civilization, and will undermine our great nation as it did those of the old world if allowed to go unchecked by a healthy public sentiment.

We booksellers can do no greater service to the public than by joining in a strong protest against "questionable" (?) literature, and do all in our power to abolish it from the market. No clean man can handle it without shame. Thank you for your article; give us more on the same line. JOHN STERLING.

WATERTOWN, N. Y., August 24, 1908.

POPULAR FICTION IN JULY.

THE six books which have sold best in the order of demand during the month of July, according to The Bookman, are:

	POINTS.
1. Mr. Crewe's Career. Churchill. Macmillan	349
2. The Lure of the Mask. MacGrath. Bobbs-Merrill	274
3. The Barrier. Beach. Harper	146
4. The Coast of Chance. Chamberlain. Bobbs-Merrill	86
5. The Wayfarers. Cutting. McClure	70
6. Halfway House. Hewlett. Scribner	67

JOURNALISTIC NOTES.

Appleton's Magazine for September contains the first instalment of Hall Caine's autobiography under the title "My Story." Just now Hall Caine is said to be "the most popular of all the writers in the world."

BEGINNING with the October number St. Nicholas will be issued on the 15th of the month previous to the date carried by the magazine instead of on the 31st ,as formerly. This means that the October number will be issued on September 15, the November number on October 15, and so on. This change is made that dealers may have increased opportunity to continue to develop sales, following their excellent record of the past year. During the "panic year," when many magazines showed a decided falling away in newsstand sales, St. Nicholas scored an increase of nearly 40 per cent.

PERSONAL NOTES.

C. W. HIPPARD, for ten years in charge of New York Depository of the Presbyterian Board of Publication, is now associated with F. M. Barton, Caxton Building, Cleveland, Ohio, in the publication of religious and theological books, continuing the business which Mr. Barton has maintained for some years past.

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

COCHRANE PUBLISHING COMPANY, Tribune Building, New York City, have just ready "Guy Hunter," by William Weldon Stark, for years prominent in Southern political life, of which the setting is Georgia of the present time. In the near future they will issue "The Herd," by J. O. Patricia Ward, an exposé of land frauds and oppression in the Dakotahs; and "The Honor of a Lee," by Libbie Miller Travers, a tale of the Civil War.

J. B. LIPPINCOTT Co. have nearly ready for fall publication "My Lady of the Fog," by Ralph Henry Barbour; "The Sunny Side of the Hill," by Rosa Nouchette Carey; "The Adventures of Louis Blake," a complete novel by Louis Beck; "The Lost Angel," by Katherine Tynan; "Under the North Star and Southern Cross," by Francis Sinclair; and "The Tether," by Ezra S. Brudno, which is now definitely promised for September 15.

DODD, MEAD & Co. will issue September 26 Katherine Cecil Thurston's "The Fly on the Wheel," which has had a most successful run in The Bookman, as already noticed some weeks back. According to reports from London, this new novel, by the author of "The Masquerader" and "The Gambler," has been first on the list of the seven best-selling books in England, and bids fair to have a long run among the "six best-sellers" in America.

BOBBS-MERRILL Co. have a charming new doll book for the holidays. Josephine Sidney Gates is as fortunate as ever in "The Live Dolls' Play Days," with illustrations by Virginia Keep. The story exploits the rival attractions of the Teddy Bear and the old-fashioned dollie. They have also ready Baum's "American Fairy Tales," with many pictures in color by George F. Kerr, all uniform with "The Wizard of Oz." What more need be said?

LOTHROP, LEE & SHEPARD Co. have now ready "Myrtle Baldwin," by Charles Clark Munn; and "Two Gentlemen of Virginia," by George Cary Eggleston, both fully described in recent issues. We wake up and feel that Christmas is approaching when we see already prepared for the young "A Little Heroine of Illinois," by Alice Turner Curtis; "The Boat Club Boys of Lakeport," by Edward Stratemeyer; "Little Sister and Prue," by Amy Brooks; "The Hero of Pigeon Camp," by Martha James; and "The Story of Frederick the Great for Boys and Girls," by Kate E. Carpenter.

RAND, MCNALLY & Co. have made fascinating preparations for the holidays. Among their books now ready for the trade are: "The Muffin Shop," by Louise Ayres Garnett, with drawings by Hope Dunlap; "Really Babies," by Elizabeth Brownell, illustrated from charming photographs of children; "Peter Pumpkin in Wonderland," by Ida M. Huntington, illustrated in colors and from drawings by Mary Isabel Hunt; "Her Majesty the Queen," an artistic book by Ethel Elaine Barr, who also has prepared "His Majesty the King;" "Little Rhymes for Little Readers," by Wilhelmina Seegmiller, illustrated by Ruth M. Hallock; "Sunbonnet Babies' Book," by Eulalie Osgood Grover, with colored illustrations; Robert Louis Stevenson's "A Child's Garden of Verses," in a beautiful illustrated edition; "The Overall Boys," text by Eulalie Osgood Grover and illustrations in color by Bertha L. Corbett; and "Japanese Fairy Tales," by Teresa Peirce Williston, illustrated in five colors by Sanchi Ogawa.

DUFFIELD & Co. are preparing for their New Medical Library "The Babees' Book: Medieval Manners for the Young," done into modern English from Dr. Furnivall's texts, with an introduction and notes by Edith Rickert, and illustrated by photogravures after illuminations in contemporary manuscripts; and "The Legend of the Holy Fina, Virgin of Santo Gemignano," translated from the fourteenth century manuscript of Fra Giovanni di Coppo, with notes and introduction by M. Mansfield, with photogravure reproductions after illuminations in the fourteenth century Latin version now preserved in the Spedale di Santa Fina at San Gemignano, the frescoes by Ghirlandajo in the Santa Fina Chapel of the Collegiate Church of that town, and other original sources. This medieval library is gotten up in old brown pigskin, with antique clasps. The new volumes in preparation for the Shakespeare Library are "Much Adoe About Nothing," Old Spelling edition, edited by Dr. Furnival; and "Sources and Analogues of Midsummer Night's Dream," by Frank Sidgwick.

HARPER & BROTHERS will publish during September "The Testing of Diana Mallory," by Mrs. Humphry Ward, who, it is said, has given her readers a heroine worthy to rank with "Kitty Ashe" and "Lady Rose's Daughter." "A Spirit in Prison," by Robert Hichens, with its scene on a little island near Naples and a story full of color and emotion; "The Toy-Shop," by Margarita Spalding Gerry, a wonderful study of Lincoln and his visits to an old toy-maker; "Every Man for Himself," by Norman Duncan, a romance set in the barren land of Labrador the author knows so well; and "Gilbert Neal," by Will Harben, with scene in Georgia, telling of the perils of love between the married man and unmarried woman in a realistic and convincing way. For younger readers there will be "Uncle Sam's Business," by H. Crittenden Marriott, describing all the powers and duties of government; "Wee Winkles at the Mountains," by Gabrielle Jackson, a fine story of summer days in a pretty camp surrounded by pet animals; "How to Understand Electrical Work," by William H. Onken, associate editor of the Electrical World; and "Mr. Wind and Madam Rain," by Paul de Musset, which will be added to Harper's Young People series. "The Speaking Voice," by Katherine Jewell Everts, justly criticises American voices and gives various remedies for their improvement founded on the experience of this eminent voice culturist.

FUNK & WAGNALLS Co. have just ready "The Hindu-Aryan Theory on Evolution and Involution," by T. C. Rajan, (Iyengar,) of Poona City, India, which seeks to offset many false statements made by careless writers concerning the philosophy of Rajayoga and to give a clear exposition of that philosophy; and "The Common-Sense of the Mind Cure," by Mrs. Laura M. Westall, which is not a contribution to Christian Science in the ordinary sense of the term, but a treatise on the scientific use of will power. During September the house will issue "The Palace of Danger," by Mabel Wallace, a novel of the Court of Louis XV., in which Mme. de Pompadour is the leading character; "Mind, Religion and Health," by Rev. Dr. Robert Macdonald, the long-expected exposition of the Emmanuel movement for the treating of disease by mental suggestion; and "The Poetical Works of William Cleaver Wilkinson, noted in last issue; and October will bring "The Call of the City," by Rev. Dr. David J. Burrell, a warning to young men leaving moral homes to take up life in cities; "A Junior Congregation," by Dr. James M. Farrar, special talks that have been given in the First Reformed Church, Brooklyn, to an organization of its young people, "the future men and women of the church; "The Union Prayer-Meeting Helper for 1909;" and "A Working Grammar of the English Language," by James C. Fernald.

THE CLIQUE

(ESTABLISHED 1890)

The Recognized Organ of the Second-Hand Book Trade

THE CLIQUE is read by every bookseller who deals in old books in Great Britain, and by many in the United States and on the Continent.

THE CLIQUE advertises for about 4000 books every week; books which are wanted by its Members, and for which they are willing to pay a fair price.

THE CLIQUE is issued to booksellers only, its motto being "The Trade for THE TRADE." Booksellers can therefore report to our advertisers in confidence that they will not be "cut" by amateur dealers, who are not obliged to make their living by selling books.

THE CLIQUE is the best medium for all advertisements which appeal to booksellers, and its rates are lower than those of any tradepaper in the world.

SUBSCRIPTION 6s 6d ($1 50) per annum, post free; but as all subscriptions terminate in December subscribers may deduct 1½d (three half-pence) for each week of the year that has passed.

Pointers for Publishers

PUBLISHERS of forthcoming books to be issued during the Fall season of 1908 are reminded that the Fall Announcement Number of THE PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY, to be issued under date of September 26, is in many respects one of the most important issues of the year. Booksellers generally find it invaluable in making up their holiday orders and for descriptive selections for their own catalogues and circulars. Librarians also use it extensively in making up their purchase lists for the new season. Note then :

1st. That the dictionary reference list of new books to be issued will be made up as complete as possible from material procurable between now and September 10. It is therefore very important for all publishers to send in early lists of their announcements, giving as much data as practicable of all forthcoming works.

2nd. That the number is especially valuable for advertising, since an ad. supplements the reference list and keeps your descriptive announcements immediately before the buyer during the period he is planning for the new season.

The bookseller naturally expects to find the leading books and "best sellers" featured in the advertising pages, and his judgment is largely influenced by the publisher's confidence in his leaders as shown in his advertisement. The publisher, therefore, can not expect the dealer to stock up on books that are apparently not of sufficient importance to be advertised.

New Novel

The

MONEYCHANGERS

"A New Interpretation of the Panic of 1907"

Cloth, 12mo, $1.50

The second volume of the startling trilogy descriptive of the social and financial life of the metropolis, a real story too, not merely the introduction to one.

The titanic struggle for the possession of the "Mississippi Steel," the raid on the "Gotham Trust Co.," the battleship armor contracts, made at Pittsburg and played at Newport, the momentous conference that planned the "panic"—all these are incidents in a story breathless in interest, epic in power, terrible in the ruthlessness of its sincerity.

B. W. DODGE & COMPANY

43 West 27th Street, New York City

Owing to the large amount of advance publicity given "The Moneychangers" in the daily press, the publication date has been changed from Sept. 12th to Sept. 5th. The first large edition was exhausted two weeks before publication; the second is now on the press.

"The Book of the Season"

THE BLUE LAGOON

By

H. De Vere Stacpoole

Second Edition in America

Sixth Edition in England

Cloth, $1.50

LONDON, July 18.—Mr. Jacob Tonson, the rather spiteful but always entertaining gentleman whose "Literary Causeries" must have served to secure for his paper, The New Age, (a Socialistic organ,) a far wider following than it could otherwise have attained among the general public, has lately had an original idea—that is, to pass judgment, now that the publishing season is over, on the novels of the year and to announce which of them is not "the novel of the year." It is a common enough feat to pick out, or to attempt to pick out, the book which has been the novel of the year. Nearly every literary journalist accomplishes this annually in the month of July. It is therefore a pleasing change to find Mr. Tonson taking hold of the other end of the stick and telling us with emphasis what is not the novel of the year.

Finally there is mentioned A. de Vere Stackpoole's "The Blue Lagoon," and this book Mr. Tonson chooses as the one really deserving to be called the book of the season, for, after all, he has been no more able to keep his choice to himself than are the various critics whose opinions he ridicules.

Mr. Stackpoole's book certainly comes near to deserving the honor in question. I have heard a literary woman for whose opinions I have great respect pay it a tribute which could not perhaps be surpassed in all the history of criticism.

"I was combing my hair one night before going to bed," said she, "when my eye lit on 'The Blue Lagoon.' I picked it up and commenced to read it. About an hour and a half later I laid the book down—I was still seated before my dressing table; I had not even paused to put down the comb!"

The fate of an American book abroad, like the fate of any other American of interest to the in the New York Times Saturday Review of Books.

MARY ROBERTS RINEHART

Author of THE CIRCULAR STAIRCASE

MARY ROBERTS RINEHART has accomplished a feat most rare in the experience of the publishing world with "The Circular Staircase."

Not an adverse note has been found in the storm of critical enconiums which has greeted its appearance.

From every part of the United States praise comes pouring in. Nothing but praise! Praise unlimited!

Cynics and optimists, professionals and amateurs, booksellers and bookbuyers vie with one another to say best what they all feel,---the magnificent triumph of Mary Roberts Rinehart and "The Circular Staircase."

Two Gentlemen of Virginia

By GEORGE CARY EGGLESTON

Illustrated, $1.50

No one but a Virginian gentleman is quite capable of depicting the ideal called to mind by that term, and no one lives better qualified to do so than George Cary Eggleston. As a love story, it is charming; as a picture of the "Old Régime," it is matchless.

Myrtle Baldwin

By CHARLES CLARK MUNN

Illustrated, $1.50

This book is a revelation of life in the under world of a great city and is the most powerful and dramatic of all of this celebrated author's works.

The story is told with forceful vigor and pathos, and will hold the reader's attention from cover to cover.

With 8 illustrations in color by MAYNARD DIXON

Cloth, 8vo. Price $1.50

An imaginative romance to be kept on the shelf with the best of Rider Haggard, Stevenson and Jules Verne.

It deals with a band of colonists on a volcanic island, with their singular adventures and with their rescue from death by the mysterious Lentala. The love affair is a most unusual one, novel and charming.

COFFEE AND A LOVE AFFAIR

An American Girl's Romance on a Coffee Plantation

By MARY BOARDMAN SHELDON

This novel has the same feminine charm and sentiment that determined the striking success of some recent fiction issued in the same size at the same price. It will become widely popular with women readers of all tastes.

The heroine is a cheerful, resourceful American girl whom a sudden fancy takes to South America. Her vivacious and witty descriptions of the Sierra Nevadas and the life on a coffee plantation would of themselves distinguish the book. The rivalry for her hand on the part of an old lover from New York and an aristocratic Spaniard makes a fascinating romance.

A splendid book for an inexpensive gift.

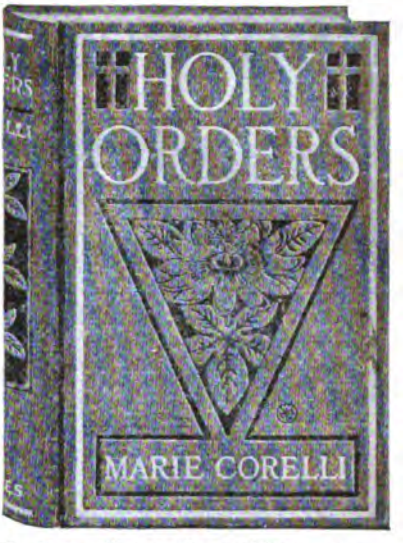
HOLY ORDERS

The Tragedy of a Quiet Life

By MARIE CORELLI

A dramatic story of love and hate, of great strivings and splendid unselfishness contrasted with shameful greed and ignorant sloth.



Although the action takes place in quiet English villages, the problems are the same vital ones we are struggling with in America. The Drink Evil and the Temperance Question; the relations of the Christian Church and the yellow press to the lives of the common people, are matters of concern to us as much as to the English. These and still other burning questions have their part in HOLY ORDERS. Miss Corelli's admirers and readers, numbered by hundreds of thousands, will find this her most vital and important novel.

A SPIRIT IN PRISON

Will be Published Early in September

In Italy, his power of atmospheric narrative at its best, Mr. Hichens lays this new story. The action takes place on a small island in the bay just outside of Naples. Here Hermione is living with her child, Vere, a charming, gracious, childlike girl of sixteen. The story opens with a scene which is extremely light and pretty, at the same time portentous. It continues to a triumphant end.

NOTES IN SEASON.

G. P. PUTNAM'S SONS have just ready "Flower of the Dusk," Myrtle Reed's new novel, full of all the witchery of imagination and sureness of technique that made "A Spinner in the Sun" and "Lavender and Old Lace" such delightful stories.

REILLY & BRITTON will have an entirely new Baum book in "Dorothy and the Wizard of Oz." The Baum books always capture old and young, and the publishers are doing an amount of clever advertising that will make the dealers' part an easy one.

MOFFAT, YARD & CO. publish to-day "The Big Fellow," by Frederick Palmer, a fine American book about a fine American hero and on a big American subject; and "The Spitfire," by Edward Peple, a novel of love and adventure with colored frontispiece by Christy, and other attractive pictures by J. V. McFall.

CHARLES SCRIBNER'S SONS will publish September 12 "The Coming Harvest," by René Bazin, a strong story of life in the country in France to-day, the translation of a novel that has sold more than 100,000 copies in France since it appeared a few weeks ago; "Miss Esperance and Mr. Wycherly," by Allen Harker," a romance of a quiet English village by the author of "Concerning Paul and Fiametta;" and "The Bible of Nature," by J. Arthur Thomson.

FREDERICK A. STOKES CO. have just ready "By Right of Purchase," by Harold Bindloss; "Lentala of the South Seas," by W. C. Morrow; and "Coffee and a Love Affair," by Mary Boardman Sheldon. By September 18 they promise Marie Corelli's "Holy Orders: the Tragedy of a Quiet Life," in which questions such as temperance, yellow journalism, and the influence of the Christian Church to-day are freely handled.

BLOCH PUBLISHING CO., 738 Broadway, New York, ("The Jewish Book Concern,") call attention to their line of post-cards, Jewish New Year's cards and novelties of which the values are exceptional, enabling the retailer to realize a fine profit. The Jewish New Year begins Friday evening, September 25, and every dealer can be sure of large sales, for the Jews send New Year's cards not only to relations and friends, but to people with whom they have the slightest social relations. Bloch Publishing Co. offer descriptive price list and samples to all who will send for them.

MITCHELL KENNERLEY, New York City, publishes to-day Oliver Herford's adaptation of Ferenc Molnar's "The Devil," with illustrations from the play, which is now having so great a success in New York City. He has also just ready "The Astronomy of the Bible," by E. W. Maunder, a very important book by one of the leading authorities in England; and "The Methods of Mr. Ames," by Frederic Carrel, author of "John Johns," an extraordinary character study of a man of enormous wealth, possessed of some Machiavellian traits.

HARPER & BROTHERS will issue September 17 "The Testing of Diana Mallory," Mrs. Humphry Ward's new novel that has met with such high praise during its serial run in Harper's Magazine. The life of Diana Mallory, who began it under the cloud of the report that her young mother was a murderess, who was deserted by the lover who should have stood between her and calumny; who finally forgave all and went to her faithless lover to make a man of him, is told with all Mrs. Ward's fidelity and truth and more than her usual fire and passion. Very shortly the house will also have ready "A Spirit in Prison," a sequel to Robert Hichen's strong story, "The Call of the Blood," which begins sixteen years after that story closes, with its scene on a small island just outside the Bay of Naples. The mysteries of the first story are made clear and the new tale shows all the old force of that wonderful romance, "The Garden of Allah."

Professor Jackson, a great London scientist, claims to have made a discovery by which he can separate what he calls the astral body from the physical. While the physical lies in his laboratory in a death like trance the owner of the astral body can by willing it go to any part of the world he desires in a flash. A young Englishman, persuaded to make the experiment, wills himself (or his astral body) to India. There he finds himself in the temple of the Brotherhood of Wisdom, an associationn dedicated to the acquisition of scientific knowledge, at any price and by any means, and discovers they are holding as prisoner the astral body of a beautiful girl. How she or it is finally rescued, in spite of the weird powers of the Brotherhood, is told in many scenes of thrilling interest.

Benton, Caroline French, [pseud. for Caroline Benedict Burrell.] Living on a little. Bost., Dana Estes & Co., 1908. c. 264 p. D. cl., $1.25.

Written in the same attractive style that made "A little cook book" by the same author so popular. A book of practical hints for young people beginning housekeeping on small means; people of all ages and conditions of life will find the book of great value. It is written in a series of conversations, between a young girl looking forward to marriage in a year and her clever sister, an experienced, practical housekeeper. The subjects treated are: Dividing the income; The kitchen; Buying; Linen; Arranging the meals; Cooking; The table: The dinner; Breakfast; Luncheon; Supper; The emergency closet; Dinner parties; Luncheons for a little; Midsummer housekeeping and many others.

Bindloss, Harold. By right of purchase; with a front. in colours by Alfred Ja. Dewey. N. Y., Frederick A. Stokes Co., [1908.] c. 6+345 p. D. cl., †$1.50.

The scene is western Canada, in a great wheat growing district. It is the story of a young English girl who marries the owner of an immense farm in the northwest through mercenary motives. She does not consider him her social equal, in fact rather despises him, because he works with his hands. Her gradual change, from antagonism to the mode of life and habits of thought of a new country, to contentment and happiness and admiration for the many noble qualities of her husband, whom she learns to love, is the story. The dangers they share bring out the girl's best traits, the conclusion being a victory for both.

Treats of the time relations found in English verse rhythm. States the defects of the current methods of studying the subject and the advantages of psychological experimentation by the aid of graphic records of the voice. Selected examples of English verse are then examined and the various theories of metrists and psychologists on the subject criticized in the light of the experimental results.

Carpenter, Mrs. Kate E. Rushmore. The story of Frederick the Great for boys and girls; with il. and map. Bost., Lothrop, Lee & Shepard Co., [1908.] c. 275 p. por. O. cl., $1.

An interesting part of the career of Frederick the Great is his unusual childhood, under the rule of one of the sternest fathers that a boy ever had. All this, as well as the story of his later triumphs which won for him the undying title of the "Great," is told in the pleasing style which has made Mrs. Carpenter's "Story of Joan of Arc" so continuously popular, and with scrupulous historical accuracy. The colored map showing "Prussia and her neighbors in the time of Frederick the Great" is a valuable feature.

Charlton, Rev. Emanuel C. A Puritan captain. Dayton, O., Christian Publishing Co., 1908. c. 268 p. D. cl., $1.

The author was graduated from the quarterdeck of an old-time Boston and Australian packet and spent thirteen years as missionary sailor in Gloucester. He tells his story of love for his fellow sailors with animation. The puritan captain bethought him of selling the Gloucester fish to Spain, and the story tells the adventures this enterprising plan led to.

Connolly, Ja. Brendan. An Olympic victor: a story of the modern games; with il. by A. Castaigne. N. Y., Scribner, 1908. c. 3-186 p. O. cl., †$1.25.

A story of modern Greece which reaches its climax in the great Marathon race which was run at the revival of the Olympic games in 1896. Loues, the hero, is one of the Greek contestants in that race. His love for Marie, and his desire to win her, is the inciting cause of his participation in the race, of which he is the winner; the characters are well delineated, especially that of old Euripides, the lame shoemaker of Marousi, and the godfather of Loues. The author was one of the athletes who took part in the Olympic games.

The initial volume of the "Little heroine series." The story is for little girls and boys and tells of the early days of the Civil War, when it was very doubtful how portions of states adjoining the line of division would stand when the final test came. This little girl has the opportunity to render a service of greatest importance to the cause of the Union, and by rare discretion and physical courage and endurance is equal to the occasion.

Doyle, Mrs. Martha Claire MacGowan, "Martha James," pseud.] The hero of Pigeon Camp; or, how Lucci made good; il. by J. W. Kennedy. Bost., Lothrop, Lee & Shepard Co., [1908.] c. 233 p. D. (Pigeon Camp ser.) cl., †$1.25.

"Lucci" is one of four boys who have a camp through a summer vacation on the shore of a fine lake. "Lucci" has been a waif, but is well-born and of great artistic ability. He repays the kindness of his young friends by proving himself a real hero when occasion offers. A unique and valuable feature of the story is the instruction the boys receive while merrily helping a friendly gentleman build a home for himself. Various interesting mechanical points are interestingly explained, and the plans of the house are shown, just as the boys helped to build it.

In giving his novel a setting in Virginia, in the year 1857, the author finds his opportunity of making use of knowledge obtained at first hand fifty years ago of the social life of that period. He depicts conditions which actually existed, and considers problems the slave owner had to deal with, little understood even at present. The "two gentlemen of Virginia" are a wealthy plantation owner and his nephew, both men of fine character. The story unwinds itself in the picturesque life of the plantation; it is a love story chiefly, having a most interesting heroine, whose history is cleverly concealed, keeping the reader's curiosity alive almost until the last page.

The adventures of Jack and his friends have already filled a number of volumes. This one takes Jack into regions of great interest in northern Montana, which until recent years have remained almost unknown to man. A bill is now in the U. S. Senate advocating the preservation of this district as a public park. Jack, his guide Hugh and an Indian boy climb the mountains, see the ice fields and glaciers, and learn much about the animals and birds and the geological nature of the country. They encounter whisky traders and Indians hostile and friendly, and find much big game.

A criticism of Christian Science from the standpoint of a Catholic priest. Christian Science, he says, is part of the Modernism which Pope Pius x. has condemned. His pamphlet is largely quotations from Mrs. Eddy's "Science and health" and his refutations. As priest and missionary he warns Catholics against the sect which is neither Christian, because it believes in travesties of the teaching of Jesus, nor Science, because it is not a knowledge of causes and a system, but "a jumble of random absurdities."

Lair, Jules. Louise de La Vallière and the early life of Louis XIV. from unpublished documents; tr. from the 4th French ed. by Ethel Coburn Mayne; with illustrations. N. Y., Putnam, 1908. 12+411 p. pors. O. (Memoir ser.) cl., *$3.50 net.

This study of Louise de la Vallière occupied the leisure hours of six years in the author's life, and is based upon new letters and papers. It was first published in 1880, and has gone through four editions in France. Besides giving the life of the beautiful and fascinating Frenchwoman, maid of honor to the Duchesse d'Orleans, and mistress of Louis XIV. (who made her a duchess), the volume includes the leading scandals of this great monarch's reign. The writer succeeds in portraying this celebrated favorite in most attractive colors; her best traits are brought to the front, and neither is her sin or her repentance forgotten. Index.

Munn, C: Clark. Myrtle Baldwin; il. by H: Roth. Bost., Lothrop, Lee & Shepard Co., [1908.] c. 510 p. D. cl., †$1.50.

The heroine grows up, almost a prisoner, on a little island with her brutal grandfather, who makes a living as a fisherman, and her spinster aunt. She is discovered by the hero, a travelling salesman out on a vacation in his friend's yacht. He is an honorable man and, after hearing her pitiful story, helps her to run away and obtain a position in a large city where she may earn her living. Her story shows how hard it is for any self-respecting young girl of average good looks and without friends or money to earn an honest livelihood and preserve her good name. Myrtle Baldwin does both however, the book ending with a happy marriage.

Author is professor of history, Allegheny College. The subject of this biography is Gregory VII., known as Saint Hildebrand. He was born at Saona, Tuscany, about 1020; died at Salerno, Italy, May 25, 1085. He was of obscure birth, and first came into notice as chaplain to Gregory VI., succeeding him as Pope in 1073, until his death in 1085. His reforms within the Catholic church, and his introduction of broad and most intelligent changes in ecclesiastical rules, serving to build the Papacy, earned him the name of "the builder."

Smith, Francis Hopkinson. Peter: a novel of which he is not the hero; il. by A. I. Keller. N. Y., Scribner, 1908. c. 482 p. D. cl., †$1.50.

Peter Grayson was receiving teller in a well-established old bank in Wall St. He was a delightful, middle-aged man of good family, dearly loving young people, who remained faithful to his comfortable apartment on Fifteenth St. long after the neighborhood had been given over to business. While not the hero, he is a strong influence in the life of the hero, an attractive young man, who comes up from Maryland to take a position in his uncle's stock broking office in Wall St. Disgusted after a few months with the business he seeks Peter's advice. His struggles to make his way in the world and his love affairs are related in a sympathetic way that is very real. The story is a clean, wholesome one, not without its moral.

The Publishers' Weekly.

FOUNDED BY F. LEYPOLDT.

SEPTEMBER 5, 1908.

The editor does not hold himself responsible for the views expressed in contributed articles or communications.

All matter for advertising pages should reach this office not later than Wednesday noon, to insure insertion in the same week's issue.

Publishers are requested to furnish title page proofs and advance information of books forthcoming, both for entry in the lists and for descriptive mention. An early copy of each book published should be forwarded, as it is of the utmost importance that the entries of books be made as promptly and as perfectly as possible. In many cases booksellers and librarians depend on the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY solely for their information. The Record of New Publications of the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY is the material of the "American Catalog," and so forms the basis of trade bibliography in the United States.

"I hold every man a debtor to his profession, from the which, as men do of course seek to receive countenance and profit, so ought they of duty to endeavor themselves by way of amends to be a help and an ornament thereunto."—LORD BACON.

FICTION AS A MENACE TO THE BOOKTRADE.

WE took occasion a short time ago to point out the desirability of stemming the tide of what the London Nation calls "pedestrian work," that is, books of a vulgar or common grade, whether it be fiction or other printed matter—all of which does so much to interfere with the distribution of books of real merit. Undoubtedly, the sale of momentarily popular books sometimes adds considerably to the income of the bookseller: but, on the other hand, farseeing booksellers are coming to realize more and more that the concentration of their efforts upon merchandise of that sort has reacted disadvantageously upon the sale of better books.

We have reached a period in the history of the booktrade, it seems to us, when it is imperative that the booktrade and the public are disabused of the delusion that bookselling is merely the handling of fiction. That way of thinking has caused more confusion, brought more bad feeling into the trade and has actually caused more harm to both publisher and bookseller than all the other perplexities that beset the booktrade put together. It is just because so little knowledge is required to handle fiction, and because the equivocal price of novels is so generally known to the public that the department stores, that usually have larger means at their command than most any half-dozen booksellers in their vicinity combined, seize upon it as bait to bamboozle the public into believing that everything they offer is sold at the same rate at which they sell books—that is, fiction. These stores rarely venture further into the book business than to exploit the novel of the hour, the competitive reprints or remainders of cheaply-made books offered at one time or another by "fly-by-night" publishing concerns as premiums or bait for other ventures, thus leaving the field of the more substantial books to the regular bookseller; and those department stores that do venture to maintain a well-equipped book department realize very quickly that they cannot afford to cut the prices on the better class of books so deeply—if at all—as they can on the books on which there is less risk and which require only the service of the average shop-girl, who to-day is in the tin-ware department, the next day at the ribbon counter, and on another day, when needed to help out, acts as a bookseller.

The more wide-awake publisher, also, is beginning to realize that in cultivating fiction in the hopes of keeping his plant employed and adding to his income, he is engaged in chasing an ignis fatuus. The further he ventures in this direction the deeper he finds himself in the mire, and the less he is in a position to develop the more solid and profitable feature of his profession. Indeed, there is already noticeable a tendency on the part of some of the older publishing houses to make fewer ventures into the realm of fiction, restricting themselves to the products of the authors already on their lists or the really meritorious work of a new writer, and devoting most of their energy, instead, to the publishing of serious books from which only moderate sales can be expected, but from which larger and more certain profits are bound to accrue.

The bookseller, we claim, has an ever widening and growing field as his own, because there are very large classes of books constantly published which are always in demand, and on which the undersellers never cut the price and which are never included in their advertising campaign. Readers in this country are not exclusively readers of fiction, good or bad; and if, unfortunately, in the near future, some publishers should be so blind to their own best interests as to enable the undersellers to discredit the booktrade by beating the life out of the "best sellers," we trust the booksellers of the country will have backbone enough to assist them by "sticking to their last," and by buying only enough of their output of fiction to supply the actual demands of their customers, and to devote the better part of their time and attention to the dissemination of books that are books, the books of all time and for all seasons, the books that count and are more rapidly coming into their own.

We therefore hope that if fiction ever becomes an incubus, and threatens to sap the life of the booktrade, the bookseller may be forearmed to meet the danger before it is too late, because in that event even a revolution might prove futile.

THE VAST COST OF COMPILATIONS.

THE American Consul at Frankfort, Richard Guenther, reports that announcement was made at the annual meeting of the Association of German Engineers, recently held at Dresden, that the great work of compiling the "New Technical Dictionary" had to be stopped, because it was found that the expense of the undertaking would amount to four times the estimates. Mr. Guenther adds:

"The great progress in science and industries had created a vast mass of new terms and matter largely in excess of what had been estimated at the beginning. This stoppage is to be greatly regretted, as the want of a new technical dictionary and encyclopædia is acutely felt by thousands of persons engaged in scientific research, in all lines of commerce and production, in literature, journalism, and in the administration of state and municipal government. It is, however, satisfactory to note that the executive board of the Association of German Engineers has made strenuous efforts to take up and complete this valuable work, and has succeeded in obtaining therefor the aid of the federal government of Germany and of the Ministry of Education of the Prussian Kingdom."

THE NEW CHIEF ASSISTANT LIBRARIAN.

APPLETON PRENTISS CLARK GRIFFIN has been appointed to the place of Chief Assistant Librarian, Library of Congress, made vacant by the death of Dr. Ainsworth R. Spofford.

Mr. Griffin has served as a member of the staff of the Library of Congress for eleven years. Since 1900 he has been chief bibliographer, in charge of the elaborate research undertaken by the Library of Congress, and the compilation of lists of references which the library issues on current public questions; in particular, questions receiving the attention of Congress. His previous service had been in the Boston Public and the Lenox libraries. Mr. Griffin is one of the foremost bibliographers in this country. He is widely known as the compiler of important bibliographic works. Aside from those published by the Library of Congress may be mentioned his "Catalogue of the Washington Collection of the Boston Athenæum," 1897, and his "Bibliography of American Historical Societies," 1907.

COMMUNICATION.

THE NEW BRITISH PATENT LAW.

To the Editor of The Publishers' Weekly.

DEAR SIR: The papers of yesterday contained a cable from London as follows:

PATENT LAWS TO NET ENGLAND $125,000,000.

LONDON, Aug. 28.

The year of grace granted to foreigners under the new patent act expires to-day, and henceforth foreign patents in this country may be revoked by Great Britain after a reasonable interval unless the patented article is manufactured or the patented process is operated in the United Kingdom to an adequate extent.

A great number of foreign firms already have taken sites and started works in Great Britain; many others are making arrangements to do so. These are mainly German and American firms.

Sir Alfred Jones, head of a prominent firm of ship owners, estimates that $125,000,000 will thus be invested here for the manufacture of articles formerly manufactured abroad, and a prominent expert in patent law thinks that no fewer than 8000 patents granted to foreigners will come under the new law.

Here is a fact of profound significance, of importance, of even-handed justice. No more beneficent law has been enacted by Parliament within the past sixty years, since Sir Robert Peel betrayed his country, by admitting foreigners, untaxed, to British markets, under the false name of "free trade," there to compete with every heavily taxed British subject.

This patent law is in entire harmony with the manufacturing clause of our recent copyright acts, and it is not impossible that the British Government may have gotten the idea from these American acts; and it may be stated here that the only reason why the idealists have not succeeded in striking this wise provision from our statutes has been the determined opposition of the Typographical Union—an organization to which the late Booktrade Association of this city was indebted for its uniform success during the entire period of its existence. This association was always in close touch with the union.

This is not an ideal world, and the idealist should long since have learned this great fact and ceased accordingly to apply his ideals "up in the air" to a world of selfishness and wickedness. Trade is war, and it was never more fierce than now, and the sooner we get our battleships and guns of trade under the rule of men who understand this real, this dominating impulse in the situation, the better.

"All hail to the new British Patent Act; bright harbinger of returning to sanity and to statesmanship!" HENRY CAREY BAIRD.

PERSONAL NOTES.

HAROLD PAGET, formerly manager of The John Lane Company, New York, and until recently publisher to Cassell & Company, Ltd., London, has just returned to New York to take the management of the rising publishing business of The John McBride Company. Mr. Paget will also represent in the United States the London firms of Alston Rovers & Company and Eveleigh Nash, as well as looking after the interests here of several English authors.

OBITUARY NOTES.

GEORGE P. ROWELL.

GEORGE P. ROWELL, prominent for many years in the newspaper advertising business, died on Friday, August 28, at Poland Springs, Me., where he had gone in search of health a few weeks back. Mr. Rowell was born at Concord, Vt., on July 4, 1838. After studying in the Lancaster (N. H.) Academy he went to Boston and for a short time was clerk in a retail store, after which he served seven years in the counting room of the Boston Post. In 1865, with Horace Dodd, Mr. Rowell started the business that has carried his name since. Through inquiries as to the best advertising mediums and the information gathered in response to these inquiries, Mr. Rowell accumulated a list of 3000 newspapers in the United States and Canada, and from this beginning the "American Newspaper Directory," known in every newspaper office in this country and Canada, was evolved and started in Boston.

Mr. Rowell, however, soon noticed that the advertising centre of the country was New York, and in 1867 he came to this city. In 1870 Mr. Rowell and his associates bought out John Hopper, a pioneer advertising agent of New York, and extended the scope of his business. At the Centennial Exposition in 1876 Mr. Rowell prepared a comprehensive newspaper exhibit, the first of its kind in this country. He was progressive and original in his methods and maintained his place at the head of his line of business. In 1888 Mr. Rowell started Printer's Ink, a weekly publication full of bright advice to advertisers. Mr. Rowell was a life member of the New England Society of New York, a member of the American Geographical Society of New York, Historical Society, American Forestry Association, New York Chamber of Commerce, Society of Mechanics and Tradesmen, and New York Charity Organization Society. He was a member of the Sphinx, Union League, and Merchants Clubs of New York City. Mr. Rowell was taken to Lancaster, N. H., his boyhood home, for interment.

NOTES ON AUTHORS.

IT is delightful to hear that Comyns Carr is to publish his reminiscences. He has been in the thick of things literary, artistic and theatrical in London for a long time, and his memories of the æsthetic movement, of Whistler, and, indeed, of countless events and personalities, must make entertaining reading.

IT is announced that the authorized "Life of Grover Cleveland" is to be written by his friend, John Finley, president of the College of the City of New York. Mr. Finley asks that persons having letters or other memorials of Mr. Cleveland will kindly loan them to him for the purpose of the biography. All manuscripts will be promptly copied and the originals returned to the owner. Communications should be addressed President John Finley, College of the City of New York, St. Nicholas Terrace, New York City.

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

B. W. DODGE & Co. will issue September 16 "The Broken Snare," by Ludwig Lewisohn, a powerful psychological study of the marriage relation and the final giving in of a man and a woman who started out to defy the conventions.

D. APPLETON & Co. appeal to the trade to place orders for Robert W. Chambers's "The Firing Line" as far in advance as possible to avoid delays. The second edition, bringing the copies issued up to 120,000, is already almost exhausted.

DANA ESTES & Co. are now ready for orders on "The Wooing of Calvin Parks," by Laura E. Richards, a humorous story of "down east;" and "Living on a Little," by Caroline French Benton, a volume of practical hints to young people, both already fully mentioned in former issues.

DUFFIELD & Co. announce for publication on the 15th a new novel entitled "Heartbreak Hill," by Herman Knickerbocker Viele, author of "The Inn of the Silver Moon," "Myra of the Pines" and "The Last of the Knickerbockers," which is said to equal all his former excellent imaginative and descriptive work.

A NEW edition of Judge Tourgée's popular Chautauqua romance, entitled "Button's Inn," has just been put on the market by Mrs. Emma K. Tourgée, the late writer's wife, who will handle at wholesale or retail from her residence at Mayville, Chautauqua Co., N. Y. The old inn is now gone, but the Westfield Chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution propose to mark the site by a boulder.

THE INTERNATIONAL CABLE DIRECTORY Co., No. 17 State Street, New York City, has just ready the tenth annual number of "The International Cable Directory of the World, 1908," which shows a steady growth over previous years. A new feature of this indispensable book is an alphabetical arrangement of the tens of thousands of cable registrations of subscribers to the "Western Union Telegraph Code."

MCLOUGHLIN BROTHERS have a selling book in "The Reminiscences of a Forty-Niner," the memoirs of Cornelius Cole, ex-Senator of the United States from California, which they issued in the spring and which is now coming into its own. The book really supplements the local histories of every section and period it covers from 1843 to 1872, those wonderful years when the United States leaped from a struggling nation into a world power.

J. B. LIPPINCOTT Co. call the attention of dealers to the great success of John Reed Scott's "The Princess Dehra," which has been on the list of six best-sellers in twelve important cities from Maine to California, and ask them the telling question, "Are you selling your share?" The publishers also announce as now ready volume IV. of John Bassett Moore's exhaustive edition of "The Works of James Buchanan." This last volume covers from 1838 to 1841.

C. H. DOSCHER & Co. have just ready a story by "Alexander McArthur," (Mrs. Joseph Nicohla,) entitled "The Leveller." The author is already known by her excellent "Life of Rubinstein," and she has taken the great Russian musician as one of the chief characters of her new novel. The heroine is supposed to be a favorite pupil of the great pianist, and her love story is troubled. She is a Jewess, and the Jews, Russia, nihilism and nihilists furnish rich material which has been skilfully used.

SAALFIELD PUBLISHING CO. call special attention to their line of Webster Dictionaries, which include "Webster's Imperial Dictionary," so fully up to date that it claims to need no supplement; "Handy Dictionaries for Students," four volumes gleaned from the "Imperial"—"Inter-Collegiate Dictionary," "Adequate Dictionary," "Sterling Dictionary" and "Brief Imperial Dictionary." These books are gotten out on Bible paper and contain a vast amount of matter in small compass, the whole made attractive in neat bindings of cloth or leather.

THE JOHN MCBRIDE COMPANY will publish early this fall a translation from the German of Angelo Neumann's "Reminiscences of Richard Wagner," ("Errinerungen an Richard Wagner.") The interest of the book mainly centres in the account given of Richard Wagner's practical participation in the rehearsing and staging of his operas. Other sides of this man of genius have been shown to the world in books—the composer, poet, philosopher, lover, etc.—but in the rôle of opera-director he has not hitherto appeared. It is said that the work will prove of surpassing interest to all Wagnerians, music lovers, and opera goers.

THE MACMILLAN CO. have just ready "Cousin Cinderella," by Mrs. Everard Cotes, better loved perhaps as Sara Jeannette Duncan, who now tells the story of a Canadian girl on English soil. It is possible that a professor of sociology might find in this volume a veiled treatise on the customs and manners of the British people; but the average reader is likely to discover nothing more than a delightful story, full of wit and with any number of sharp, satirical allusions showing the author's keen observation. For young people they have also just out "Red Cap Adventures," by S. R. Crockett, a fitting companion for "Red Cap Tales." It again retells for youthful minds some of the best stories in the Waverley novels.

L. C. PAGE & CO. publish to-day in booklet form, uniform with "The Three Weavers," "The Desert of Waiting," etc., the little play "The Princess Winsome," from "The Little Colonel's Hero," by Annie Fellows Johnston. This little play has become very popular among children's clubs for private theatricals, and its appearance in separate form will be heartily welcomed by countless young amateur actors and actresses. The publishers have also just gone to press with a seventh edition, (5000 copies,) of Mrs. Johnston's exquisite little allegory, "In the Desert of Waiting." The spiritual significance and beauty of this story appeals even more to grown ups than to children, so that it has come to be classified among the standard booklets for older readers.

JOHN LANE COMPANY, (The Bodley Head,) have just ready "The Brotherhood of Wisdom," a novel of occult interest by Frances J. Armour, in which the heroine's astral body is long held imprisoned in India while her material body is undergoing experiences on the other side of the world; and "The High Adventure," a romance full of subtile psychology, by Hugh De Selincourt, of which the hero is a young clerk in the British Museum. In other lines than fiction are ready "Pleasure and Problem in South Africa," by Cecil Harmsworth, a member of Parliament, treating of Great Britain's vast African possessions; "Six Cities of Spain," a new volume in the Spanish Series; and "The Small Holding," by F. E. Green, a new comer in the Country Handbook Series.

THOMAS Y. CROWELL & CO. will publish during the month three promising volumes of essays on ethical subjects: "Counsels by the Way," by Henry Van Dyke;" "On the Open Road," by Ralph Waldo Trine; and "The Free Life," by Woodrow Wilson. Among the books of religious trend for September are: "The Character of Jesus," by Dr. Charles E. Jefferson; and "The Wider Life" and "Evening Thoughts," both by Dr. J. R. Miller. Also almost ready are five new juveniles: "Old Man Coyote," an Indian fairy book, by Clara K. Bayliss; "The Fire-fly's Lovers," a Japanese fairy-book, by William E. Griffis; "Stories of Persian Heroes," by E. M. W. Buxton; "The Galleon Treasure," a tale of adventure by Percy K. Fitzhugh; and "Two Stowaways," a tale of the fishing banks, by James Otis.

HILLS & HAFELY CO., New York City, have ready a handsome leather mounted memorandum calendar pad for the desk called "The Day's Reminder." Each day has one leaf ruled off for the engagement of every hour from eight in the morning until nine at night and there is also a carefully selected quotation on each leaf. The mounting is Spanish morocco and it comes in three colors—red, maroon and dark green. The same improved block calendar is made with a leatherette backing and cloth flap to retail for $1 and with leatherette mounting for $1.50. Other calendars in booklet form are "Music Lovers' Calendar," "Book Lovers' Calendar," "Stepping Stones" and "The Shakespearian Year Book." These are made in different bindings—board, leather, etc., to retail from 50 cents to $1.25. They have appropriate quotations and space for notes.

E. P. DUTTON & CO. will bring out early in September a new volume by Edith Sichel, entitled "The Later Years of Catherine de Medici," carrying the story of Catherine's life from 1562 down to her death in 1589; "The Alps in Nature and History," by W. A. B. Coolidge, based on forty years of climbing and study in all parts of the Alps, dealing with the history of mountaineering, the Alpine passes, Alpine guides and the Alpine folks; the third and concluding volume of "Life and Letters of H. Taine," covering the period from 1871 to 1894, translated from the French by E. Sparvet-Bayly, with a prefatory note by Thomas Seccombe; also, two novels —"The Expensive Miss du Cane" and "Three Miss Graemes," both by S. Macnaughton. The house also has in preparation "A History of Water Color Painting," by H. M. Cundall, with a chronological list of the painters, with dates of birth and death and brief accounts of their lives, with fifty colored illustrations; "Granada, Present and Bygone," by A. F. Calvert, with illustrations in color and black-and-white; "Baldassare Castiglione, the Perfect Courtier, his Life and Letters," by Julia Cartwright, (Mrs. Ady,) author of "Isabella d'Este;" a critical edition of "Beethoven's Letters," with explanatory notes by Dr. Alfred C. Kalischer, translated by J. S. Shedlock; Jane Austen's "Mansfield Park" and "Sense and Sensibility," two volumes in The English Idylls series, with colored illustrations by C. E. Brock; also, "The Making of Canada, 1763-1814," by A. G. Bradley, a sequel to the author's "The Fight with France for North America."

HOUGHTON, MIFFLIN & Co. will issue on September 12 "The Leaven of Love," by Clara Louise Burnham, a novel of the far shores of the Pacific, picturing life in winter resorts of Southern California. This book will also be issued in reinforced binding, as recommended by the binding committee of the American Library Association. For young people there will be "Mad Anthony's Young Scout," by Everett T. Tomlinson, the scene Philadelphia, Valley Forge and the surrounding region during the winter of 1777-78; a new edition of "American Hero Stories," by Eva March Tappan; and a fourth edition of "The Children's Year Book," a book of Bible selections for every day of the year. "Poems of New England" is published as a separate volume, taken from Longfellow's "Poems of Places;" and "The Book of the Little Past," by Josephine Preston Peabody, (Mrs. L. S. Marks,) will be a new book of lyric poems by this popular singer, illustrated in full color by Elizabeth Shippin Green, a book which will be equally welcome to young and old. September 12 will also bring "Children's Classics in Dramatic Form," a reader for the fourth grade, by Augusta Stevenson, who has dramatized versions of tales from Andersen, Grimm, Æsop, and other favorites for the purpose of arousing greater interest in oral reading and developing an expressive voice; and "Selections from the Works of John Ruskin," edited, with introduction and notes, by Chauncey B. Tinker and Lucius H. Holt, the newest addition to the Riverside Literature Series. The house has also just ready the following educational books: "Argumentation and Debating," by William Trufant Foster; "The Beginners' Series of Reading Books," consisting of a "Primer" and "First Reader;" a Students' edition of Edmund C. Stedman's "An American Anthology" and "A Victorian Anthology;" and in the Riverside Literature Series "Literature for the Study of Language," poems and prose selected to meet the course of study for the common schools of North Dakota.

TERMS OF ADVERTISING.

Under the heading "Books Wanted" book-trade subscribers are given the privilege of a free advertisement for books out of print of five nonpareil lines, exclusive of address, in any issue except special numbers, to an extent not exceeding 100 lines a year. If more than five lines are sent, the excess is at 10 cents a line, and amount should be inclosed. Bids for current books and such as may be easily had from the publishers, and repeated matter, as well as all advertisements from non-subscribers, must be paid for at the rate of 10 cents a line.

Under the heading "Books for Sale," the charge to subscribers and non-subscribers is 10 cents a nonpareil line for each insertion. No reduction for repeated matter.

All other small undisplayed advertisements will be charged at the uniform rate of 10 cents a nonpareil line. Eight words may be reckoned to the line.

Parties with whom we have no account must pay in advance, otherwise no notice will be taken of their Communications.

BOOKS WANTED.

☞ In answering, please state edition, condition, and price, including postage or express charges.

Houses that are willing to deal exclusively on a cash-on-delivery basis will find it to their advantage to put after their firm-name the word [Cash.]

☞ Write your wants plainly, and on one side of the sheet only. Illegibly-written "wants" will be considered as not having been received. The "Publishers' Weekly" does not hold itself responsible for errors.

It should be understood that the appearance of advertisements in this column, or elsewhere in the "Publishers' Weekly," does not furnish a guarantee of credit. While it is endeavored to safeguard these columns by withdrawing the privilege of their use from advertisers who are not "good pay" booksellers should take the usual precautions, as to advertisers not known to them, that they would take in making sales to any unknown parties.

The Reminiscences of a Forty-Niner

Memoirs of Cornelius Cole

EX-SENATOR OF THE U. S. FROM CALIFORNIA

Senator Cole was born and brought up on his father's farm in Western New York, and received his schooling in the Lima Seminary, Geneva College, and at Wesleyan University in Connecticut. He was fortunate in his teachers and classmates who were without exception men of learning and refinement. Following the "Star of the Empire," Cole by degrees moved further West until, in '49, the gold fever drew him to the Pacific coast. From that time all his interests were merged with those of the far West. During the war between the states he espoused her cause in the field, after the war he defended her interests in the legislative halls. Mr. Cole's life was an unusually active and influential one, and his narrative, unvarnished as it is, is a fascinating one. His descriptions of men and things in the early days East and West, of the trials and struggles of the Argonauts during the gold-fever period, are strikingly clear and convincing. The book supplements every local history of the section and period it covers, from 1843 to 1872. The book is well made and has as a frontispiece a photogravure of Senator Cole.

"A book that will be of historical interest is 'Memoirs of Cornelius Cole,' another one of those volumes that will be looked to by students of the next generation who will be conducting original research into the history of California. * * * * * *

"What he has to tell in this book of Memoirs is well worth harkening to."—[The San Francisco Examiner, May 24, 1908.]

"Cornelius Cole, ex-Senator of the United States from California, has rendered an important service to the history of his State by the impressive volume of recollections that has just been given to the public. * * * It is a picture of faithful and sincere citizenship, of conscientious and unassuming public service."—[The Argonaut, San Francisco, May 16, 1908.]

"Ex-Senator Cole's book is so interesting that no justice can be done to it in a short review. Its chief value lies in its pen pictures of famous men and of noteworthy events."—[San Francisco Call Chronicle.]

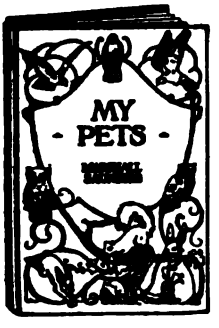
JUST PUBLISHED

A New Animal Story Book, by the author of "Beautiful Joe," entitled



MY PETS

By MARSHALL SAUNDERS

Illustrated in colors and black and white by Charles Copeland, the well-known artist

Endorsed by Humane Societies, Audubon Societies, and lovers of animals generally. Its success as one of the best sellers is assured. Large advance orders already received.

Price, $1.25

THIS BOOK might very properly be called a companion volume to "Beautiful Joe," by the same author. Like that immensely popular autobiography of a dog, this new work delineates animal life in a way that will fascinate and charm the children, and the hundreds of thousands of boys and girls who have come under the spell of Beautiful Joe's recital will be eager to read about the pets of the author of that "beautiful tale of an ugly dog." The number and variety of birds and animals that pass in review in this volume present to the reader an altogether delightful procession. There is a wealth of very unusual incidents in animal life. In addition to the suggestions for the care of animals there is in the back of the volume a section of blank pages, headed "A Record of My Pets." On these pages the owner of the book can record the name, variety, and all facts in regard to the life of their pet animals.

Pictures by JAMES MONTGOMERY FLAGG. $1.50

THE BOBBS-MERRILL COMPANY, Publishers

BY

MEREDITH NICHOLSON

AUTHOR OF

The House of a Thousand Candles

AND

The Port of Missing Men

Here is the spirit of merriest comedy.

A gay jet of delicious and sparkling humor plays over rollicking adventures and light-hearted romance.

The happiest, brightest, wittiest youthful abandon mark this as the best book he has ever written:—

THE LITTLE BROWN JUG AT KILDARE

THE NEW CHRISTY-RILEY BOOK

Home Again With Me

By James Whitcomb Riley

IN ALL the range of Mr. Riley's verse, this was thought the one poem best qualified to follow in the series with the world-famous Christy-Riley "An Old Sweetheart of Mine" and Christy-Riley "Out to Old Aunt Mary's." It breathes of home and love. It moves to rhythmic melody. It has in lavish measure, the romantic Riley emotion, the sly Riley humor, the tender Riley pathos. Mr. Christy has again caught the poet's spirit with the intuition of his artistic genius and made a series of pictures bewitching in their fascination, irresistible in their winsomeness; by far the best work the artist has done in years. No one is beyond the appeal of this charming gift book.

RADIANT with the loveliness of lovely women, fragrant as a rose in its beauty, "A Book of Sweethearts" stands easily the greatest of all popular Gift-Books. Each picture is a climax of harm and color; reproduced eleven inches square, so that the full splendor of the original is given again vith stunning effect. Each is the head of a beautiful girl, the work of an artist whose "girls" have nade him supremely popular the land over. Lavishly decorated. Printed throughout in full color.

CLARA LOUISE BURNHAM'S New Novel

THE LEAVEN OF LOVE

The story of an estrangement, the subsequent complications between man and wife, and the effect which the sweet, unselfish nature of a young girl has upon the future happiness of the couple,—this is in brief the plot which Mrs. Burnham skilfully weaves into a love story of unusual attraction.

Mrs. Burnham never fails to tell a story which interests, pleases and helps the reader, and "The Leaven of Love" will not soon be forgotten.

Of the leading characters in the story, Sibyl will probably stand forth as the most complex and altogether charming. Mrs. Burnham's heroines always hold the centre of the stage from the rise to the fall of the curtain, and they invariably stand for what is best, strongest and sweetest in American womanhood.

With an unusual frontispiece in color by Harrison Fisher.

Mad Anthony's Young Scout

Valley Forge and the environs of Philadelphia in the winter of 1777-8, form the background of Mr. Tomlinson's new story, with General Wayne ("Mad Anthony") Washington, Lafayette and Baron Von Steuben as characters.

Noah Dare who figured in "The Camp-Fire of Mad Anthony," becomes the hero, and other old friends reappear in the thrilling escapades and adventures of this book, which is sure to find a waiting audience among all American boys and girls.

THE BIG FELLOW

Frederick Palmer's

is an unequivocal success from its very start.

"There is a suggestion of 'The Honorable Peter Stirling' about 'The Big Fellow,'" says the Wilmington Every Evening, the first review notice to turn up about this notable novel. "The story is well told and will interest those who are not in sympathy with our foreign colonial policy as well as those who are. For Mr. Palmer knows how to tell a story."

JUSTIN McCARTHY

"We have not had thus far in this year many novels which call for any especial notice. I may, however, mention one, at least, which is entirely out of the common, alike in conception, in character drawing and in its curious blending of the real and the ideal. This novel, which is the work of Mrs. Campbell Praed, bears the title of 'By Their Fruits.' It is a book of substantial size in one volume, according to the now prevailing fashion. I may certainly venture to say that the reader who begins it will not be in the least likely to think it too long. It is a very powerful story, thrilling with interest from first to last, and with character drawing which in some of its figures displays a genuine and captivating originality. * * * It is founded on the existence of two twin sisters who are perfectly alike in form and feature, equally beautiful, equally symmetrical and not to be distinguished one from the other when seen apart even by their nearest friends and closest relatives, and who yet are thoroughly unlike, are actual contrasts in all qualities of mind and heart, intellect and feeling, tastes and manners. I do not, however, intend to expound the story here or to enter into any criticism of its possibilities and its impressions. I only desire to call the attention of my American readers to the fact that 'By Their Fruits' is well deserving of prompt and close attention at a time when the tendency of fiction is certainly not to occupy itself with the production of too many novels likely to arouse an earnest and absorbing interest."—JUSTIN McCARTHY.

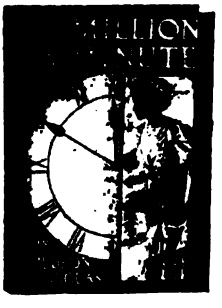
A MILLION A MINUTE

By



HUDSON DOUGLAS

Five Illustrations by Will Grefe

A MILLION A MINUTE is a romance of the New York and Paris of to-day. It opens in Martin's famous restaurant in New York and practically closes in the equally famous Maxim's in Paris. With a hero bright, up to date, and wholly American, and a heroine charming and petite, a French Count daring and unscrupulous, a wealthy old uncle equally lacking in scruple, and a legacy of ten million bright American dollars, the author weaves a story that will immediately make him popular with the great public that wants to be entertained.

The Last Voyage of the Donna Isabel

THE publishers have such confidence in this splendid sea story by Mr. Parrish that they have printed a larger first edition than of any novel they have ever brought out. It will undoubtedly have a larger sale than any of his former books.

The window display prepared for "THE LAST VOYAGE OF THE DONNA ISABEL" is unusually telling. It includes a large folder, three feet, eight and one-half inches long, and twenty inches high, when opened. The side panels are brilliant lithographs in six colors direct from Mr. True's paintings. With the poster, from a drawing by Guernsey Moore, in the center, these make an impressive combination. To increase the effectiveness of the display, we have also provided a "fleet" of miniature ships, with easel backs, to stand in the window. The large folder is supplied with orders for 25 or more copies; but the "fleet" of ships, separate posters, etc., will be furnished every dealer who will exploit the book.

NOTES IN SEASON.

CASSELL & COMPANY will have ready on the 18th inst. a new story by Mrs. Campbell Praed, entitled "By Their Fruits," which has been highly praised by a number of competent critics, among them Justin McCarthy.

MCLOUGHLIN BROTHERS have just ready "Our Holidays," a handsome volume crammed with recitations and exercises for the holidays of the year, compiled by Matilda Blair. It has a colored frontispiece and numerous half-tone illustrations.

THOMAS Y. CROWELL & Co. will bring out shortly two beautifully illustrated gift books, namely, Thoreau's "Cape Cod," profusely illustrated from the camera of Clifton Johnson, who followed Thoreau's path, and "A Treasury of Verse for Little Children," which is described as the most tempting anthology of its class ever presented.

J. B. LIPPINCOTT COMPANY will publish on the 15th inst. Ezra S. Brudno's new book, "The Tether," a modern novel of virile realism, powerful delineation of character, and throbbing with the oriental fire and passion of the hero, a young poet of Jewish extraction. The racial barrier between the hero and heroine adds intensity to the dramatic situations in the book.

GEORGE W. JACOBS & Co. will bring out on the 19th inst. "The One and I," a love story of the Canadian Northwest, by Elizabeth Freemantle, with full-page colored illustrations from photographs. On another page in this issue they call the attention of the trade to eight series, including books for young people, cook books, books for the music lover, standard books of humor, etc., all put up in attractive style to sell as sets or separately.

THE HILL PUBLISHING COMPANY, 505 Pearl Street, New York City, has just ready the sixteenth volume of "The Mineral Industry," for 1907, which covers metallurgical statistics, methods, progress for all metals and all countries, giving 1000 pages of valuable information, instruction, and statistics furnished by the best-known experts on their subjects. The book, in short, is the encyclopedia of the mining, smelting and metallurgical industries.

CHARLES SCRIBNER'S SONS publish this week "A Theory of Mind," by Professor John Lewis March, in which he presents a new solution of the problems of psychology; "The Bible of Nature," a new volume in the series of Bross lectures, by Professor J. Arthur Thomson; "Miss Esperance and Mr. Wycherly," a story by L. Allen Harker, author of "Concerning Paul and Fiametta," which deals with the difficulties and perplexities of a charming maiden lady and an elderly and scholarly bachelor in bringing up two orphan boys; René Bazin's novel, "The Coming Harvest," a translation of "Le Blé qui Lève;" also, a cheaper issue of Froude's "Short Studies on Great Subjects," in five volumes.

MOFFAT, YARD & COMPANY will publish at once a novel entitled "Sappho in Boston," by an author of large experience who prefers, for personal reasons, to preserve his incognito. The heroine is a fascinating cultivated woman of to-day and the hero an Englishman. The scene shifts between England and America. The character drawing is remarkably clean cut, the dialogue is sparkling, and the denouement a complete surprise. "When Mother Lets Us Cook" is the highly descriptive title of a book by Constance Johnson which will be published this month by Moffat, Yard & Company. Primarily it is a volume of simple recipes, with important cooking rules in rhyme, together with handy lists of materials and utensils needed for the preparation of each dish.

Baldwin, C: W. Geography of the Hawaiian Islands. N. Y., American Book Co., [1908.] c. 5-128 p. il. maps, O. cl., 60 c.

This text on the geography of the Hawaiian group may be styled the first book of its kind that has been published. Thus it is that lacking any previous criterion the author has had to rely on teaching experience in determining the general nature and scope of the work. The maps have been specially prepared for this geography and are the only up-to-date maps of the Hawaiian group. Mr. Edgar Wood, of the Honolulu Normal School, has furnished valuable data in the preparation of the book.

Bandini, Helen Elliott. History of California; il. by Roy J. Warren. N. Y., American Book Co., [1908.] c. 5-302 p. map, D. cl., 75 c.

An attempt to present the history of California in so simple and interesting a way that children may read it with pleasure. The book, however, is not designed only for children; older people interested in the story of California, including the tourists, will find it a fund of information. It tells the story of all the principal events, from the Indian occupancy through the Spanish and Mission days, the excitement of the gold discovery, the birth of the state, down to the latest events of yesterday and to-day. Several chapters also are devoted to the development of California's great industries.

Benson, Ramsey. A lord of lands. N. Y., Henry Holt & Co., 1908. c. 6+326 p. D. cl., $1.50.

A man earning a very small salary and living in three rooms with his wife and five children in an eastern city, looking into the future and realizing its hopelessness, determines to leave the city and become a farmer in the northwest. He persuades other families to move with him, the venture in the end bringing happiness and prosperity to all. The man tells his own story with much humor and good sense, relating how he got his farm, how he improved it, and how he became "a lord of lands."

Burnham, Mrs. Clara Louise Root. The leaven of love: a novel. Bost., Houghton. Mifflin Co., 1908. c. 6+330 p. front. D. cl., †$1.50.

The scene is a winter resort of Southern California. Here comes a jealous wife who has fled from her husband, an organist in a fashionable Boston church, seeking solitude and the opportunity to indulge her misery. The girl of whom she is jealous and her husband both drift (separately) to her hotel. The chief character is Sibyl Raynor, a charming New England girl, with a philosophy of optimism like California sunshine, who straightens out what is really a very innocent tangle—all ending happily.

A new edition of Harper and Tolman's Cæsar's Gallic war. It is the result of an endeavor to present the facts of the language and explain and illustrate the subject-matter in a manner different from the traditional method, which has been, the editors think, too closely adhered to in the past. At least a dozen new features distinguish this work from previous editions.

Author is professor of history in McGill University. The book presents lectures which were delivered recently in Ottawa before the May Court Club. The author's aim is to discuss various aspects of French colonization. To secure distinctness the examples have been drawn, chapter by chapter, from some one career, that is, a single personage has been made the representative of a class. Contents: The historical background of new France; The explorer—Champlain; The missionary—Brébeuf; The colonist—Hébert; The soldier—D'Iberville; The coureur de bois—De Phut; The intendant—Talon; The bishop—Laval; The governor—Frontenac; The woman. The work has a peculiar timeliness in this year of the Champlain celebration.

Collins, Jos. Victor. Practical elementary algebra. N. Y., American Book Co., [1908.] c. 3-420 p. D. hf. leath., $1.

Author is professor of mathematics, State Normal School, Stevens Point, Wisconsin. This book meets the requirements of the College Entrance Board, and contains, besides, chapters on logarithms and on the application of algebra in science and higher mathematics, as a preparation for technical schools. It has been written, as the title indicates, with the object of making elementary algebra possess more practical value, both in the ordinary and also in the cultural or educational sense of the word. It is written for those who do not go to college as well as for those who do.

Cotes, Mrs. Sara Jeannette Duncan. [Mrs. Everard Cotes.] Cousin Cinderella: [a Canadian girl in London.] N. Y., Macmillan, 1908. c. 5+365 p. D. cl., †$1.50.

Chronicles the experience of a Canadian girl who finds herself on English soil. Mary Trent and her brother Graham are the daughter and son of a wealthy Canadian senator. They make their first visit to the mother country after the girl has become known as an heiress and the boy has served with distinction in the war in South Africa. They are objects of more or less curiosity to their English friends as their English friends are to them. The girl's criticisms of the people she meets and the functions she attends are humorous and exceedingly witty. In line with "An American girl in London."

First published in the spring of 1906. The author, sometime examiner in political economy at the Royal University of Ireland, died in the following November. The object of the work is to present in a compendious form an aspect of the church which may be found scattered up and down the works of various Catholic writers, particularly those of Cardinal Newman. The history of the world, so runs this argument, is only intelligible in the light of Christianity, and Christianity as a permanent factor in the life of many depends upon the Catholic church.

A novel of love and war, having its scene in the Philippines during the last Filipino revolt. The author, an Englishman, was the only war correspondent to reach the front. The book to very large extent is historical, being based on the things the writer witnessed in the islands. It offers graphic pictures of the life and conditions, and the varied characters that make up its inhabitants. There is a love story, with a strikingly robust heroine, who smokes, rides, and fires a pistol like a man.

Traces the evidence of the transcendental element in the literature and religion of the western world, from the time of Plato to the present. The same method of investigation is employed as in the author's work on "Dante and the English poets." After a general introduction, limiting the scope of the discussion, come chapters on: What is the sense of the infinite?; The transcendental view of nature; Romantic love and the transcendental sense; Plato and Plotinus; Platonism past and present; Mediæval mysticism; Renaissance and reformation; The pietistic movement and its influence; The transcendental element and modern life.

The book is the outcome of experiments and investigations made by three practical housekeepers of Topeka, Kansas, during the past two years. It tells exactly how to make fireless cooking boxes of materials usually found in any home and shows by illustrations how they appear when made; it outlines the practical and varied uses to which the fireless cooker may be put, and tells how to obtain from it reliable and efficient service. Many recipes that have been tried and tested and adapted to this method of cooking are given. Pages partly blank are given for "choice recipes."

A simple, wholesome American is "the big fellow," big both in height and character. His career is a typical American one, the story following him from the day of his graduation from college through the various steps that carry him to fortune. He is in turns a reporter, lawyer, guide and, eventually, governor of one of our new island possessions, where he accomplishes some big things. There is a very sweet and stirring love story, and a dear old mother and aunt who serve chiefly as background. By the author of "The vagabond."

Patterson, Jos. Medill. A little brother of the rich: a novel. Chic., Reilly & Britton Co., 1908. c. 9-361 p. il. D. cl., $1.50.

Another story of the idle rich and all the mischief Satan finds for them to do. The author is a man of social, financial and political position, who feels he has a message to make men and women pause and think. The "little brother of the rich" drifts in with the rich set at Harvard University. His college mates secure him a place in the financial world; money becomes his sole thought; he leaves the girl to whom he was devoted, who later becomes an actress and later again becomes an influence in his life. Scene chiefly Newport and New York.

The four little girls who set up housekeeping in the tumbledown "Dandelion cottage" are again the heroines of a story. The cottage was their playhouse in vacation time, and they tried to do everything "like mother did." To entirely complete their happiness they had to have babies about, which they borrowed. One baby, a stolid little Indian borrowed for a day, is never claimed. Her fate and fortunes make up the story. All the queer complexities that arise from her being hidden in Dandelion cottage are related in a delightfully humorous way.

"Flower of the dusk" is the name given by a devoted blind father to his devoted lame child, who works early and late that he may not know that circumstances have completely changed. A young physician cures both father and daughter and he and his young wife become the good influence of their household. The book is gotten up in holiday style, like "A spinner in the sun," "Lavender and old lace," etc., and it has the charming humor of "The book of clever beasts."

The odd, quaint characters of a New England town, with their homely virtues, droll conceits and pithy saws, are portrayed by the author of "Geoffrey Strong" and "Mrs. Tree," with a loving touch and without the suspicion of exaggeration or unkindly caricature in a story which has for its hero a middle-aged bachelor, warm of heart but poor of pocket, a clever, attractive woman whom he succeeds in winning, and the twins Sim and Sam, two elderly children, that make the fun of the story. Ridgely, Albert Newton. By law of might, of the campaign in Sunset: a romance of the real Wall Street. N. Y., H. A. Simmons & Co., [1908.] c. 398 p. il. D. cl., $1.50.

Claims to be an inside and by no means flattering view of Wall St. morals in love and finance. That the law of "might" and not of "right" prevails there is what the story aims to illustrate; also that no man can ever again obtain "a job" there once he betrays its secrets. The plot hinges upon a mysterious murder in a fashionable hotel, in which two unfaithful wives are involved. The murderer or murderers are never arrested, the "law of might" protecting them, as their exposure would expose other Wall Street brokers or their wives.

Contains five accounts of voyagers and explorers, ranging from Columbus to Lewis and Clark; stories of five colonies of marked dissimilarity—Virginia, Quebec, Plymouth, New York and Philadelphia; brief lives of four pioneers of the eighteenth and nineteenth centuries; and fifteen short stories of war times. The chapters are arranged in chronological order, with a thread of continuity running through them. For young readers.

Tomlinson, Everett Titsworth. Mad Anthony's young scout: a story of the winter of 1777-78. Bost., Houghton Mifflin Co., 1908. c. 10+386 p. pls. D. cl., †$1.50.

The scene of this story is Philadelphia, Valley Forge, and the surrounding region; the time is the winter of 1777-'78. The hero, Noah Dare, figured prominently in one of the author's earlier stories, "The camp-fire of Mad Anthony," and he still has many adventures and escapes; other old friends reappear, too—among them Rachel Wheeler, who is the centre of an apparently baffling mystery. General Wayne ("Mad Anthony") plays an important part. A prominent historical element is the conduct of that wing of the Quakers which insisted on maintaining the old allegiance to the British government. Some of these Friends became the patriot's worst foes.

Turrell, C: Alfred. A Spanish reader, for beginners in high schools and colleges. N. Y., American Book Co., [1908.] c. 256 p. S. cl., 80 c.

Author is professor of modern languages in the University of Arizona. The reader has been carefully graded. The extracts used are from the works of the best and most popular Spanish writers of modern times. The notes are comparatively few and brief as the vocabulary contains, wherever feasible, explanations and translations of words and phrases. The tables of the appendix give a concise summary of the Spanish verb.

Cardinal Mercier, of Belgium, in his Lenten pastoral of this year made the Pope's recent encyclical on modernism his subject, criticising severely all who were not in harmony with it. Mr. Tyrrell, an English priest, he characterized as "more deeply imbibed with it (modernism) than any other." Father Tyrrell is known as the author of many religious books, notably "Lex orandi" and "Lex credendi." He is an intellectual, broad-minded man and answers the Cardinal's criticism under the title of "Medievalism."

The Publishers' Weekly.

FOUNDED BY F. LEYPOLDT.

SEPTEMBER 12, 1908.

The editor does not hold himself responsible for the views expressed in contributed articles or communications.

All matter for advertising pages should reach this office not later than Wednesday noon, to insure insertion in the same week's issue.

Publishers are requested to furnish title page proofs and advance information of books forthcoming, both for entry in the lists and for descriptive mention. An early copy of each book published should be forwarded, as it is of the utmost importance that the entries of books be made as promptly and as perfectly as possible. In many cases booksellers and librarians depend on the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY solely for their information. The Record of New Publications of the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY is the material of the "American Catalog," and so forms the basis of trade bibliography in the United States.

"I hold every man a debtor to his profession, from the which, as men do of course seek to receive countenance and profit, so ought they of duty to endeavor themselves by way of amends to be a help and an ornament thereunto."—LORD BACON.

THE ADVERTISING OF BOOKS TO THE PUBLIC.

THE publisher of books sold through the trade to the public is, as a general rule, a believer in advertising, though he is rarely certain of its efficacy. He is constantly trying to prove that his advertising pays either himself or the bookseller. If he spends a certain amount on advertising one year he asks himself whether he would have sold as many books on half the sum, or whether, if he had spent twice as much, he would have shown a commensurate increase in his sales.

He realizes that he has a different problem in his advertising to the public than has the manufacturer of most merchandise. It is this difference that is generally overlooked by the professional advertising man. When a shoe, an automobile or a certain kind of soap is advertised year after year, the advertising is cumulative, so that each year's advertising has its effect increased by that which subsequently appears. But each book issued is a separate piece of merchandise to be exploited according to its own particular character. Each book may be said to have a separate personality. All the publisher spends in advertising one book in no way affects the sales of the next book. His efforts must begin anew with each title; and when we contemplate the fact of the very brief duration of the sales of the average novel, we realize the difficulty facing the publisher when he attempts to create a demand and sell a large edition of a book in a few months, he knowing full well by experience that nothing he can do will prolong the sales beyond the time which the public determines shall be the life of that book. There are always notable exceptions to this rule—of the brevity of the life of the modern novel—and it is these very exceptions which sometimes cause the publisher to try to prolong the sales of a given novel in which he has faith, even though experience has taught him over and over again that it can't be done.

Many publishers frankly admit that to create actual sales is by no means the sole object of advertising their publications. They say there are three reasons for the advertising of a book: first, to satisfy the author, who is becoming so commercial that he will turn over his manuscript only to that publisher who promises the most advertising; second, to satisfy the trade, which demands that the publisher shall "get behind and push" the book that he sells; and third, (to some the least important and certainly the least certain of results,) to sell the book direct to the readers of the country.

It probably will not be disputed that fiction receives much more than half of each year's advertising appropriation. One house, alone, it is said on good authority, spends 76 per cent. of its appropriation for advertising on fiction.

The time was when the publisher made a simple dignified announcement in a few journals of literary standing that he was about to publish or had just published a book, giving title, author and price, with perhaps a brief note of description. There are a few houses who still make dignified announcements; but the great modern demand for fiction has developed what is known as "display" advertising, in which the advertiser uses every known devise of the printer and photo-engraver to produce startling effects either in picture or in bold-face type in newspaper and magazine "copy." The publisher also has inserts of from two to eight pages printed in colors in the magazines; costly posters printed by color process, which he imprints for the trade; large quantities of descriptive circulars and post-cards, and he uses page after page in trade journals telling the bookseller how his books are selling. He furnishes framed illustrations for window displays; and he writes to the trade begging for some new idea that will help sell the books.

The publisher knows that much of his efforts and money are wasted; that some of his newspaper and magazine advertising is not read, and when read is not convincing and compelling; he knows that less than half of his posters are displayed; that a large portion of his circulars are consigned to the waste basket, and that often his post-cards are not mailed.

On the whole, there is a feeling of great uncertainty in the mind of the publisher as to the efficacy of advertising. He knows that he must tell the world about his books that it may know what there is to read; but the very lack of scientific demonstration as to what advertising pays and what does not sometimes leads him to believe that, notwithstanding his business sense, he gets from advertising but a small fraction of its possibilities. He feels very certain about the correctness of his relations with author and bookseller; he has no doubts about the manufacturing of his books, or the marketing of them to the trade; but he is decidedly uncertain about his advertising. Is there an undiscovered secret in this part of his business? Has he and have all the other publishers, notwithstanding their sagacity and business sense, overlooked the best methods of publicity?

The fact that the retail bookseller is just as much interested in the results of the general advertising of books as is the publisher leads to the belief that there is one practical thing to be done, namely, to permit a free discussion in our columns of the whole question, in the belief that some new ideas of practical value shall result.

The discussion might take the form of criticism of present methods; advertising "copy" and mediums used; material furnished the trade for distribution and display; suggestions of new ideas along lines in present use; and untried schemes, etc.

The bookseller, by way of opening the subject for discussion, might consider the following questions to serve as a guide to the publisher:

I. Do your customers show that they read book advertisements by bringing in clippings from newspapers and magazines, or state that they have seen the book advertised, when inquiring for it?

II. In your opinion which is the better medium for book advertising, newspapers or magazines? Or do you think both mediums are desirable?

III. In your judgment would it pay publishers to advertise in newspapers of other cities than New York, Chicago, Philadelphia and Boston, as is now the custom?

IV. If your answer to III. is "Yes," what other cities would you recommend?

V. Does it pay you to mail descriptive circulars to your customers?

VI. If your answer to V. is "Yes," what in your judgment is the best form?

VII. Does it pay you to mail to your customers return post-cards descriptive of new books with order form on return card?

VIII. Do posters in any way assist you in sales of books?

IX. What, in your opinion, is the best method of creating a demand for a book in your particular locality?

X. What criticism have you upon present advertising method of publishers.

XI. Suggestions and new ideas on the subject of book advertising.

A free discussion of this subject by the trade cannot fail to be of interest and profit to all concerned in the selling of books, and we trust that booksellers will avail themselves of this opportunity to point out to the publisher where, in their opinion, the trouble lies and, if possible, to point out a remedy.

PRIZES FOR WINDOW DISPLAYS MAY BE DEFINED BY THE POST-OFFICE AS LOTTERIES.

At the regular monthly meeting of the Board of Trustees of the Stationers' Board of Trade, held September 8, the following letter from L. E. Waterman Co. was read, and after due consideration Frederick P. Seymour, Ardius P. Jackson of the Hawkes, Jackson Co., and Charles C. Davis of the Eaton, Crane & Pike Co., were appointed to investigate and report at the next meeting of the Board:

Mr. Henry Bainbridge, President, Stationers' Board of Trade, New York City.

Dear Mr. Bainbridge: A recent decision, approximately six months old, of the Attorney General, in connection with post-office rulings, brings forth the following communication from the department

"The term 'lottery' as used in the statute embraces all kinds of schemes or enterprises for the award of prizes by lot or chance, and it is held by the department that a prize which is offered for something which is considered 'best' in the judgment of the offerer or some one acting for him is dependent upon chance. Matter relating to such schemes is, therefore, not admitted to the mails unless the competition is open freely to all without charge or consideration of any kind, directly or indirectly.

"The department decided that in a scheme in which prizes were offered for the best window display of the goods of a certain manufacturer or concern, a consideration was present by the requirement that the display must consist of such goods. The particulars of your scheme are not fully known, but it is understood that it was conducted upon substantially the same conditions, and if so the decision of the department, of course, applies."

It is our opinion, as well as that of other stationery manufacturers, that this is a most inconsistent ruling, there being no element of chance whatever in window display dressing for contests, but purely a matter of skill on the part of the dresser. It is a fact that many manufacturers in the stationery line would feel such a ruling; and it is our suggestion to you, since a body receives recognition much more promptly than individuals, that a committee be appointed by you to investigate the subject, on both the part of the manufacturers and post-office, in order to determine if the seeming inconsistency cannot be regulated, if such be the case.

AMERICAN BOOKS IN MEXICO.

THE American Consuls in Mexico have joined in a symposium of reports to Washington on the literary tendencies of the Mexicans and the market there for books produced on this side of the international boundary line. Consul General Gottschalk, before leaving Mexico City, reported that in the central and southern portion of the country there was a constant and increasing demand for American books and magazines. The average Spanish-American taste, he says, in books of fiction naturally turns toward the class of French novels translated into Spanish.

Of American classic writers of fiction very little is generally known save, perhaps, of Edgar Allan Poe and some contemporaneous writers whose works appeal to the fantastic and emotional side of the mind. "Uncle Tom's Cabin" and certain of President Roosevelt's published works occasionally have grown popular among Spanish-Americans in translated form. The Consul General sounds a note of warning to American publishers that few Mexican ladies do any reading, and that for some years there will be little demand there for the class of literature which finds its best market among American women. While the Spanish-Americans respect American natural abilities in commerce and in engineering and dental surgery, he says they are still very far from recognizing the United States as a possible source of culture or art.

Special Agent Butman, at Mexico City, says native authorship is an essential feature of Mexican text books. Consul General Hanna, at Monterey, says newspapers in English are common there, and that there is a demand for American books and magazines. Consul Lespinasse, of Tuxpam, emphasizes the need of selling books at low prices. Consular Agent Carothers, at Torreon, says the libraries are kept up to date, and that there is a market for books of higher grade. Consul Miller, at Matamores, indicates that the rising generation will read and speak English.

Consul Ellsworth, of Ciudad Porfirio Diaz, says translations of American books would find a market, and that there is a good market for magazines and technical and trade journals. Consul Freeman, at Durango, predicts that the daily newspapers will create a demand for American literature. Consul Shaughnessy, at Aguascalientes, contends that as a rule the educated classes in his district are not good readers, though an American news company is pushing the introduction of American literature. Consul Kaiser, at Mazatland, reports that there is a good demand for American publications printed in English.

PREMATURE ANNOUNCEMENTS.

A COMMON complaint made by the booktrade against publishers is premature reviews and advertisements of fiction. Customers are led to ask for the book, and when they are told that it is not ready, insist that it must be because they have seen it reviewed and advertised, and the dealer is blamed for not having it in stock. It often happens, however, that the publisher is not to blame for such premature publicity, and a case in point is an experience A. C. McClurg & Co. have just had with their big Chicago story, "Ganton & Co.," which they are to publish September 26. On Saturday and Sunday, August 29 and 30, every paper in Chicago had in its news columns sensational "write-ups" of this book, the Chicago Tribune having three full columns, obviously based on an examination of an actual copy of the book, and a portrait of the author; and yet the publishers had themselves given out no information.

This instance shows how such things may leak in spite of every precaution on the publisher's part to protect the interests of the trade, and it is not always right to blame the publisher when such things occur. The result of this publicity on "Ganton & Co." has been an avalanche of inquiries for the book at the Chicago book stores and a good many telephone inquiries at the office of the publishers.

CONVENTION OF NEWSDEALERS.

THE twenty-sixth annual convention of the National Association of Newsdealers, Booksellers and Stationers was held in Philadelphia, August 18-21. Samuel Stratton, of Paterson, N. J., president of the association, presided.

Addresses were made by circulation managers of several large publications, who discussed the growth of business and the relations existing between publishers and distributors. About 300 delegates were in attendance.

COMMUNICATIONS.

A BOOKSELLING PLAN.

To the Editor of The Publishers' Weekly.

SIR: In view of the unfortunate condition of the retail booktrade, with nearly all the fast-selling books retailing for a profitless price, I desire to place before the publishing and retail trade a plan which seems to me to possess many advantages for both branches of a business which is in a bad way at the distributing end.

While this plan may not be practical as it stands, when viewed by all extremes of the trade, it may possess the elements of a scheme of salvation for the retail bookseller which could be worked out with certain modifications. At all events, I submit the idea for what it may be worth. My own point of view in the matter is a duplex one, being connected both with the retail and the publishing ends of the business.

The first step would be the formation of an American Publishers' and Retailers' Association, with the expense of joining made nominal for the retailer, in order to secure his presence without more difficulty than necessary.

Nothing in the way of work would be undertaken by the organization until the list of retailers was large and comprehensive. If it should prove impossible to interest them the plan would fail in the first instance.

With the organization sufficiently strong, and composed of as many publishers as could be induced to enter, and a thoroughly representative lot of booksellers, the plan would be for each publisher to take a chance on a strong leader in his line and issue it at a fixed rate, allowing it to be bought only by members of the organization and sold only by members and at the price established by the publisher.

In small towns there would be but one retailer, a member of the association; in large towns and cities, one retailer in a section of the city. The cut-price store could not get these protected books in any way without paying the long price. The books would all be profit-makers for the dealers, who would on that account push them well.

With organization completed the country would be so well covered that it would be more possible than it is now to get these books in any town. There would be everywhere live representatives of the association. The great majority of towns can be covered with one bookstore, since in the average place the people shop all over the town, going from one store to another for what is not found at first. Everywhere there would be an association store within shopping distance, and those stores would be the best stores in the line.

Every member would have an incentive to push the price-protected books, and would do local retail advertising as they cannot at present afford to do except in the case of a few "best sellers" which are used only as bait.

The restriction on the prices of books might be made limited as to time, and the books sold openly thereafter if desired, though it is of course not to be expected that the non-member stores would do very much for a book they had not been able to get previously. Still, a man is in business to sell what he has a demand for, and if a book-price were maintained until the first rush was over, it would probably stay up permanently.

The outside booksellers might at first be a little antagonistic toward the association plan, but the scheme would have a tendency to help boost prices everywhere, and the publishers would have practically perfect distribution with the dealers working hard for them where they are now only passively interested at the most. Even such few dealers as might not have had a chance to join and consequently became inimical would soon forget that if the movement benefited the whole trade. It isn't human to harbor an impersonal grudge for long.

In connection with the possibility of a dealer getting stock with an unsalable protected book a bureau of exchange might be established, and this would enable the dealer with a book which he could not sell to trade with another member in another part of the country where some other book was unsalable, the books unsalable in one locality usually having some sale somewhere. A central office, too, would get out a monthly or weekly bulletin of information for members and could, if desired, plan retailers' advertising for them and help in many ways the distributing end.

While this plan suggests at first the use of popular and fast-selling books, this is more with a view to getting good results from the first trials in order to encourage the members. The idea would be to develop the plan through all lines of books as fast as seemed feasible, each publisher using his own judgment as to what and how many books he should issue under the association plan. It is entirely within the bounds of possibility that the scheme would work out to such advantage to the publishers that they would find their distribution greater through this slightly limited channel than it is under the present plan.

The success of the plan would to a great extent depend upon how whole-hearted the publishers might be in going into it. If they all should hold back, or at the most use only indifferent books in that way, the affair would be stamped a failure at the outset, for every dealer would find the protected books slow sellers. The reverse would mean success and a new lease of life for the retail book stores, which would rise to sufficient business importance to rank as profitable mercantile enterprises.

It might be necessary to make two branches to such an organization in order that the publishers should bear the expense and the retailers reap the benefit, because it is a foregone conclusion that the retailers would not spend much money to get into line. They would be willing to go in at first if the cost was nominal and the enterprise backed up by representative men. Otherwise not.

As an instance of a line of goods worked out in a way somewhat resembling this plan, I would mention the Rexall remedies put out by the United Drug Co., of Boston, Mass., every druggist handling the goods being a stockholder of the company. The plan with them is highly successful. In the drug trade the exclusive agency and protected price have proved to be the salvation of the smaller dealers, and something of that sort is the only hope for the small individual stores in all lines.

Yours very truly,

FRANK FARRINGTON.

THE WHEREABOUTS OF HENKEN.

To the Editor of The Publishers' Weekly.

SIR: It may be of interest to dealers who have been mulcted by a person named Henken that he was seen a few days ago at the West Side Base Ball Park in Chicago, and that if they wish to take steps against him he is likely to be found there almost any day games are in progress.

BUFFALO BOOK EXCHANGE.

BUFFALO, N. Y., September 2, 1908.

THE NEW BRITISH PATENT LAW.

To the Editor of The Publishers' Weekly.

SIR: The letter in your issue of September 5 from Mr. Henry Carey Baird on the subject of the new British Patents Law cannot pass unchallenged by any one who understands its real significance.

1. The new British Patents Law is the work of a government whose whole existence is staked upon maintaining inviolate the free trade policy of Sir Robert Peel.

2. The parellel which Mr. Baird believes he sees between the recent U. S. Copyright Acts and the new British Patents Law does not, with all due deference to Mr. Baird, exist.

Mr. Baird's argument, and resultant moral, ignore the basic fact that, being a free trade nation, Britain does not, generally speaking, tax foreign imports—patented or otherwise. Were she to do so, the new Patents Law would stand on all fours with the U. S. Copyright Laws; for then she would be saying, in effect: Not only will we derive customs revenue from all imports of foreign patented products, but if you foreigners are to preserve your patent rights in our country you must manufacture them here, too. This is what the U. S. Copyright acts perform.

What Britain does say to the foreigner through her new Patents Law is: We allow your imports to come in untaxed, but we will no longer permit ourselves in addition to be deprived wholesale of the right to pursue certain industries, even to supply home demands. Since you pay no taxes on your imported products you must either, in the interests of the consumer, sell your patent rights to British operators, and enable them to develop the industry here, or you must develop it here yourselves.

This involves no betrayal of British free trade principles; it is not, as the U. S. Copyright laws are, legislation in the interests of a few manufacturers without reference to the interests of the far greater number of taxpayers, viz., the consumers.

Yours truly,
R. HAROLD PAGET.

OBITUARY NOTES.

FREDERIC NORGATE, of the firm of Williams & Norgate, the well-known London publishers and importers, died on August 15, aged ninety. Mr. Norgate, in 1843, with Mr. Williams, inaugurated the firm with which he was actively associated until some time in the "sixties," since which period he devoted himself to literary pursuits.

DR. FRIEDRICH PAULSEN, professor of philosophy in the University of Berlin, died in that city on August 14 of cancer. He was born in 1846. He was a widely-known philosopher of the Neo-Kantian school. Among the well-known books setting forth his philosophy were "Emleitung in die Philosophie" and "System der Ethik;" and studies of Schopenhauer, Hamlet and Mephistopheles. He also wrote many works on pedagogics.

E. DWIGHT CHURCH, of Brooklyn, N. Y., the head of the Church & Dwight Company, manufacturers of soda, who died on August 30, at his country home in Westfield, Conn., was for many years and up to the time of his death at the ripe age of seventy-three an ardent collector of books. Realizing the necessity of confining his collection to certain specialties, if completeness was to be attained, Mr. Church limited his purchases to Americana and the works of the great writers of the Elizabethan and seventeenth century periods. He was possessed of a correct taste in judging of a book and the true "collecting faculty" difficult to describe in words but indispensable to one who sets out to gather a monumental library. Wealthy, liberal and with keen judgment, Mr. Church succeeded in bringing together what is undoubtedly the finest collection of Americana in the world—whether in private or public hands. Beginning with the letter of Christopher Columbus announcing the discovery of the New World, and from that to the period of the Revolution, his library contains practically all the rare volumes dealing with the discoveries, voyages and development of the continent of North America. When the splendid collection of Americana formed by Marshall C. Lefferts was dispersed Mr. Church saw a golden opportunity to both improve and increase his collection. Among his acquisitions at that time was the finest copy known of the first edition of Eliot's Indian Bible, and, in addition, nearly all of the other choicer items in the collection. Mr. Church never had an opportunity to secure a perfect copy of the Bay Psalm Book, but obtained one with a few leaves in facsimile. While not a collector of manuscripts, his library contains the original of Franklin's autobiography. This was secured from the library of John Bigelow. While the section of the library devoted to English literature is much smaller than the Americana, it contains some books the chance of getting which occurs but once in a lifetime. There is no doubt that had Mr. Church lived he would have endeavored to round out his English literature until it rivalled his American collection in completeness. Of the four folio Shakespeares the library contains every known variety, which means in all some fifteen examples. There are many quarto editions of the separate plays of Shakespeare, besides rare editions of the poems. Among the latter is an early issue of the sonnets, of which but two perfect copies are known. Among other superlatively rare books is a perfect copy of the first edition of Sidney's "Arcadia," said to be the only perfect copy known. Personally Mr. Church was a charming man. While of modest and retiring habits, he was a keen student of his books, and at all times delighted to talk about them to those people who could appreciate their importance and beauty. Three collectors only of recent times, whose names occur to the writer, equalled Mr. Church in their correct judgment as to the condition and desirability of a rare book. These were C. C. Kalbfleisch, Almon W. Griswold, (both deceased,) and Marshall C. Lefferts. From these collections Mr. Church secured the best things. There is a natural curiosity existing among collectors as to the disposition of the books. The dispersal of so choice a collection would be a calamity, and we earnestly hope it will be preserved intact to remain for all time a noble monument to one who will be ever remembered as a conspicuous figure among the great collectors of the world. The first part of the catalogue of the library of Mr. Church, in five volumes, dealing with the Americana, prepared by George Watson Cole, which was brought out six months ago by Dodd, Mead & Co., has been described as no mere list of books, but a working guide to Americana. The second part, dealing with the English literature, is well under way, and will probably leave the press before the end of the year. Of this catalogue 150 copies are printed, of which 130 copies are for sale.

NOTES ON AUTHORS.

LEO TOLSTOY's eightieth birthday was celebrated on September 9, at his home, Yasnaya Poliana. A flood of congratulatory telegrams reached the octogenarian from all parts of Russia. Many of them were from official bodies, which disregarded the attitude of the administration on the observance of the anniversary of the birth of the Count. Others were from literary and scientific organizations in all parts of the world. Tolstoy's health continues to improve and he works many hours every day. He is still in bed, but was able to get up a few hours for his birthday.

BUSINESS NOTES.

AUGUSTA, GA.—The business of the A. W. Dellquest Book Co. was seriously interrupted by the flood of August 17, but no damage to stock was sustained except in the basement, where a few thousand second-hand volumes were stored. He has issued a post-card showing a canoe passing his door.

CINCINNATI, O.—A number of the creditors of the Robert Clarke Company have filed an intervening petition to order the receiver of the bankrupt company to file a list of the creditors and an account of his receipts and disbursements; that the receiver be removed and that another receiver be appointed who shall manage the business under the direction of a trustee to be named by the creditors.

COLTON, CAL.—J. F. Mantor has bought the book business of John M. Mynes.

NEW YORK CITY.—William Thomson, formerly of the Thomson-Pitt Book Company, has returned from Europe with a choice selected stock of standard, rare and curious books, and will be pleased to meet his old friends at his new store, at No. 35 West Forty-second Street, where they will receive the same liberal dealing, both as to buying and selling, as formerly.

SAN DIEGO, CAL.—J. C. Packard has succeeded H. Stout, bookseller.

STANTON, NEB.—Carl Lindquist has bought the City Book Store.

JOURNALISTIC NOTES.

THE November issue of The Century begins the 77th volume and the 39th year of the magazine. It will appear in entirely new dress, with heading known as 10-point Caslon.

THE September Atlantic contains interesting contributions on "Bret Harte's Heroines," by Henry C. Merwin; on "Edwin Laurence Godkin," by James Ford Rhodes; and on "The Spanish Drama of To-day," by Elizabeth Wallace. Publishers will enjoy "Hesternus to His Publisher" in the "Contributors' Club."

THE September Forum contains an estimate of "The Writings of Anatole France, by Frederic Taber Cooper, à propos of the edition in English of the works of this talented Frenchman, now in course of publication by the John Lane Co. It also contains an appreciation of George Meredith's "Modern Love," by Elmer J. Bailey.

BIBLIOGRAPHIC NOTES.

THE GOVERNMENT PRINTING OFFICE has published a "Select List of References on Corrupt Practices in Elections," compiled under the direction of A. P. C. Griffin, the new Chief Assistant Librarian of Congress.

KARSLAKE & Co., London, N. W., have just brought out the third part of v. 5 of their "Book Auction Records," a priced and annotated record of London book auctions from April 1 to June 30, 1908, containing 5243 records.

THE Associazione Tipografico-Libraria Italiana of Milan is publishing through Ulrico Hoepli an exhaustive "Indice per Materie" to the "Catalogo generale della Libreria Italiana dall' Anno 1847 a tutto il 1899," compiled by Professor Pagliaini, of Genoa, which was brought out in 1905. This subject index is to appear in monthly parts, each consisting of 64 treble-column pages, and will probably extend to two volumes. Its exhaustive character may be gathered from the fact that the first two parts carry the alphabet no further than "Archeologia."

THE BIBLIOGRAPHICAL SOCIETY OF LONDON has published "A Dictionary of the Booksellers and Printers who were at work in England, Scotland and Ireland from 1641 to 1667," by Henry R. Plomer. The period covered—from the outbreak of the Civil War to the reimposition of a strict censorship—is one crowded with ephemeral publications in addition to the normal output of serious and bulky volumes, and Mr. Plomer's researches to trace the printers' names is a distinct service to those interested in the history of English literature and the period of English politics covered by his publication.

DODD, MEAD & Co. will publish early in November the volume of "American Book-Prices Current for 1908," including a record of books, manuscripts and autographs sold at auction in New York, Boston and Philadelphia, from September 1, 1907, to September 1, 1908, with the prices realized, compiled from authentic records by Luther S. Livingston. The publishers wish to limit the edition of the new volume to approximately the number called for, and will therefore print not more than 100 copies in excess of the number actually subscribed for by November 1, 1908. The book will be printed from type and no second edition will be issued.

THE Emperor of Japan has conferred upon F. von Wenckstern the Order of the Rising Sun, fourth class, for his "Bibliography of the Japanese Empire." The second volume of this work, issued by Bernard Quaritch six months ago, is not, as has been supposed, a new and enlarged edition of the volume published in 1895, but embraces only the literature in European languages issued from 1894 to 1906, with corrections and additions to the first volume. It also contains a supplement to Léon Pagè's "Bibliographie Japonaise," and a list of the Swedish literature on Japan, by Miss Valfrid Palmgren, first assistant librarian of the Royal Library in Stockholm, covering the subject from the Middle Ages to the present day.

PERSONAL NOTES.

ROBERT C. MCNAMARA, assistant treasurer and manager of the Princeton University Book Store, has resigned, (in effect September 30,) to accept a position with Scott, Foresman & Co., of Chicago. B. Franklin Bunn, formerly assistant manager, succeeds him.

EUGENE SOMMER, for seven years manager and buyer for The Emporium of San Francisco, Cal., has severed his connections with that concern to open up a book and stationery department for The White House, also of San Francisco. Mr. Sommer, who is one of the most popular men in his line, will make a trip to Europe in October.

HARRY B. BROOKS, for a number of years with the Cooke & Cobb Company, of Brooklyn, N. Y., has severed his connections with that concern to associate himself with the J. G. Shaw Blank Book Company, of New York City. Mr. Brooks, from 1869 to 1881, was connected with S. C. Griggs & Co., and their successors in the retail business, Jansen, McClurg & Co., now A. C. McClurg & Co. In 1881 Mr. Brooks went to St. Paul, Minn., where he acted as manager and buyer for the St. Paul Book and Stationery Company until that concern retired from the wholesale business. Later he became manager of the Chicago office of Carter, Rice & Co., of Boston, (with an interval of a year, when he filled the position of manager and buyer for John Morris Company,) and in 1897 he joined the forces of the Cooke & Cobb Company.

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

B. W. DODGE & Co. will publish in October "An Adventure in Exile," by Richard Duffy, a story that met with much appreciation during its career in The Scrap-Book.

NEWTON & CARTWRIGHT, 156 Fifth Avenue, will issue immediately a dainty line of classics for the holiday trade, and will control a small but important line of stationery.

THE COCHRANE PUBLISHING CO., New York City, will publish about November "The Chronicles of Manuel Alarus," by L. Ernest Wyneken, a large book of San Francisco reminiscences; also, "The Devil's Notebook," by Oliver Bainbridge, dealing with immorality in Christian lands, and illustrated with 20 cartoons by Vet Anderson, of the New York World.

THE removal of the London offices of W. & R. Chambers, Ltd., from 47 Paternoster Row, where the London business of this well-known publishing firm has been carried on since 1855, to Soho Square, is to the London Bookseller another example of the increasing tendency during recent years of the publishing trade to leave the city proper and to move westwards.

REID PUBLISHING CO., Boston, issue to-day "Old Mother Shoe and Her Jolly Twenty-Two," a refreshing and laughable treatise on "The old woman who lived in a shoe," by Martin Sindell, who has also made the illustrations for a book which will delight old and young. Later in the season this house will publish "Out of the Depths," by George A. Parker, a short novel dealing with Christian Science; "Satisfied at Last," by Martin Sindell, also dealing with Christian Science; and a translation of a story of Marus Jokai entitled "A Gypsy's Heart, or, After Ten Years."

THE CENTRE PUBLISHING CO., 30 Church Street, New York City, will shortly publish "Psycho-therapy: a Course of Reading in Sound Medicine, Sound Psychology and Sound Religion," edited by W. B. Parker, lecturer in English at Columbia University, 1905-1908, and including among the contributors eminent scholars and authorities in the fields of psychology, medicine and religion, such as Professor Royce, of Harvard; Dr. Worcester, of Emmanuel Church; Professors Jastrow, of the University of Wisconsin; Angell, of Chicago University; James J. Putnam, of the Harvard Medical School, and Dr. Frederick Peterson, of New York City.

ACCORDING to the copyright law, it is impossible to protect the title of a book. The contents are protected, but the name is not. A particularly flagrant and familiar case is "The Man of the Hour." This admirable title had been given commercial value by the success of Octave Thanet's popular novel. It was calmly appropriated and tacked on to a political comedy that was in no sense a dramatization of the book. And now comes the announcement that a play entitled "The Best Man" is being produced in Boston. Harold MacGrath might feel, with some justification, that his well-known story had secured to him a proprietary interest in that title, but the courts would not recognize it.

OWING to the social prominence of the author of "A Little Brother of the Rich" the newspapers have served the public with many sensational stories, causing some to think that Mr. Patterson had classified himself as a writer of unwholesome literature. It was even published that, finding his wording too blunt, the author had censored his book after the first edition was printed. This turns out to be untrue. Now that the first-page writers have given the book every sensational twist, seemingly possible, the real sober criticism has been taken up by the reviewers who, while admitting that Mr. Patterson has been both blunt and outspoken, insist that he has done his work with all delicacy considering the bigness of his theme—a story of the idle rich, the lives they lead and the example they set for the public in general. The author is given full credit for having entré to the social circles of which he has written, and consequently what he has to say is given careful consideration by the critics.

THE stupendous task of preparing a complete photographic atlas of the heavens, which J. Franklin-Adams of Lloyds has set himself, is expected to be completed in October. Incidentally it will include the indexing of 23,000,000 stars. Mr. Adams's method, according to the London correspondent of the New York Sun, has been to divide the firmament into 212 squares, which have been photographed on specially prepared plates fifteen inches square. The southern constellations he photographed in South Africa, the rest have been taken at his observatory near Godalming. This observatory is considered one of the best equipped in private ownership. The total of 23,000,000 stars is explained to be an average, although comparative accuracy can be obtained by an ingenious microscopical device which has been invented by Mr. Adams for the purpose. The solar atlas when completed will be published, together with as complete an index as possible, at cost price, which it is expected will be about £25 a copy."

LITTLE, BROWN & CO. begin their fall publishing season to-day—the 12th inst.—by issuing a new illustrated edition of Louisa M. Alcott's Spinning Wheel Series, which includes the four volumes entitled "Spinning Wheel Stories," "Silver Pitchers," "Proverb Stories" and "A Garland for Girls." These are uniform with the illustrated edition of the Little Women Series, and make a most attractive gift for the holidays. They are also just bringing out a new library edition of Mrs. Ewing's works in eleven volumes; and new issues, in new dress, of A. C. Plympton's "Dear Daughter Dorothy" and "Dorothy and Anton." For the older readers they have made ready new editions of the "Rubáiyát," with the Whinfield-Fitzgerald metrical translations, Justin Huntly McCarthy's prose version and notes, by Jessie G. Rittenhouse; a cheap edition of Fisher Ames's "The Game of Bridge;" and new editions of Olive Schreiner's deathless "Story of an African Farm" and her "Dreams," in which is included a portrait of the author.

DODD, MEAD & CO. publish to-day "The Man from Brodneys," in which the author, George Barr McCutcheon, has resumed the settings and general character of "Graustark," one of his most popular books—having created a splendid princess and a dashing American hero, and brought them with all the other necessary characters into a far-off island of Japat—a fine combination for a "Graustark" kind of romance. They have also just ready Albert Payson Terhune's articles on "The World's Great Events," which, under fifty headings, narrate one of the decisive events in the world's history, whether it be a battle, a political movement or the life of a great man; "Polly of the Circus," a novelization of a play which nightly fills the house to its doors; "And So They Were Married," a new novel by Florence Morse Kingsley; "Vronina," a novel of Welsh life, by Owen Rhoscomyl; also, two books for young people —"Patty's Friends," a new book for girls by Miss Carolyn Wells, and "The Mighty Hunter," by Miss Elizabeth M. Gordon, which depicts by picture and verse the adventures of a doll hunter and his companions.

THE OXFORD UNIVERSITY PRESS will publish shortly a work by Elkan Nathan Adler entitled "Auto de Fé and Jew," in which the author has sketched the effect of the Inquisition in Spain and Portugal, particularly in regard to the Crypto-Jews who came within its purview. His lists—chronologically arranged—comprise nearly 2000 burnings which took place in Spain and Portugal and their American and Indian colonies from the establishment of the Holy Office until its final abolition, early in the nineteenth century. They also announce "An Alabama Student, and Other Biographical Essays," by Dr. Osler, Regius Professor of Medicine at Oxford, a volume of occasional addresses, dealing chiefly with the life of physicians in the United States, where Professor Osler thinks the Hippocratic ideals have been more fully realized than elsewhere. A great work undertaken by this house in partnership with the Early English Text Society is a dictionary which will appear shortly, entitled "Promptorium Parvulorum," the first English-Latin Dictionary, 1440 A.D., edited from manuscripts in the Chapter Library at Winchester, with notes, introduction and glossaries by A. L. Mayhew.

THE JOHN LANE COMPANY bring out this week in their edition of the works of Anatole France his "Garden of Epicurus;" "The High Adventure," a novel by Hugh de Selincourt; "Valladolid, Oviedo, Segovia, Zamora, Avila and Zaragoza," an historical and descriptive account of six cities of Spain little known to English-speaking travellers, by Albert F. Calvert, with 413 illustrations; "Pleasure and Problem in South Africa," by Cecil Harmsworth, a narrative of trips through South Africa, from September, 1907, until the end of the first week in this year, describing the never-failing attractions from the tourist's point of view of an exceptionally interesting group of British dependencies, with 24 illustrations reproduced from photographs; "King Alfred's Jewel," a drama by the author of "Mors et Victoria," one of the interesting features of which is a frontispiece, in colors, reproducing exactly the jewel belonging to the early English king which is still preserved at Oxford; "The Small Holding," by F. E. Green, author of "How I Work My Small Farm," a new volume in The Country Handbooks series; also, "Holly, Yew and Box," an important garden book, describing the propagation and general cultivation of holly with suggestions for its use as town trees and hedge plants, with 175 illustrations from carefully prepared photographs.

THE RIVERSIDE PRESS are printing for Charles Gibson a volume of sonnets entitled "The Wounded Eros," the manuscript of which has just been completed. The book is to be issued in a limited edition by the author, signed and numbered, and bound uniform with his first volume, "The Spirit of Love, and Other Poems," published in 1906, which received favorable criticism from such writers as the late Thomas Bailey Aldrich, Alfred Austin, Barrett Wendell and Thomas Wentworth Higginson. In writing of these poems the poet laureate said: "I recognize in them broad culture and wide sympathies." Interest will be attached to the volume through the critical introduction written by William Stanley Braithwaite, the author of "The Book of Elizabethan Verse," an admirable collection similar in scope and character to "The Oxford Book of Verse." Mr. Braithwaite is a poet, as well as a discriminating critic, and has previously written some admirable introductions to volumes of poetry. His discussion of this latest sonnet sequence is sure to command interest among those familiar with his work. In his first volume Mr. Gibson published several sonnets, both in the Shakespearean and the varying Italian forms. The present series adheres strictly to the prescribed forms of the Italian sonnet, the variations allowed in the sextette being the only ones which the writer has indulged in. The book is to be issued about October 1.

LONGMANS, GREEN & CO. will publish shortly a work in two volumes, (sold separately,) on "Moral Instruction and Training in Schools." The book is the outcome of an international inquiry conducted by a committee which was appointed at a large meeting held in London on February 5, 1907, under the chairmanship of the Rt. Hon. James Bryce. The first volume deals with methods of moral instruction and training in elementary and secondary schools for boys and girls, including some of the great public schools, in Sunday schools, in adult schools and in training colleges in the United Kingdom; the second, with the methods of moral instruction and training adopted in schools in France, Denmark, Norway, Germany, Switzerland, the United States, Canada, New South Wales, New Zealand and Japan. Among the contributors are the Headmaster of Eton, Professor Eucken of Jena, President Stanley Hall, Professor William James, Dr. Felix Adler, the Bishop of Birmingham, Alfred Fouillée, Dr. Paton, Harrold Johnson, Father Maher, S.J., Professors Muirhead, Adams and Findlay, Arnold Rowntree, Dr. F. H. Hayward, J. H. Bradley, Mrs. Bryant, Dr. Estlin Carpenter, Chancellor Bernard, Miss S. E. Wells, Miss Alice Ravenhill, Miss Jourdain, F. J. Gould, Gustav Spiller, Percival Chubb, Principal Baldwin of Hyannis, Mass.; Baron Kikuchi, Stephen Gwynn, M.P., and J. H. Yoxall, M.P. The volumes have been edited by Professor M. E. Sadler, who contributes an introduction.

THE MACMILLAN COMPANY have just ready Professor Archibald Cary Coolidge's important work on "The United States as a World-Power," based on the lectures which he recently delivered at the Sorbonne in Paris, and which attracted wide attention in Europe. It is a critical study of the international position of the United States to-day. He discusses in detail, and with many comparisons, the situation arising from the formation and growth of the United States, the composition of its white population, the colored elements, the Monroe doctrine, the Spanish war and the acquisition of colonies, the economic status of the country, the relations of the United States with continental Europe and with England, the relations with Canada and with the countries of Latin America, the presence of the United States in the Pacific and its relations with China and with Japan. They have also brought out this week "The Tercentenary History of Canada, from Champlain to Laurier, 1608 to 1908," by Frank Basil Tracy, in three volumes, with many full-page illustrations, portraits and maps; "Hygiene for Nurses," by Isabel McIsaac, which is, in a way, supplementary to her "Primary Nursing Technique;" a new edition of Professor Ely's famous "Outlines of Economics," revised and enlarged by the author and Thomas S. Adams, Professor of Political Economy in the University of Wisconsin; Max O. Lorenz, Assistant Professor of Political Economy in the University of Wisconsin, and Allyn A. Young, Professor of Economics in Leland Stanford, Jr., University; also, "Wroth," by Agnes and Egerton Castle, a story of the early part of the nineteenth century, full of the romantic spirit for which the Castles are famous.

HOUGHTON, MIFFLIN Co. have just brought out "The Children's Longfellow," a selection of more than eighty poems from the works of "the children's poet," with eight charming full-page illustrations, in color, by popular artists, decorated title-page, sub-titles and headings in color; "Amedée's Son," by Harry James Smith, a brilliant first novel by a successful and popular short-story writer, the scene of which is laid among the French inhabitants of Cape Breton; "Peter Moor's Journey to Southwest Africa," by Gustav Frenssen, translated from the original German, with the consent of the author, by Margaret May Ward, in which the author of "Jörn Uhl" works out a painfully vivid story of the experiences of a German volunteer private during a recent campaign against African natives, which as a piece of visualizing modern warfare, it is thought, is to be classed with Sakurai's "Human Bullets;" "Letters from Colonial Children," by Eva March Tappan, which has been planned to give to young children an idea of their country through the medium of letters, purporting to have been written by children in the old Colonial days and telling of the every-day life and the important episodes which occurred in our early history; "Ye Butcher, Ye Baker, Ye Candlestick-Maker," by Robert Seaver, humorous verses and pictures that describe the occupations of the olden days; "Beginnings in Industrial Education," by Professor Paul H. Hanus, of Harvard, which treats the subject under two groups—the first dealing specifically with the problem of industrial education in this country and the second with some of the results that have been obtained in the secondary schools of Germany; a new edition of Dean Hodge's story of Jesus—"When the King Came"—with sixteen full-page illustrations from famous paintings; Cooper's "The Pathfinder," "The Pioneer" and "The Prairie" in the Cambridge Classics Series; also, "King Arthur Stories from Malory," by Lillian O. Stevens and Edward F. Allen, in the Riverside Literature Series, with reproductions from five of the Abbey pictures in the Boston Public Library.

G. P. PUTNAM'S SONS have just ready "The Sovereign Good," by Helen Huntington, a novel of the social gaieties of the New York smart set, which seizes upon the curiosity of the reader and keeps it wide awake; "An Incarnation of the Snow," by F. W. Bain, a story full of the same oriental imagery that made his "Digit of the Moon" and "A Draught of the Blue" so fascinating; "Narrative Lyrics," by Edward L. White, whose verse is of singularly fine and finished form; "Racial Contrasts: Distinguishing Traits of the Græco-Latins and Teutons," by Albert Gehring, a study in race psychology; "The Great Fight: Poems and Sketches," by the late William Henry Drummond, with a biographical sketch by May Harvey Drummond, (Mrs. William Henry Drummond;) "A Commentary," described as a series of typical character sketches, or social studies, by John Galsworthy; and "The Niagara River," by Archer B. Hulbert, who records all the historical and commercial facts relative to this great river and points out its immense commercial future, and also describes many of the feats performed by many adventurous tourists who have visited Niagara Falls; "Chaucer's England," by G. G. Coulton, designed as a picture of Chaucer the man, with a background of the world in which he lived in the reign of Edward III.; and "The Holland House Circle," by Lloyd Sanders, picturing from 1799 to 1840 when all the distinguished men in politics, science and literature were guests of the Holland House. A little later in the season the house will issue "The Writings of Washington," a volume of selections edited by Professor Lawrence B. Evans, the first volume of a series to be entitled Writings of American Statesmen, which eventually will contain selections from the works of Jefferson, Franklin, Alexander Hamilton and perhaps others; "The House Dignified: Its Design, Arrangement and Decoration," by Lillie Hamilton French; "Beverages, Past and Present," by Edward R. Emerson; "Johann Sebastian Bach," by Sir Hubert Parry; and several new Ariel Booklets: "Maxims of Balzac;" Tennyson's "Idylls of the King," in two volumes; Merimée's "Carmen;" Browning's "Shorter Poems;" Keat's "Lyrics;" and Oscar Wilde's "The Happy Prince," etc.

TERMS OF ADVERTISING.

Under the heading "Books Wanted" book-trade subscribers are given the privilege of a free advertisement for books out of print of five nonpareil lines, exclusive of address, in any issue except special numbers, to an extent not exceeding 100 lines a year. If more than five lines are sent, the excess is at 10 cents a line, and amount should be inclosed. Bids for current books and such as may be easily had from the publishers, and repeated matter, as well as all advertisements from non-subscribers, must be paid for at the rate of 10 cents a line.

Under the heading "Books for Sale," the charge to subscribers and non-subscribers is 10 cents a nonpareil line for each insertion. No reduction for repeated matter.

All other small undisplayed advertisements will be charged at the uniform rate of 10 cents a nonpareil line. Eight words may be reckoned to the line.

Parties with whom we have no account must pay in advance, otherwise no notice will be taken of their Communications.

BOOKS WANTED.

☞ In answering, please state edition, condition, and price, including postage or express charges.

Houses that are willing to deal exclusively on a cash-on-delivery basis will find it to their advantage to put after their firm-name the word [Cash.]

☞ Write your wants plainly, and on one side of the sheet only. Illegibly-written "wants" will be considered as not having been received. The "Publishers' Weekly" does not hold itself responsible for errors.

It should be understood that the appearance of advertisements in this column, or elsewhere in the "Publishers' Weekly," does not furnish a guarantee of credit. While it is endeavored to safeguard these columns by withdrawing the privilege of their use from advertisers who are not "good pay" booksellers should take the usual precautions, as to advertisers not known to them, that they would take in making sales to any unknown parties.

GEORGE W. JACOBS & CO. - PHILADELPHIA

"Men and women of our great cities need to read stories of the open, fresh with mountain breezes, odorous with the scent of pines and glowing with sunshine."—HAMILTON WRIGHT MABIE.

THE ONE AND I

A Love Story of the Canadian Northwest

By ELIZABETH FREEMANTLE

is just such a story

The Nature note lends more beauty and charm to this odd little love story than could any other motif, and the wonders of the Canadian Northwest are made very real.

The vein of quiet humor that runs through the account of this novel wooing is very pervasive and there is a smile on most every page.

Four full-page colored illustrations from photographs of that wonderful country. Special lining paper, etc. 12mo, cloth, $1.50

We predict a steadily growing sale for this book, for it's the kind of book that you want to recommend to your friends.

WITH THE BATTLE FLEET

By FRANKLIN MATTHEWS

Fully illustrated by HENRY REUTERDAHL

Cover in three colors, drawn by EARL STETSON CRAWFORD. Cloth, 12mo, $1.50

The author and illustrator accompanied the U. S. Atlantic Fleet from Hampton Roads to San Francisco, representing the N. Y. Sun and Collier's respectively. Mr. Matthews' letters were printed in thirty other papers simultaneously, among which were the Boston Herald, Chicago Tribune and San Francisco Chronicle, and they now appear in book form in response to the widespread demand.

The letters were recognized by all who read them, including the highest naval officers, as forming the truest as well as the most fascinating account of the cruise—the greatest ever undertaken by any navy in the world. This is the authoritative record.

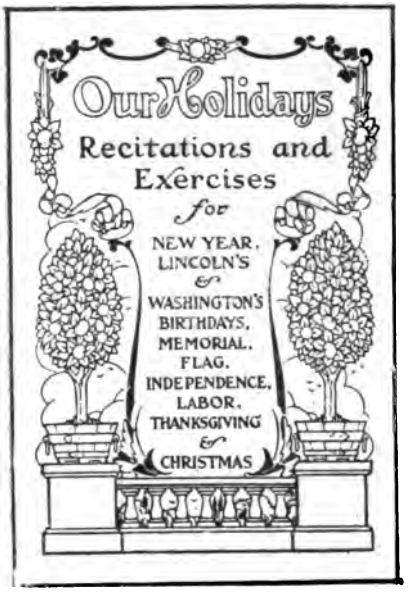
OUR HOLIDAYS

Recitations and Exercises for the Holidays of the Year

ARRANGED AND COMPILED BY MATILDA BLAIR



BOSTON GLOBE

"Matilda Blair has compiled in a handy little book, bearing the title 'Our Holidays,' an uncommon collection of recitations and exercises which first rudiment orators in the schools will greet with pleasure. There are outbursts of enthusiasm for every holiday in the year."

CHICAGO DAILY NEWS

"'Our Holidays' is a collection of recitations and exercises for school use in celebrating Lincoln and Washington's birthdays, Memorial, Flag, Independence, Labor, Thanksgiving and Christmas days. It is arranged and compiled by Matilda Blair with discriminating regard for that which will best interpret the spirit of these occasions to the youthful mind."

ST. PAUL DISPATCH

"Well selected recitations and exercises for the national holidays celebrated in the United States."

THE NEWS AND COURIER, CHARLESTON, S. C.

"This inexpensive little volume consists, as its title indicates, of recitations and exercises suitable for New Year's Day, Lincoln's and Washington's birthdays, Memorial, Flag, Independence, Labor, Thanksgiving and Christmas days. It is admirably arranged."

BALTIMORE AMERICAN

"This is a collection of recitations and exercises for New Year's, Lincoln's and Washington's birthdays, Memorial, Flag, Independence, Labor, Thanksgiving and Christmas days. They will be found to be valuable for school and private entertainments, and will doubtless suggest other variations in the program which will be unique and appropriate."

Numerous half-tone illustrations, and colored lithographic frontispiece. Cloth 12mo, stamped in three colors. Price, 50 cents

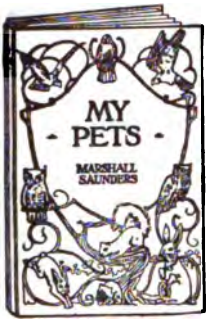
MY PETS



By MARSHALL SAUNDERS. Illustrated in black and white, and colors, by CHARLES COPELAND. 12mo. Price, $1.25.

This book might very properly be called a companion volume to "Beautiful Joe," by the same author. Like that immensely popular autobiography of a dog, this new work delineates animal life in a way that will fascinate and charm the children, and the hundreds and thousands of boys and girls who have come under the spell of Beautiful Joe's recital will be eager to read about the pets of the author of that "beautiful tale of an ugly dog."

FIVE MONTHS ON A DERELICT

By EDWIN J. HOUSTON, Ph. D. Vol. I in "The Pacific Series." Illustrated. Price, $1.25.

This book describes the experiences of two men and three boys on a derelict brig in the Pacific Ocean. Interwoven with thrilling adventures is an interesting account of the "denizens of the deep," and the causes and peculiarities of the great ocean currents. Altogether it is a fascinating and informing tale of ocean wanderings and wonders. It is the first of a series of three volumes that will present life on and in the great ocean. The succeeding two volumes, entitled respectively, Wrecked on a Coral Island, and In Captivity in the Pacific, will be published at an early date.

CY WHITTAKER'S PLACE

An extraordinary novel of Cape Cod life, by

JOSEPH C. LINCOLN

Author of "Mr. Pratt," "Cap'n Eri," etc.

This novel is just as true to its purpose of portraying life at Cape Cod as "David Harum" is of life in Central New York, and Mr. Lincoln has produced a novel that promises to be just as permanent as "David Harum." The scene is laid in Bayport —a hamlet—and the main interest revolves about the home of Cy Whittaker.

It is beautifully bound with inlay on cover in two colors.

English Voyages of Adventure and Discovery

Retold from Hakluyt by EDWIN M. BACON Illustrated, $1.50

The book gives the stories of adventure, discovery, expansion of trade and American colonization, told largely in the words of the old voyagers and chroniclers themselves, edited and arrranged for boys' reading. The narrative is made clearer and more intelligible through explanations and connecting bits, and the picturesquely vigorous tone of the original sources maintained through the direct quotations.

CAN THIS BE MR. TAFT?

A NOVEL, yea, even a love story, whose chief interest—and it is exceptionally interesting—does not lie in its story and not at all in its love element, is the unusual sort of tale Frederick Palmer has written in "The Big Fellow," (Moffat, Yard & Co., $1.50.) It tells the story of the first decade or so after his graduation in the life of a young fellow whom the author evidently intends to make typical of the best American sort. He is 6 feet 4, with breadth and muscles to match, and his college sobriquet of "Big Fellow" sticks to him through life, and even follows him to the Island of Bar, whither he is sent as civil Governor. In him the author has endeavored to embody the characteristic traits of kindliness, will power, efficiency, patience, earnestness, law-abidingness, and love of action which have sent the American Nation on its conquering march across the continent and out into the Pacific.

The Big Fellow, who is really James Harden, although few of his friends care anything about that, faces life at the beginning of his career with his diploma and $10 in his pocket, and the necessity of meeting a mortgage on his mother's home, of which he had not been told. His first job is the splitting of a cord of wood and his second with a gang of men who are building a trolley line. The story ends with his triumphal return from a two years' term as Colonial Governor and the likelihood of his election as Governor of his own State in the Middle West.

There is no plot worth speaking of, and only the merest thread of a story. Nevertheless, the book is remarkably entertaining. The author writes "with brains, Sir"—as the famous artist mixed his paints—with exceptional knowledge of men and affairs, and with a fresh and vital touch which puts the breath of life into his characters and his incidents. He has unusual facility and vividness in the delineation of character. He draws his people with a few bold strokes, but he has the knack of making them seem alive and individual. Half the book is devoted to the Big Fellow's work as Governor of Bar, and it is well worth reading by any one who wants to get inside knowledge of our problems in the Pacific. Mr. Palmer gets at the living heart of character among the islanders as convincingly as he does among the Americans, and his story of how his hero labored to make the natives understand "the supremacy of law" and "the constitutional rights of the minority" is both racy and instructive.

JUDITH OF THE CUMBERLANDS — By Alice MacGowan

Author of "The Last Word," "Return," "Huldah," etc.
With Illustrations in Color by George Wright

Crown, 8vo. $1.50

A tale of primitive power, in which an impassioned love story contends for the reader's interest against the startling incidents of a mountain feud.

THE SOVEREIGN GOOD — By Helen Huntington

Crown 8vo. $1.50

With this story we are plunged into the social gaieties of the New York smart set, or at least of a set that is surely in the metropolitan social swim. Through the gay and highly polished world moves a heroine with a nature as fine and sound as it is brilliant and charming, and a hero, a well-bred but struggling young dramatist, who at last succeeds. The Sovereign Good seizes upon the curiosity of the reader, and keeps it wide awake till the last pages of the tale are turned.

FLOWER OF THE DUSK — By Myrtle Reed

Author of "A Spinner in the Sun," "The Master's Violin," etc.

Crown 8vo, with Frontispiece in color by Clinton Balmer. Cloth, $1.50 net. Full red leather, $2.00 net. Antique Calf, $2.50 net. Lavender Silk, $3.50 net.

"Miss Myrtle Reed may always be depended upon to write a story in which poetry, charm, tenderness and humor are combined into a clever and entertaining book. Her characters are delightful, and she displays a quaint humor of expression and a quiet feeling of pathos which give a touch of active realism to all her writings."—The Philadelphia Press.

A WOMAN AT BAY (Una Donna) — By Sibilla Aleramo

Translated from the Italian by M. H. LANSDALE

Crown, 8vo. $1.50

This moving and powerful book is by a woman whom, it is safe to say, many will make bold to call a writer of genius. The story is concerned with the delicate problem of divorce, and no reader who would harden his heart against liberal views on this difficult question should venture even to glance through its pages. Signora Aleramo knows how to enlist the warmest human sympathies in behalf of the woman's right to freedom, and to support her view of the matter by reason and the persuasive fervor of her eloquence.

HENRY OF NAVARRE — A Romance of August, 1572 — Anonymous

Crown 8vo. $1.50

A stirring and dramatic story, the scene of which is laid in Paris during the troublesome month of August, 1572, on the eve of the marriage of Marguerite de Valois to Henry of Navarre. As befits the times the plot moves rapidly, the dialogue is strikingly good, and the pages are filled with intrigue, adventure, violence, and the love of woman. A play based on the story is to be produced in London this season by Miss Neilson and Fred Terry.

AN INCARNATION OF THE SNOW — By F. W. Bain

Crown 8vo. $1.25

In An Incarnation of the Snow, Mr Bain shows the same captivating and delightful style that distinguished his previous works—a style characterized by firmness and grace, an opulence of warm oriental imagery. Those who know Mr. Bain's Digit of the Moon and A Draught of the Blue will ask no commendation for this new volume, but will turn eagrly to it of their own motion.

Startling Story of Society

A Little Brother of the Rich

CHICAGO, SEPTEMBER 15, 1908

To the Trade:

¶ As we have before stated, it was our intention to publish A LITTLE BROTHER OF THE RICH on September 1st, announcing the author's name on August 29th, but the newspapers got hold of the "story" on August 20th, and the resulting tremendous publicity and enormous demand for the book practically forced us to put the novel on sale on August 24th. The first large edition was exhausted in a few days—likewise the second—and the third, with hundreds of orders unfilled.

¶ But as this is written the fourth edition is being received, while the fifth and sixth editions are in press—making a total of 100,000 books printed and in press.

¶ Therefore, by the time this advertisement appears in print we shall be in shape to promptly fill orders.

¶ The foregoing will explain the cause of delay in filling many orders—a delay which we regret, but which was unavoidable, and which we strove to minimize to the best of our ability.

NOTES IN SEASON.

D. APPLETON & Co. have just ready "Cy Whittaker's Place," by Joseph C. Lincoln, author of "Cap'n Eri," etc., which is just as true to its purpose of portraying life at Cape Cod as "David Harum" is of life in Central New York. The book has thirty illustrations by Wallace Morgan and an inlay on the cover in two colors.

FREDERICK A. STOKES COMPANY have brought out this week Marie Corelli's new story, "Holy Orders," which deals in no uncertain manner with such questions as temperance, yellow journalism and the waning influence of the clergy of the Christian Church to-day. The book is having a sensational success in England.

THOMAS NELSON & SONS have in preparation a new book by Archibald Williams, entitled "How It Is Done." This makes the third title in their How It Works series by this author, and tells of the great engineering achievements in all parts of the world, and how they have been accomplished. The book will be uniform with the other two volumes in this series—"How It Works" and "How It Is Made."

A. C. MCCLURG & Co. will publish on September 26 Arthur J. Eddy's story of Chicago, "Ganton & Co.," which has already aroused a good deal of interest. It is a big story and a clean story of sensational interest, but of an entirely legitimate sort. While the book is concerned with matters familiar in Chicago business, industrial and social life, it deals with types and conditions found in every large commercial centre. The chief events and incidents are found on actual happenings and the characters are perhaps easily recognizable, but all are woven into an imaginative story whose power holds the reader from beginning to close.

J. B. LIPPINCOTT COMPANY have just brought out a new complete novel by Louis Becke, entitled "The Adventures of Louis Blake." The scenes are laid in Lower California, and, of course, in that part of the world Mr. Becke has made peculiarly his own —the South Sea Islands. They are introducing to the American reading public a new author, Beatrice Grimshaw, who also tells of those lovely isles set like jewels in the South Pacific Seas. Her book is entitled "In the Strange South Seas," and is packed with interesting information about the islanders, their quaint habits and customs, and strange sights and happenings.

MOFFAT, YARD & COMPANY announce the approaching publication of a book by Sir Oliver Lodge which many will consider his greatest work. It is called "Science and Immortality," a very modern title for a work which sums up in a very modern way the status of science, faith and theology in their bearings, separately and collectively, upon religion and immortality. They have about ready Will Carleton's new book, "Drifted In," which is a sort of modern Canterbury Tales, told in Mr. Carleton's delightful verse, by the various passengers of a train "drifted in" a huge snow storm; "Felice," a novel by John Luther Long, the scene of which is in Philadelphia, with a frontispiece in colors by Montgomery Flagg; "Little Sam in Volundam," a book of verses and pictures for children by Estelle Kerr; also, Dr. James G. Mumford's "Surgical Memoirs," including valuable historical and biographical studies of Hippocrates, Galen, Vesalius, Pare, Haller, John Hunter, Lister, Cooper, Brodie, J. C. Warren and Bigelow, the interest of which is by no means confined to physicians.

A humorous presentation of the salient points of seven popular novels. Contents: Six months, by Hellinor Gryn; The lost secret, by E. Fillips Oppenheim; The pink suit case, by Louis J: Brassbowl; The stepdaughter of Peterson Jay, by George Jarr McClutcheon; Rollo in the metropolis, by Dopetom Hotair; Somehow interesting, by Author of Alice for Long; A pragmatic enigma, by A. Cowan Watson.

Barnes-Grundy, Mrs. Mabel Sarah. Hilary on her own. N. Y., Baker & Taylor Co., 1908. c. 401 p. D. cl., †$1.50.

Hilary is a strong-minded but most lovable young English girl who tires of the tyranny of a household run on plans of strictest economy and goes to London to make her own living. Her adventures and ultimate success make the story, through which there runs a good vein of sentiment, as always in the books of the author of "Dimbie and I."

Baum, Lyman Frank. Dorothy and the wizard in Oz; il. by J: R. Neill. Chic., Reilly & Britton Co., [1908.] c. 256 p. O. cl. $1.25.

At the request of many little readers the author of "The land of Oz" tells another of his stories of marvelous adventure in fairyland. Dorothy Gale of Kansas is in San Francisco on the day of the earthquake. She is in a wagon on her way to her Uncle Henry when the earth opens and the horse, wagon, the driver Zeb, Dorothy and her kitten Eureka all sink through it, going down, down, till they reach the Land of the Mangaboos, where the same earthquake finally brings up the Wizard of Oz, who helps them escape to Oz. Princess Ozma and other old friends are introduced and many new characters. The people and the adventures are just as funny as those of the previous books of the writer.

Bazin, René. The coming harvest, (Le blé qui lève;) tr. by Edna K. Hoyt. N. Y., Scribner, 1908. 347 p. D. cl., †$1.25.

A novel of life in the country of France to-day, full of picturesque incidents, vivid characters and descriptions of the country. The rugged figure of Gilbert Cloquet, a wood-cutter attached to the old social order yet influenced by the socialist movements around him, and that of Michel de Mexinier, a fine type of French aristocrat of to-day, and the charming Antoinette Jacquemin, the problems they all have to meet and their solution of them, make an interesting story.

Begbie, Harold. Tables of stone. N. Y., Doubleday, Page & Co., 1908. 8+424 p. D. cl., †$1.50.

The leading character, whose strong personality pervades the whole story, is John Diver, the son of a Yorkshire clergyman. Brought up in entire ignorance of real life, and educated by his charming old father, an orthodox minister deeply versed in the classics, he is suddenly plunged into the whirl of London fashionable life. His character is developed through a frivolous woman's interest in him and his deep love for a girl, whom he makes his wife, but who loves another man. He travels, is amazed at the wickedness of the world, writes socialistic books and is sent to Parliament. He strays away from his father's faith, breaking the old man's heart, formulating a merciless, hopeless creed which leaves him friendless and alone.

Author is professor of political economy in Harvard University. In this new edition statistics are thoroughly up-to-date; a new chapter has been added on railroad transportation and a forcible discussion of present-day problems.

Burton, F: R. Strongheart: a novel founded on W: C. de Mille's play; il. by Clarence Rowe. N. Y., George W. Dillingham Co., [1908.] c. 9-393 p. D. cl., †$1.50.

The action of the play of "Strongheart" only covered forty-eight hours from first act to last curtain and relates only to an educated Indian's experience among white people. Mr. Burton has greatly enlarged the story, going back to Strongheart's early days, before he became a student at Columbia, and he follows his career beyond the climax of the final curtain. He also introduces several new characters. Mr. Burton's especial fitness, aside from his experience as a writer, for making this book lies in his knowledge of Indian life and character.

The six cities of Spain which form the subject of this volume are little known to English travellers. Yet no one who would understand the country can afford to pass them by. Not only are they compact of artistic and architectural treasures, but within their walls much of the history of the Spanish nation has been made. The 413 illustrations are taken from photographs of their many artistic buildings, contents of art galleries, museums, etc.

Corelli, Marie. Holy orders: the tragedy of a quiet life. N. Y., Frederick A. Stokes Co., [1908.] c. 7+483 p. D. cl., †$1.50.

Taking as her hero an earnest clergyman in a small rural English parish the author gives a vivid picture of how the licensed drink traffic of England makes the work of her licensed clergy almost futile. In a story with excellent plot the author arraigns the drink problem, the temperance question, the reckless life of the rich and the poor, shows her views of the "Higher Church" clergy and of the worldliness of the church. A Catholic priest and a rich millionaire, both devoted to making the world better, voice some startling truths about the selfishness and materialism of the world that now rejects religious faith and strives wholly for money and what it can buy.

Davenport, Cyril Ja. H. The book: its history and development. N. Y., D. Van Nostrand Co., 1908. 6+258 p. il. O. (Westminster ser.) cl., *$2 net.

Author goes back to the earliest beginnings of book making—to the days when books were really not books at all, but rock inscriptions, tallies, quipus, wampums, and ideographs. Clear explanations are given of the distinctions, nowadays somewhat confused, between quarto and octavo, duodecimo, etc. All the different book bindings are described, from the wooded boards to the velvet bindings loved by Queen Elizabeth, and such eccentric choice as the skin of a human body. Mr. Davenport has written in a clear, text-book style, and at the end of each chapter he gives a long list of side-reading references.

De Sélincourt, Hugh. The high adventure. N. Y., John Lane Co., (The Bodley Head,) 1908. 11-295 p. D. cl., †$1.50.

A story of a young clerk in the British Museum who lives in Bloomsbury Square and gradually develops a distaste for the material views of human relationship. He stretches out eager hands towards an ideal which he can only vaguely formulate in his mind, and which develops into an ideal love for a strange girl. They marry and we take leave of them living a peaceful, satisfactory life.

A study in race psychology made with the purpose of differentiating the moral, intellectual and spiritual qualities revealed in the literature, life and art of the Græco-Latin peoples from the characteristics of the Teutonic race as seen in the same fields. The author considers his subject in eight chapters: Fundamental principles; Music; Literature; Painting; Architecture and sculpture; General considerations; Intellectual and emotional characteristics; Customs and institutions. These are supplemented by four essays: The fluctuations of beauty and morality; On homology of thought and action; On temporal expansion and contraction; Organic evolution in the light of comparative philology.

Miss Esperance, a lovable maiden lady, and Mr. Wycherly, an elderly and scholarly bachelor, take upon themselves the bringing up of two orphan boys. The problems that arise in their training, the difficulties with questions of religion and education, habits and behavior, are solved by the two guardians in their own quaint and original way. The people of the little Scotch town are sketched with rare sense of fun, and the escapades of the boys are most amusing. By the author of "Concerning Paul and Flametta."

Hawkes, Clarence. Black bruin: the biography of a bear; il. by C: Copeland. Phil., George W. Jacobs & Co., [1908.] c. 15-288 p. D. cl., †$1.50.

An introductory chapter tells of the habits and traits of bears in general. How this special bear was caught as a little cub and raised in a farm house in northern New York, where he became the pet of the family, is told in attractive style. Becoming too big for his quarters he is sold to an Italian, who teaches him to perform as a dancing bear. Other events of his life are related, carrying him to the time when "the call of the wild" carries him back to the mountains and the life of a wild beast.

Hay, Oliver Perry. The fossil turtles of North America. Wash., D. C., Carnegie Institution of Washington, 1908. 4+568+113 p. pls. diagrs., tabs., Q. (Carnegie Institution of Washington publication.) pap. $7.

This scholarly monograph describes 266 species of the fossil turtles of North America; 76 of these are of especial interest as having been hitherto unknown to science. The utmost carefulness has been observed both in text and illustrations, for both of which the author is especially indebted to the collection of fossil turtles in the American Museum of Natural History in New York. Free access has also been given Professor Hay to other leading museums in the country and it was his wish to see all types of the hitherto described species, but some of these are totally lost, while some others have, for the time disappeared from view. The various types of species here represented are minutly depicted.

A sequel to "The call of the blood," at the same time a complete story in itself. Sixteen years have elapsed since Maurice Delarcy, after betraying his wife for a young peasant girl, met his death by a fall into the sea, leaving Hermione, his wife, with her unborn child, ignorant of his treachery and brokenhearted at his loss. The present scene is in Italy, on a small island in the bay just outside of Naples. Hermione is living here with her child Vere, now a charming girl of sixteen. Vere makes acquaintance with a young Sicilian named Ruffo, whose identity is slowly made known. Hermione has been loved for years by a man in every way worthy of her, but has remained faithful to her husband's memory. When the truth is told everything is changed with her.

The present volume has grown from an interest in "The ring and the book," originating years ago in the instruction of Professor Hiram Corson, of Cornell University. By the courtesy of Baliol College the author was accorded the privilege of free access to Browning's treasure trove, of which they have the unique copy. The work is designed primarily to place side by side the crude raw material of the Old Yellow Book and the completed art product, "The ring and the book," one of the most potent and masterful creative undertakings in English poetry since Shakespeare. The author needed means for his great undertaking and therefore gave its publication to the Carnegie Institution.

Author is professor of the science of society in Yale University. A scientific study of colonization, which aims to meet the needs of American college students, both by presenting in English a mass of data not readily accessible, and by arranging the same in such system and order as to emphasize salient aspects of the process of colonization. In scope the whole history of colonization is covered excepting that of the English and French and of several of the most recent colonizing peoples; information concerning these is reasonably easy of access. The several chapters treat of the colonies of the Orientals and ancients, mediæval and modern Italians, Portuguese, Spanish, Dutch, Scandinavians and Germans. The view point is in general that of the economist and sociologist. Bibliography (13 p.). Index.

Many books have been written on the subject of wireless telegraphy for the expert or technical man, but as yet there is room for books that every one may understand. In this book the authors use simple expressions containing no technical words, so that all may obtain a clear idea of the inception and development of this much-talked of art. They describe the substance through which signals are sent, the theory of the propagation of waves, method of generating and receiving the waves, the apparatus used, and, finally, the uses, limitations and possibilities of wireless telegraphy, both commercially and financially.

Mathews, Frances Aymar. The flame dancer; il. by C. F. Neagle. N. Y., George W. Dillingham Co., [1908.] c. 7-371 p. D. cl., †$1.50.

An unflattered picture of fashionable New York. Among the characters are a man who marries a woman for her money and a woman who tries to marry a man for his millions, but fails in the end. There is a strange strain of Oriental mysticism in the story along with a love romance. The central situation is what appears to be a theft, the exact nature of which act, however, does not transpire nor the identity of the perpetrator until the close of the book. To complicate the mystery the author introduces for the first time that it has been used in fiction the Chinese art of See-foo-tee, or double hypnotism.

Life in a western town in the early '80's is the theme of "A grand army man"; it also deals with a girl's idyllic love and a father's devotion and self-sacrifice. "This novel," says the preface, "is more than an attempt merely to 'novelize' a popular play; it is the result of a desire to translate into the form of fiction the flavor of Warfield's acting and the charm of Belasco's stage."

Editor is professor of classical philology in the George Washington University. The work is intended for college students. The text offered is that of the Hitzig-Bluemner edition (Berlin, 1896). It is accompanied by a commentary which presents clearly and concisely the latest results of modern research in archæology. A topical outline enables the student to follow without difficulty the course of the author. The more important topics, such as the Enneacrunus, the Agora, the Acropolis, are treated in a series of excursuses and illuminated with a rich supply of maps and plans. A select bibliography (9 p.) presents the more important reference books.

The second novel in a trilogy of which "The Metropolis" was the first and "The machine" will be the third. The characters of "The Metropolis" reappear in "Moneychangers." Montague, the young Southern lawyer who had his eyes opened to facts in "The Metropolis," becomes president of a railroad managed by a trust. His cousin comes to New York with millions which she loses under circumstances that betray the methods of trusts. The great panic of 1907 is described, the author of "The jungle" evidently maintaining through his mouthpiece, a newspaper reporter, that this panic was planned by the great millionaire moneychangers of the metropolis to stop the President's action towards the trusts.

Based on the fanciful extravaganza, "The top o' the world," that had a long run on the New York stage. Maida, a little girl who was always wishing she was grown up, went at the invitation of "the man with the growly voice" in a flying machine in search of the wishing post, said to be at the north pole. The queer people she meets and the adventures that befall her are too numerous to mention. She finds the wishing post and wishes herself grown up, and forever afterward regrets it.

Valera, Juan. Pepita Jiménez; ed., with notes and vocabulary, by G. L. Lincoln. Bost., Heath, 1908. c. 12+245 p. por. D. (Heath's modern langnage ser.) cl., 90 c.

The present text is based on that of the nineteenth edition of "Pepita Jiménez," as published in 1904 at Madrid. The novel was first published in Spanish in 1874, and is one of the first of the author's and a forerunner of the modern Spanish school of fiction. This is an abridgment of the work; the editor having found it better, from a classroom point of view, to leave out many pages of delicate mysticism. Bibliography (1p.).

Young, gracious, highminded, warm hearted. Diana Mallory is brought with brutal suddenness into the knowledge that her dead young mother has murdered a man whom the world believed her lover. Just before the blow strikes Diana is betrothed to the man she loves. He, hard pressed by ambition, listens to a worldly mother and deserts Diana. The world takes the girl's part, and her lover is a political failure. When he is broken and ashamed and awake at last, the girl, unembittered, goes to him—and makes him the man he was meant to be. The story is set in a brilliant framework of the social and political life of England the writer knows so well.

The Publishers' Weekly.

FOUNDED BY F. LEYPOLDT.

SEPTEMBER 19, 1908.

The editor does not hold himself responsible for the views expressed in contributed articles or communications.

All matter for advertising pages should reach this office not later than Wednesday noon, to insure insertion in the same week's issue.

Publishers are requested to furnish title page proofs and advance information of books forthcoming, both for entry in the lists and for descriptive mention. An early copy of each book published should be forwarded, as it is of the utmost importance that the entries of books be made as promptly and as perfectly as possible. In many cases booksellers and librarians depend on the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY solely for their information. The Record of New Publications of the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY is the material of the "American Catalog," and so forms the basis of trade bibliography in the United States.

"I hold every man a debtor to his profession, from the which, as men do of course seek to receive countenance and profit, so ought they of duty to endeavor themselves by way of amends to be a help and an ornament thereunto."—LORD BACON.

CAUTION IN DEALING WITH UNKNOWN CUSTOMERS.

THE insouciance with which many of the booktrade conduct business is at times appalling. During each year easily one hundred cases come to our notice of dealers walking into veritable fly-traps, so easily are they separated from either their merchandise or their hard-earned cash, and in most of the cases it is difficult to extend much sympathy to the victim. The bookseller is certainly an "easy mark." Some one writes to him, a thousand miles away, that he has seen his advertisement in THE PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY for books that he wants or of books that he offers for sale. That seems to be, in most cases, sufficient introduction for a stranger to obtain credit from a bookseller, or to use as bait for his trap. While it may be gratifying to know that the trade at large has so high an opinion of THE PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY as to consider any one who refers to it in his business correspondence as specially recommended, we have nevertheless for years taken pains to warn our subscribers that in dealing with strangers they must use every available means to protect themselves against imposters, thieves and swindlers.

The appearance of advertisements in the Books Wanted department or elsewhere in THE PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY, does not furnish a guarantee of credit. This information is printed prominently each week at the head of the Books Wanted column of the WEEKLY, with the further caution that, while it is endeavored to safeguard this particular department of the WEEKLY, by withdrawing the privilege of their use from advertisers who we know are not "good pay," etc., we would most forcibly impress upon every user of the departments of Books Wanted and Books for Sale to take the usual precautions as to advertisers not known to them that they would take in making sales to any unknown parties in their stores.

Notwithstanding this warning, made in the interest of all concerned, we are time and again assailed by those who, in the most unsophisticated manner, have been coaxed into the most transparent trap. Indeed, when caught, it is most pitiful to witness the pusillanimity of those who have been swindled. All are inclined to "lie down" upon us for assistance to help them out of the pit that they have dug for themselves. They claim that because they have dealt with a person with whom they have become acquainted through the columns of the WEEKLY we should in some way hold ourselves responsible for the transaction, or do other impossible things. While we have often taken extraordinary measures to protect our constituency, it is clearly not our province to act as a credit bureau or collection agency or prosecutor. To go any further than we are already going in protecting the trade against dishonest persons would be to assume the position of a nurse to babes in business. As The Clique, of London, dealing with a similar situation, says: "We do all we can to warn our readers against swindlers—but if, tempted perhaps by the greatness of the apparent bargain, they will part with their money before ascertaining the bona-fides of the seller what can be done to save them?" And very often it is the cupidity, or, as he calls it, the "smartness," of the dealer that gets him into trouble with unknown persons.

As the dealer, in the store, must protect himself against the two-legged enemy of books, by close scrutiny and vigilance, so also must he protect himself against the possible enemy who may attempt to assail him through the mails, by convincing himself of the bona-fides of his correspondent, be he disguised as buyer or seller.

ANNUAL MEETING OF THE CANADIAN BOOKSELLERS' AND STATIONERS' ASSOCIATION.

THE second annual meeting of the Booksellers' and Stationers' Association of Ontario was held in Toronto, September 9 and 10. There were present about fifty members. Among the guests of the association were Fletcher B. Gibbs, of Chicago, and George Savoy, of the National Blank Book Company of Holyoke, Mass. President William Tyrrell, of Toronto, opened the meeting on the morning of the 9th inst. with an address a part of which we extract from The Bookseller and Stationer of Canada:

"In our hands, to no small extent, is placed the choosing of books for others. If we are wise we will not think carelessly of either our opportunities or responsibilities, but will apply ourselves thoroughly and intelligently to the services expected of us. I am firmly convinced that if a bookseller is ever to possess that reputation which is worth, not only dollars and cents, but self-respect as well, he must look upon his business as a profession on a par with that of the librarian showing himself ready to give disinterested advice; and on the whole to select the books which he offers for sale from a personal knowledge of them. As an illustration of this, permit me to say that at the present time this seems more than usually important, because during the past few years there has been a large increase in the number of objectionable publications, both written and pictorial. Of these some are much worse than others, but all are permeated with an atmosphere of at least suggested sensuality well calculated to debase the thoughts of many whose minds might otherwise have remained clean and wholesome. Many of these publications yield a large and easily-gained profit to dealers who are not disposed to hinder their sale. But many booksellers will not lend themselves knowingly to the distribution of such publications and willingly incur the loss rather than handle them. The difficulty is how to deal with such matters wisely. To openly condemn a book or picture is a sure way of increasing the sale of it, so that in practice the best thing appears to be to ignore it, simply stating, when it is asked for, that it is out of stock.

"In the course of time a bookseller who thus, and in other ways, protects his public, will gain their confidence and increase the value of his reputation. If he is a wise man he will avail himself of every opportunity which such a reputation brings. It goes without saying that such men are of great value to the community in which they live, and such men are wanted in every department of human activity.

"Therefore, gentlemen, I say that if we perform valuable services to the public, (and there is no reason for our existence if we do not,) we should be adequately rewarded. That we do not get the reasonable profits which are our due is unfortunately too often the case, but the causes which prevent this are frequently beyond the control of a single individual, and can only be overcome by united and well-organized effort. . . . If anything can be done for the bookseller in this matter it will not be by the efforts or influence of a single individual, nor will it be accomplished by any other agency than that of a confident, influential and powerful organization of the ablest booksellers of this province. Such an organization should, I am convinced, maintain the closest and most friendly relations possible with publishers and wholesale dealers; indeed, the more I study this matter, the more certain I am that our association would be more vital, more useful, and more influential if it included publishers, jobbers, wholesale dealers and manufacturers. We are all intimately concerned with the same kind of business, and the injury of any part is the concern of the whole.

"Such an organization would bring together and harmonize many interests which now seem divergent. Ignorance of each other is the greatest cause of jealousy, unfriendliness and antagonism. With a closer union would come a more intelligent appreciation of each other's difficulties, as well as each other's opportunities. I am not sure that retailers are always fair to publishers, and trouble often arises from the indifference which booksellers show to the well-considered plans of publishers. These plans, if carried out in the spirit in which they are conceived, would often bring business to the mutual profit of both parties, but booksellers are often disinclined to make an effort and yet blame the publishers if in self-defense he tries to do without them."

The secretary, W. A. Craik, reported that "during the year several projects have been taken up for the benefit of the trade. Some of these have been highly successful, while others have not met with that success which they seem to merit.

"At the suggestion of officers of the association your secretary approached the publishers in Toronto last November and secured subscriptions from them aggregating $130 for the purpose of advertising books for Christmas. Space was contracted for in seven of the leading papers of London, Hamilton, Ottawa and Toronto, and a series of advertisements were prepared which were inserted in the Saturday issues of these papers for four weeks preceding Christmas. The tenor of the advertisements was to urge the public to purchase books for Christmas presents.

"The papers were selected on the ground of circulation, particularly circulation throughout the towns and villages of the Province. It would have been impossible with the limited fund at our disposal to have run the advertising in local papers throughout the country, and that accounts for the exclusive use of city papers.

"The advertisements contained no mention of any publisher. They were booksellers' advertisements pure and simple, and at the foot of each ad. appeared the important words, "Patronize Your Local Bookseller." It is hoped that the publishers will be found ready and willing to support a similar scheme this fall.

"With the object of giving the booksellers an opportunity to secure a supply of attractively printed Christmas book lists, your secretary prepared a co-operative list, which was offered to the trade throughout Canada at cost price. The response was somewhat small, with the result that the booklets when printed cost almost three cents each. Had a circulation of say 25,000 copies been secured, the cost would have been very materially reduced.

"Another project which failed to receive the support from the trade, which apparently it merited was the collection blank scheme. These blanks were offered at cost price to any member of the association, who could use them in collecting bad debts. The experience of other retail organizations with similar blanks had been such as to commend them to our attention. Merchants had made most successful use of them and it was hoped that members of this association would find them equally efficacious. Applications for the blanks have not been numerous."

A dinner was given at the St. Charles Hotel on the evening of the 9th inst., when a representative gathering of the booksellers, publishers and travellers sat down to a fine repast. The health of the King and that of President Roosevelt was heartily honored. Among the speakers were Fletcher B. Gibbs, W. P. Gundy and M. G. Hay.

At the second session, held on the 10th inst., J. G. Cloke, of Hamilton, was elected president; A. H. Jarvis, of Ottawa, vice-president, and the following on the Executive Committee: G. W. Sulman, Chatham; John F. Sifton, London; M. G. Hay, St. Thomas; C. L. Nelles, Guelph, and William Tyrrell, Toronto.

It was decided to change the name of the association to the Canadian Book, Stationery and Publishing Trade Association.

THE INTERNATIONAL ASSOCIATION OF ANTIQUARIAN BOOKSELLERS.

The International Association of Antiquarian Booksellers, of which Frank Karslake, of 35 Pond Street, Hampstead, London, Eng., is the honorary secretary, addresses itself to dealers in old books everywhere in the world with a view of adding to its membership and thereby increasing its usefulness. It already numbers 193 members, of which 71 are in business in London, 115 in other parts of Great Britain and nine foreign dealers, of which four are American booksellers. The subscription is five shilling a year. An inquiry fee respecting any person in any part of the world is sixpence. Application for accounts which members find themselves unable to collect is made for a fee of sixpence, and 5 per cent. is charged upon the amount collected by means of the association, when the amount does not exceed £5, and 2½ per cent. on larger amounts.

During the past year the association has secured the punishment of three swindlers and has made impossible the swindling operations of about fifty more, besides collecting a number of bad debts and recovering goods to the value of upwards of fifty dollars.

The objects of the association are:

1. To prevent fraudulent practices upon members by providing a Central Bureau for the collection of confidential information.
2. To provide arbitration in cases of dispute between members.
3. To regulate the selling prices of remainders, and to prevent underselling in connection with them.
4. To encourage social intercourse among members by means of an annual dinner and other functions.
5. To provide a fund which shall be used at the discretion of the committee for the general purposes of the association, including temporary assistance to members who, through no fault of their own, may have met with misfortune, or to their widows and orphans.
6. To protect and promote the interests of the trade generally.

It is in the interest of every dealer in old books who contemplates extending his trade to foreign countries to identify himself with this association as a means of self-protection.

PENNY DREADFULS IN GERMANY.

"Twelve and a half million dollars are thrown away every year in Germany by the poorer classes in the purchase of pernicious penny dreadfuls," according to a statement issued by the Dürer Union, which is engaged in a campaign against the growing tendency in Germany to read trashy "literature."

The secretary of the union vouches for the astounding declaration that 8000 established booksellers and 30,000 peddlers are engaged in selling sensational serials and books containing complete tales of a very low order.

No fewer than 750,000,000 of these wretched "stories" have been sold in the course of a single year. They are hawked from house to house, from factory to factory, outside schools, and among the peasants on every farm throughout the empire. The peddlers nearly always enter by the back door or the kitchen stairs. Servant girls and ignorant peasantry are the most fruitful customers, but it is asserted by municipal officials that even people who are in receipt of poor relief often deprive themselves of necessities in order to save two cents for a vile rehash of the sensationally embellished details of a notorious crime.

OXFORD DICTIONARY STATISTICS.

In his brief account of the Oxford University Press, which has just been published, Falconer Madan describes the "Oxford English Dictionary" as the greatest literary work ever produced at Oxford. The vigor with which the scheme was embarked on in 1888 shows no signs of relaxing, Mr. Madan says, and 1912 should see the completion of the whole. "And lastly, that nothing may be wanting to this noble work, the open page of any portion of it displays a more pictorial effect, owing to the skilful use of type of varying kind, size and appearance, than any printed page elsewhere in existence. The praise, therefore, which is due to Dr. Murray, (we should now say Sir James Murray,) and his coadjutors in this connection, and to the delegates and officers of the press, cannot well be exaggerated."

Calculations have been made as to the contents of the dictionary up to and including the last published portion. The main words number 154,094, the special contributions explained under main words 29,534, and subordinate words 41,317—total 224,945. The illustrative quotations for which the dictionary is famous now exceed one million, or to be exact they number 1,089,456. The pages apart from introductory matter so far, viz., to Premious, (it should be explained that neither M nor P is finished with yet.) number 9431, and if a man were to read such portions as are already published at the rate of one page a day his task would take him nearly twenty-six years.

In a number of The Periodical, eight years ago, was published some statistics showing very ingeniously the magnitude of the dictionary. Such statistics—dulce est desipere in loco—are more striking to-day. The total number of columns already published is 28,-273, each 10⅛ inches long, allowing for short columns. These columns of type, end on end, 2½ inches wide, would stretch 4 miles, 911 yards, 2 feet.

To finish with lineal facts, the purchaser of the dictionary receives for one penny 1 yard, 1 foot and 8 inches odd of solid printed matter, 2½ inches wide, on excellent paper, which must beat the record for all such publications.

It is estimated that there are 34,351,680 words in the dictionary to date, and 120,133,-704 letters.

SURVIVING GOSPEL HYMN WRITERS.

"Even with the death of P. P. Bliss and Ira D. Sankey," the Boston Transcript says, "there still remain living authors and composers of some of the popular of the famous 'Gospel Songs.' W. H. Doane, who wrote 'Rescue the Perishing' and many other hymns as familiar, made a fortune as a manufacturer of woodworking machinery, and is known also for his unique collection of musical instruments. Mr. Doane lives in the West, but he has a summer place at Watch Hill, R. I., and he is a frequent visitor to Boston. Another of the singing evangelists of the Bliss-Sankey type was James T. McGranahan, whose tenor voice was of the sweetest quality, and whose method had much of the lyric quality. Bliss was a powerful basso, but he was a master of expression, and could fill a hall or intone a lullaby with equal effect. The small organ was the instrument almost invariably used by the evangelistic musician, and as a rule he played it himself, although Bliss delighted in a skilled accompanist and in standing before his audience and breathing his whole soul into his song."

EVANGELIST SUNDAY SMASHES PLATES OF HIS BOOK.

While scores of employees stood aghast "Billy" Sunday, the evangelist, on September 9, according to the Inter-Occan, armed with a sledgehammer, destroyed $3500 worth of plates containing an edition of his sermons in the pressroom of the W. B. Conkey Publishing Company.

After completing the task and scattering the broken bits of metal about, the evangelist put on his coat, warned those present that he would repeat the act if an attempt was made to issue the edition, and walked rapidly from the place. This occurred last Saturday, and Sunday has not been seen there since.

The action is said to be the climax of a fight that Sunday has been waging against the publication of his sermons.

According to friends of the evangelist, he objected strenuously when Herman Poole & Co., of Decatur, Ill., notified him that they would publish his "talks." On seeing the proof sheets Sunday forbade the publication of the book, claiming that it was an injustice to him and contained many things which he had not said. The Decatur firm is said to have replied that the sermons were not copyrighted and therefore he had no control over them. In this opinion they were backed up by Sunday's own attorney.

Without making any more argument he asked where the book was to be printed, and on finding out that Hammond was the place left Decatur.

Shortly after the employees of the W. B. Conkey Publishing Company had returned to work in the pressroom, after noon luncheon, Sunday rushed into the shop. Stripping off his coat and rolling up his sleeves, he grasped a sledgehammer. Running along the form tables, he found the plates of the sermons and destroyed them.

He did not stay more than an hour in the town.

"Billy" Sunday is well known as an evangelist and also was at one time a baseball player.

What will happen next in the book publishing fight is looked forward to with some curiosity.

BEST-SELLING BOOKS IN ENGLAND DURING AUGUST.

According to the London Book Monthly "there was a twelfth of August for grouse, but none for books; which is to say that the month now gone was rather a drab one in the booktrade. Of course, there were a few books that did well, and there was Miss Corelli's new book, a thing apart . . . but August was—why, a holiday month. Still, as it happens, the best sellers issued in August make rather an interesting list:"

Holy Orders, Marie Corelli. Methuen.
The Wild Geese, Stanley Weyman. Hodder & Stoughton.
The Virgin in Judgment. Eden Phillpotts. Cassell.
Recollections. David Christie Murray. John Long.
Victoria Regina. Fitzgerald Molloy. Hutchinson.
The Empress Josephine. Philip W. Sargeant. Hutchinson.

BOOK SELECTION FOR A PUBLIC LIBRARY.

To the Editor of The Publishers' Weekly.

Sir: I quite agree with Mr. John Sterling, of Watertown, N. Y., that "the publisher's imprint should guarantee the character of a book," (Publishers' Weekly, August 29, 1908, p. 424.) With many publishers that is still the case.

But I want to protest against the loose method of book selection for a public library referred to in Mr. Sterling's letter. The librarian or the book committee hold in their hands a sum of money as a public trust. It is always pitiably small. A certain proportion of it is devoted to current fiction. Of each new candidate for a place on the shelves must the question be asked, "Is there anything in this story of service and pleasure to any man, woman or child in this community?" There remains the question, "Which will be of the greatest service?" for with a limited fund, if you buy this you cannot buy that. And will this or that best suit the particular class of readers' interest or taste hitherto a little neglected? Such a complex and delicate adjustment can scarcely be made simply by reference to the publisher and the book reviewer. Many books can be cast out after a brief investigation. Those that remain should be read by at least one person having discrimination, literary taste, common sense and human sympathy. Such readers can be chosen from the trustees, the library staff and the general public. The librarian should be the most skilful of all the readers. He should also be a person capable of directing and correlating the reading of all the others. He should not feel it to be "an unwarrantable burden." The selection of books, which includes seeing to it that the books selected reach the people for whom they have some meaning, is the cream of his work. He has a considerable number of skim milk tasks.

I am not outlining an impossible ideal. Many librarians, (I think a growing number,) take this attitude and follow such a method. I am answering Mr. Sterling's letter because it seems to me quite possible that publishers and booksellers do not always recognize the ideals which librarians cherish. Being human we do not always quite live up to our ideals.

OBITUARY NOTES.

Arthur G. Stedman, second and last surviving son of the late Edmund Clarence Stedman, died on September 16 in New York City. Mr. Stedman was born near Red Bank, N. J., in 1859, and was graduated from Yale in the class of '81. The rest of his life was spent in New York City in editorial work, reviewing and magazine writing. He assisted his father in the preparation of the "Library of American Literature" and wrote the biographies which appeared in that work of reference.

Gardner Dexter Hiscox, a writer on scientific subjects, died on September 13 at East Orange, N. J. He was born in Elizabethtown, N. Y., in 1822, and, although without college training, had devoted his life to scientific and technical work. He was best known as the author of a work on "Compressed Air and Its Application," "Modern Steam Engineering" and "Hydraulic Engineering." After teaching school for a time in his early years he became interested in the ventilating question, then far from solution, and, with prominent contractors of the time, experimented in the dual system of heating and ventilating, in which he soon became an authority.

John Churton Collins, author, lecturer and professor of English literature at Birmingham, Eng., was found dead in the woods near Lowestofft, on September 15. It is believed that he poisoned himself in a fit of depression resulting from illness. Professor Collins was born at Bourton-on-the-Water, (Gloucestershire,) on March 26, 1848. He was educated at King Edward's School, Birmingham, and at Balliol College, Oxford, where he took his degree in 1872. He afterward engaged in newspaper writing, educational work and public lecturing and participated in many controversies in the interest of higher education, opposing the philological method of the study of literature. He wrote much on art, literature and education and was regarded as an author of force and wit, who combined accurate scholarship with a lucid and luminous literary style. He was the author of "Sir Joshua Reynolds as a Portrait Painter," "Bolingbroke and Voltaire in England," "Study of English Literature," "Illustrations of Tennyson," "Dean Swift," "Essays and Studies," "Ephemera Critica," "Studies in Shakespeare" and "Essays in Poetry and Criticism." He edited the works of Lord Herbert of Cherbury, Cyril Tourneur, Robert Greene and others; compiled "A Treasury of Minor British Poetry," and edited Shakespeare and British classics for schools. He also wrote many magazine and review articles.

NOTES ON AUTHORS.

JOHN MITCHELL, the labor leader, is engaged in writing a sociological novel, dealing with industrial and political conditions as he has found them in the United States.

BJÖRNSTJERNE BJÖRNSEN, the Norwegian poet, and his wife celebrated their golden wedding anniversary on the 11th inst., on their estate at Aulestad, near Lillièhammer.

JACK LONDON's new novel, "Martin Eden," begun its serial career in the current issue of The Pacific Monthly. It is hinted that the early struggles of the hero are those which the author himself once knew.

JOHN C. FRANCIS, London, has written and will bring out next year a memoir of the late Norman Maccoll, widely and appreciatively known among literary men as the editor of the London Athenæum, of which Mr. Francis is the publisher.

C. HANSFORD HENDERSON, the author of "John Percyfield," has left his summer camp in New Hampshire and gone to California for the winter. His new novel, "The Lighted Lamp," will be published by Houghton Mifflin Company on October 3.

FRANCES HODGSON BURNETT, who has spent so many years in England as almost to rank herself among the ex-patriots, has decided to take up permanent residence in America, and has started to build a handsome residence in Manhasset, a delightful suburb in Long Island, close to New York City.

THE annual Christmas book which has for some years been expected as a matter of course from Andrew Lang will this winter duly make its appearance, but it has been written by Mrs. Lang. Under the title of "The Book of Princes and Princesses" she will treat of more or less popular historical characters.

IT is reported on the authority of the New York Evening Mail that Mrs. O. H. P. Belmont has written a book of children's stories which is to be brought out in time for the holiday trade, and a problem novel which is to be published next year. Mrs. Belmont is widow of the capitalist and congressman, and mother of Harold S. Vanderbilt, the Duchess of Marlborough and W. K. Vanderbilt, Jr. She was W. K. Vanderbilt's first wife.

POST-CARD NOTES.

THE French Association of Picture Post-Card Publishers has petitioned the postal authorities urging a reduction in postage on all mailing cards to five centimes. The postage at present is ten centimes, the same as that for letters.

THE MAJESTIC PUBLISHING COMPANY, Indianapolis, Ind., has just brought out the American Poets Post-Card series. There are ten subjects, including Whittier, Longfellow, Eugene Field, Bret Harte and Oliver Wendell Holmes. Each card shows an authentic likeness of the poet and a verse from one of his most popular poems, together with a flower design in colors.

SCHWARZ, the inventor of the post-card, is dead. Several others, notably Joseph Glanberfeldt, have laid claims to the distinction of having originated the post-card idea; but it seems that Schwarz first approached the German postal authorities and suggested that views of the Rhine, Black Forest and other features of the Fatherland should be transferred by a simple process to post-cards, which should be accepted for transmission at the ordinary rates. After due consideration this was done, and from that small beginning has grown the enormous post-card business of to-day, circulating billions of cards yearly and employing thousands of people.

THE line of post-cards recently offered to the trade by the Frederick A. Stokes Company is constantly growing in demand. The cards represent the work of some of the best artists, such as Underwood, Anna Whelan Betts, Anita Le Roy, Ethel Franklin Betts and others. There are forty-eight designs in all, and this is the first time that the work of these illustrators has been reproduced on post-cards. They are printed on the finest quality board in full colors and appeal to people of really refined artistic taste. The subjects are sentimental, humorous, patriotic and historical, and dealers who have not already ordered them will do well to write to the publishers for further particulars.

BUSINESS NOTES.

BALTIMORE, MD.—John H. Saumenig & Co. have just completed extensive improvements to their store, at 229 Park Avenue, near Saratoga Street. They now have a very handsome show room and are keeping up with their rapidly growing business. Mr. Saumenig has had forty-eight years' experience in the book and stationery business, having entered the employ of Cushings & Bailey in June, 1860, and continued with them for forty-three years, until the death of the last member of the firm, and then having formed the present partnership, associating with him Lewis R. Curlett and Newton R. Haen, his associates in the employ of Cushings & Bailey. The business is more especially stationery, but their long connection with the book business gives them a good following of book-buyers, particularly books in quantities for schools, colleges and other educational institutions.

BOSTON, MASS.—Philip Lamson Brown, who for ten years has been connected with Little, Brown & Co., has severed his connection with that firm and is now located at No. 8 Pemberton Square, where he will publish and sell law books.

ITHACA, N. Y.—The Triangle Book Shop has been incorporated here to handle books and stationery.

MONMOUTH, ORE.—William Evans has succeeded to the book and stationery business of E. D. Ressler.

PHILADELPHIA, PA.—Edward Stern & Co., Inc., have removed their publishing plant and offices to 140 North Sixth Street.

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

THE JOHN LANE COMPANY publish this week "Art and Economy in Home Decoration," a guide to home makers of good taste and moderate means. The book is fully illustrated and replete with interesting suggestions on practical points.

B. W. DODGE & Co., 43 W. 27th Street, New York City, have just ready a novel entitled "The Broken Snare," by Ludwig Lewisohn, based on the idea of the inherent need of certain institutions, such as marriage, for example, merely as institutions.

W. J. WATT & Co. have published this week "A Million a Minute," a romance of New York and Paris, by Hudson Douglas, with five illustrations by Will Grefe. The story opens in Martin's famous restaurant in New York and practically closes in the equally famous Maxim's in Paris.

EDWARD J. CLODE has just brought out a new story by Louis Tracy, entitled "The Wheel o' Fortune," with illustrations by James Montgomery Flagg; also, "The Corrector of Destinies," by Melville Davisson Post, a collection of mystery stories built upon the technicalities of the law.

LONGMANS, GREEN & Co. will publish shortly Andrew Lang's story of the life and death of Jeanne d'Arc," entitled "The Maid of France." The author hopes that he has been able to throw new light on certain obscure parts of the history, and conceives that he has refuted many old and new imputations against Jean.

LITTLE, BROWN & Co. have in press a new volume by James Schouler, the well-known historian, entitled "Ideals of the Republic." The basis of the book is the author's lectures at Johns Hopkins, discourses considering what development time has brought to the ideals for which the fathers fought, and how that development has reacted upon their sons.

A. WESSELS COMPANY will publish at once an interesting romance of the South Sea Islands, entitled "Vaiti of the Islands," by Beatrice Grimshaw, with four illustrations by H. C. Williams. Aside from the romance itself, the book is an interesting and faithful picture of the sunshine and freedom of this unfrequented and still little-known corner of the earth and its people.

SMALL, MAYNARD & Co. have just ready the often postponed work on "The Psychology of Advertising," by Walter Dill Scott, illustrated with sixty-seven reproductions of characteristic advertisements. They will publish later "Long Odds," by Harold Bindloss; "I and My True Love," by Mrs. H. A. Mitchell Keays, a love story having no "purpose" whatsoever; also, "The Panther," a story by Anne Warner.

W. T. PRICE, 1440 Broadway, New York City, has just brought out a work entitled "Analysis of Play Construction and Dramatic Principle," by W. T. Price, author of "The Technique of the Drama," in which he sets out to upset the fallacy that one can be born a playwright. The Dramatic Mirror considers it to be "the most valuable contribution to the subject in years, if not the most valuable in the English language."

CASSELL & COMPANY will publish late this month "The Cairn of the Badger," the story of a conflict between two men of opposing temperaments, birth and fortune, by Madge Barlow. They will bring out shortly an edition of Lewis Carroll's "Alice in Wonderland," containing eight colored plates and 112 black-and-white illustrations by Charles Robinson; also the second edition of Douglas English's "Wee Tim'rous Beasties."

THE R. E. LEE COMPANY, Boston, will shortly add three volumes to their Foreign Authors' Library, all translated by Professor Leo Wiener, the volume of whose work is even more amazing than its variety. The books in question are: "Old Town Tales," translated from the Bohemian of Jan Nerreda; "On His Own Soil," a novel, translated from the Croatian of Ksaver Sandor-Gjalski, and "Magdalene," from the Bohemian of J. S. Machar.

THE CENTURY Co. has four juveniles listed for September issue—Palmer Cox's new "The Brownie Clown in Brownietown," in color; a new story by the ever popular Ralph Henry Barbour, "Harry's Island;" General O. O. Howard's "Famous Indian Chiefs I Have Known," and "Three Years Behind the Guns, the True Chronicles of a 'Diddy-Box.'" The latter two are "true" adventure stories, and have been leading serial features of St. Nicholas during 1908.

CUPPLES & LEON will bring out shortly "The Christmas Letter," a new book by Mrs. Sara Tawney Lefferts, author of "Mr. Cinnamon Bear." They have added to their boys' and girls' books several new series, chief among which are The Darewell Chums Series and The Dorothy Dale Series. They have made several additions to the popular Motor Boys' Series, and are also marketing an English series of low-priced fairy tale books which promises to become popular. During the fall they will publish H. Rider Haggard's new novel, "The Yellow God."

PAUL ELDER & Co. have just brought out a volume of nature essays by Stanton Davis Kirkham, entitled "In the Open," with a frontispiece in color after a painting by Louis Agassiz Fuertes, and a series of photographs by Rudolf Eikemeyer; also, "The Call of the City," by Charles Mulford Robinson, author of "Modern Civic Art," etc., who has collected together a dozen short essays whose main theme is the charm of the city as distinguished from the charm of the country. The frontispiece is a photogravure after a painting by Colin Campbell Cooper.

HENRY HOLT & COMPANY will publish at once Director Angelo Neumann's "Personal Recollections of Wagner," for which they secured the American rights from the author's agent, The European Literary Bureau of Berlin. When Director Neumann took his travelling Wagner theatre through Germany, Holland, Belgium, Austria, Italy, England and Russia, he carried out the most successful tour with an opera company that had been made up to that time. The book is full of humorous and picturesque episodes of life behind the scenes. Some of those concerning Anton Seidl and Nikisch will have a peculiar interest for Americans.

MOFFAT, YARD & Co. will publish this fall "The Maid's Forgiveness," a romantic drama of the period of the first crusades, by John Jay Chapman, author of "Emerson and Other Essays" and "Four Plays for Children." They have also in preparation a new story by Cyrus Townsend Brady, "The Adventures of Lady Susan," which deals in equal proportions with love and adventure. The heroine is the beautiful American wife of an English nobleman who flies from what she thinks is the infidelity of her husband, and succeeds, after amazing adventures, in getting aboard an American ship which is crusising off shore. The end is satisfying and highly dramatic.

G. W. DILLINGHAM COMPANY will publish at once "The Devil," by Ferenc Molnar; "Strongheart," by Frederick R. Burton; "The Flame Dancer," by Frances Aymar Mathews; "The Wolf," by Eugene Walter; "The Girl Question," by John W. Harding; also, "The Four Flusher," by John Edward Hazzard. They have in preparation a new novel by Arthur Hornblow, whose "The Profligate" has run into a second 10,000 edition, has been dramatized and will be produced during the present season. Mr. Hornblow's "The End of the Game" is out in a popular priced edition. "The Warrens of Virginia," by George Cary Eggleston, in less than a month, has run into its third edition.

L. C. PAGE & Co. have published this week a new volume by the late Robert Neilson Stephens, entitled "Tales from Bohemia," with very effective illustrations by Wallace Goldsmith. Mr. Stephens first became known to the world as the author of the play "An Enemy to the King," produced by E. H. Sothern. As a popular playwright he had an excellent opportunity to study the stage from the inside, and most of the scenes in the present book have theatrical settings. They also announce a new volume in their popular series of boys' books, The Rival Campers Series, by Ruel P. Smith, entitled "Jack Harvey's Adventures, or, the Rival Campers Among the Oyster Pirates."

WHAT are called, by the leaders of the Emmanuel Movement, the Religion and Medicine Publications, are a series of pamphlets published at intervals by Moffat, Yard & Company, upon various subjects related to the movement. These papers, which are being written by many persons interested in the many sides of this great modern question, include, so far, such authors as Professor William James, of Harvard; Dr. John Warren Achorn, of Boston; Professor Josiah Royce, of Harvard; Dr. Elwood Worcester, leader of the Emmanuel Movement; Dr. Samuel McComb; Dr. Richard C. Cabot, and others. These publications are issued through booksellers, like any book, or may be had by mail from the publishers.

DODD, MEAD & COMPANY will publish on the 26th inst "The Fly on the Wheel," the new novel by Katherine Cecil Thurston, author of "The Masquerader" and "The Gambler." This story has been running serially in The Bookman, where it has attracted much attention. The book, which has been out in England for some time, is one of the best sellers in that country, and it is confidently predicted that it will meet with marked success in the United States. They will publish at the same time a novel by Jerome K. Jerome under the title of "Passing of the Third Floor Back;" Amelia E. Barr's new novel, "The Strawberry Handkerchief;" also, three children's books—"War Children," by John T. Wheelwright; "Marjorie's Busy Days," by Carolyn Wells, and "A Little Girl in Old Salem," by Amanda M. Douglas.

FOR several years the manual on "Plant Physiology," by Professor W. F. Ganong, of Smith College, has served as a basis for laboratory work in college botany classes, and now a new edition is announced for publication this month by Henry Holt & Company. This edition demands much more attention to mechanical neatness in experimentation, and follows the present tendency in science by laying emphasis on quantitative results obtained from special apparatus rather than on qualitative results obtained from apparatus of the student's own making. They have also in press for immediate publication an annotated edition of "Lotti die Ubermacherin," a novel by the very clever Austrian writer, Marie von Ebner-Eschenbach, who unites lightness of touch with seriousness of treatment.

THOMAS Y. CROWELL & Co. will add to their dainty line of year books "A Longfellow Calendar" and "A Ruskin Calendar." The "First Folio" Shakespeare, which is being published in separate volume form by the Crowells, will be one-half completed this month, by the addition of three new plays—"The Two Gentlemen of Verona," "The Taming of the Shrew," and "The Tragedie of Coriolanus." This edition retains the original text of 1623, with full notes and variants. They announce an entirely new series of very small volumes for gifts entitled Sesame Booklets, which embraces twenty-one titles from favorite authors. The books measure only three by four inches, but have clear black letter type of generous size, photogravure frontispieces, illuminated titles, and special bindings in cloth and soft leather.

FREDERICK A. STOKES COMPANY have prepared a number of surprises for young people, among which may be noted "The Child's Rip Van Winkle," with pictures in color by Maria Kirk; "Santa Claus and All About Him," which to the smallest detail gives answers concerning Santa's conduct and notions, with pictures that are calculated to evince many a childish chuckle; "Familiar Nursery Jingles," with color pictures by Ethel Franklin Betts, who prepared the "Favorite Nursery Rhymes"; "Æsop's Fables" and Hawthorne's "Wonder Book," two new volumes in the Dandelion Classic for Chil- dren, a series of the best books for children gotten up in artistic form; also, "Jack, the Young Explorer," an interesting book for boys and girls describing Rocky Mountain climbing, Indian life, big game shooting and camping of all descriptions.

A. C. McClurg & Co. have gotten out a most attractive advertisement for Randall Parrish's vigorous story, "The Last Voyage of the Donna Isabel." Two illustrations from the book, done in color and full size, are mounted on boards, making a folding poster (15 x 20 inches,) with decorative titles. They have also gotten up in easel-shape a cut-out illustration representing the galleon about which the story is written. They recently made a display of this book in their own retail store in Chicago. More than 500 volumes were combined with many colored posters and a good-sized model of a Spanish galleon to form the exhibit which took up three large windows on Wabash Avenue. The model of the ship was procured from the Columbian Museum especially for this purpose, and is constructed from pieces of wood taken from every building in the World's Fair of 1893.

W. A. Wilde & Co. will bring out this fall Peloubet's "Select Notes," for 1909, which hardly needs an introduction at our hands, and the following books for young people, every one a "winner" as well as a book of solid merit: "The Trade of the Badger," a story of the Colorado border thirty-six years ago, by Sidford F. Hamp, illustrated; "Six Girls Growing Older," a story, by Marion Ames Taggart, illustrated; "The Turn of the Tide," the story of how Margaret solved her problem, by Eleanor H. Porter, illustrated; "New Little Americans," stories of the children living in our new possessions under the stars and stripes, by Mary Hazelton Wade, illustrated; "The Dolls' Story Book," edited by Mary I. Lovejoy, fully illustrated, stories of dolls for children, short and thoroughly interesting; also, "How Richard Won Out," by Mary Knight Potter, a beautiful story of child nature, illustrated.

Charles Scribner's Sons will publish next week "The Hermit and the Wild Woman," by Edith Wharton, a collection of the best stories published during the last four years by one of the greatest short story writers of the day; a new and enlarged edition of Arthur Train's "The Prisoner at the Bar," with an additional chapter and index, a bibliography and a preface by Professor Wigmore; "Footsteps in a Parish," by the Rev. John Timothy Stone, an appreciation of Maltbie Davenport Babcock as a pastor by his successor in the Brown Memorial Church of Baltimore; "Poem Outlines of Sidney Lanier," fragments and outlines of poems by Sidney Lanier which have never before been published in any form; "The Other Americans," by Arthur Ruhl, a description of the countries and especially the people of South America, as they are to-day with statistics and illustrations; also, "English Voyages of Adventure and Discovery," retold from Hakluyt, for young people, by Edwin M. Bacon.

E. P. Dutton & Co. have made arrangements for bringing out an American edition of Dr. Arthur Newsholme's great work on "The Prevention of Tuberculosis," which has a timely interest in view of the International Congress to be held next week in Washington, D. C. Dr. Newsholme, as president of the Board of Public Health, is the chief adviser of the British Government on all sanitary measures, and this thorough and authoritative book of his is sure of a welcome from all those who wish to study the causes and pathology of the disease, as well as the very latest methods of fighting it. It is a volume that every nurse, doctor, hospital trustee, and all members of health boards and sanitary commissions will want to have at hand. They also announce a work entitled "From Pekin to Mandalay," by R. F. Johnstone, the record of a lonely and adventurous journey of over four thousand miles in Western China and Eastern Thibet, covering ground much of which has not before been traversed by a white man.

The McClure Company have in preparation for the fall the third and concluding volume of "The Reminiscences" of Carl Schurz; "The Life of Mary Baker G. Eddy, and the History of Christian Science," by Georgine Milmine; "The Boyhood of Lincoln," by Eleanor Atkinson; "The Death of Lincoln," by Clara E. Laughlin; "Justice and Liberty," by G. Lowes Dickinson; "Hungary and the Hungarians," by W. B. Forster Bovill; "A Book About Yorkshire," one of the volumes in the English Countryside Series, by J. S. Fletcher; "A Woman's Way Through Unknown Labrador," by Mrs. Leonidas Hubbard, Jr.; "Paris," in McClure's Vest Pocket Guides; "The Guest of Quesnay," by Booth Tarkington; "The Point of Honor," a military tale by Joseph Conrad; "The Great Miss Driver," by Anthony Hope; "The Wild Geese," by Stanley Weyman; "Lynch's Daughter," by Leonard Merrick; "The Gentle Grafter," by O. Henry; and "Round the Fireside," a collection of stories by A. Conan Doyle.

Little, Brown & Co. publish to-day "A Book of Limericks," by Edward Lear, accompanied by drawings by the author of the best and most amusing nonsense rhymes ever written; "Ocean Life in the Old Sailing Ship Days," by Captain John D. Whidden, which relates the methods of old sea-faring days, now practically extinct; also, James DeWolf Lovett's "Old Boston Boys and the Games They Played," which will astonish the modern generation, who are accustomed to associate sport with professional coaches, training tables and gate receipts, by its accounts of the many forms of genuine sport which existed in the early sixties. The first juvenile on their fall list is Anna Chapin Ray's "Sidney at College," a new volume in her well-known Sidney Series. Sophia Swett's "Princess Wisla," a fascinating story for the smaller children, relates the adventures of a little Maine girl, adopted by the Indians, and Clara Murray's "Story Book Friends" presents old book acquaintances to the little folk in new and simple guise.

CROSBY, LOCKWOOD & SON, London, have brought out a work on "Submarine Telegraphs—their History, Construction and Working," with an appendix on "wireless" telegraphy, compiled from authoritative and exclusive sources by Charles Bright. While the work in its first inception was based upon a portion of the well-known "Traité de Télégraphie Sous-Marine" of E. Wünschendorff, Engineer to the French Government Telegraphs, the matter has since been so thoroughly revised, extended and brought up to date that the result is a new and independent work; and while drawing fully upon his own extensive experiences, Mr. Bright has sought material for the enrichment and illustration of the volume from every authoritative channel, personal as well as literary, including sources of information within his own reach exclusively. Although the work is naturally a more or less technical one, intended primarily for the "cable man," the author has in the course of it presented much matter of general concern—that is, of interest to a large reading public outside the confined circle of telegraph engineers and electricians.

THE GRIFFITH & ROWLAND PRESS, Philadelphia, have just ready "My Pets," a new animal story book by Marshall Saunders, author of "Beautiful Joe." This book might very properly be called a companion volume to the author's "Beautiful Joe." Like that immensely popular autobiography of a dog, this new work delineates animal life in a way that will fascinate and charm the children, and the hundreds of thousands of boys and girls who have come under the spell of Beautiful Joe's recital will be eager to read about the pets of the author of that "beautiful tale of an ugly dog." The number and variety of birds and animals that pass in review in this volume present to the reader an altogether delightful procession. There is a wealth of very unusual incidents in animal life. In addition to the suggestions for the care of animals there is in the back of the volume a section of blank pages headed "A Record of My Pets." On these pages the owner of the book can record the name, variety, and all facts in regard to the life of their pet animals. The volume has a number of illustrations in color and in black and white by Charles Copeland.

THE OXFORD UNIVERSITY PRESS will bring out at once an edition of 255 copies of "Notes on Scottish Song by Robert Burns," edited by the late James C. Dick, who edited the valuable "Songs of Robert Burns," with the melodies for which they were written. The present volume is made up of the poet's annotations in an interleaved copy of the first four volumes of Johnson's "Scots Musical Museum," to which he was a frequent contributor; the notes written by Robert Riddell, who owned the copy of the "Museum" in question; and sundry spurious notes by R. C. Cromek, which he inserted in his "Reliques of Robert Burns," and which for a hundred years have passed unchallenged as from the hand of Burns. There are also two chapters by the editor—one on "Scottish Song Prior to Burns;" the other on "Burns and His Songs." Dick here, as elsewhere, lays great stress upon Burns's wide acquaintance with Scotch melodies, and upon the close relationship between the words and the airs—in nearly every case the tune was mother to the song. The whole discussion is illuminating, not only for the light that it throws on the poet's method of composition, but also for the renewed emphasis upon the profoundly national character of his genius.

THE BOBBS-MERRILL COMPANY have just ready "The Little Brown Jug at Kildare," a new and notable piece of fiction by Meredith Nicholson, author of "The House of a Thousand Candles." It is described as a romantic comedy novel, with a livelier display of humor than the author has previously manifested. The scene is a new one for Mr. Nicholson to handle, the action taking place in the capitals of North and South Carolina and on the border-line between the two States. He is, however, well acquainted with the district, as he made several visits to Raleigh and Columbia for the express purpose of verifying his "local color." A novel effect has been secured in the illustrations, which are by James Montgomery Flagg. They run to the edge of the sheet—"bleed," as printers say. They announce a new edition of Raymond MacDonald Alden's book of children's stories. In a new edition of "Knights of the Silver Shield" the title has been changed to "Why the Chimes Rang." The change is due to the fact that the latter title belongs specifically to that story in the collection which has won for itself the greatest attention and which has been praised by many teachers as "the best story for the kindergarten ever written." Professor Alden is a member of the faculty of Leland Stanford, Jr., University, and is the son of "Pansy," the famous writer of juveniles.

THE MACMILLAN COMPANY publish this week a new book by Clifton Johnson on "Highways and Byways of the Pacific Coast," in which the author of "Highways and Byways of the Mississippi Valley" covers the country beyond the Rocky Mountains, not neglecting any of the neighboring States while naturally giving to California the most space; "Realities and Ideals, Social, Political, Literary and Artistic," the fourth volume of Frederic Harrison's collected essays, which cover a wide range and are concerned with subjects in which a keen interest is taken at the present time; the second volume of Professor Edward Channing's "History of the United States," which opens with a description of the Restoration as an event in American history and closes with a somewhat elaborate account of the people of the English colonies in 1760, with a survey of their institutions and laws; "The Seeming Unreality of the Spiritual Life," by Henry Churchill King, president of Oberlin College, who has made a careful study of the causes of the seeming unreality of the spiritual life, dealing with those misconceptions which constitute, for so many, obstacles in the way of a strong sense of reality as to spiritual things, and calling attention to the natural conditions of the spiritual life without the fulfilment of which the sense of reality cannot be attained; also, two juveniles—"The Pinafore Picture Book," by Sir W. S. Gilbert, who has retold the story of his "Pinafore" for children, with pictures in color by Alice B. Woodward; and "The Æneid for Boys and Girls," by the Rev. Alfred J. Church.

H. M. Caldwell Co.'s announcements of books for young people include "King Time, or, the Mystical Land of the Hours," by Percy Keese Fitzhugh, the theme of which is "Where the hours go," with illustrations by L. J. Bridgman; "Barbara and the Five Little Purrs," a charming pussy cat story, by Elizabath L. Gould, with illustrations, in color and black and white, by Miss Josephine Bruce; "Lullabies of Many Lands," a collection from the lore of nurseryland, compiled and illustrated by Elizabeth Withington; the "Boys and Girls at Home Annual," a collection of new bright and smart stories, with numerous illustrations, including 46 pages in color; Simple Susan" and "The Birthday Present," both by Maria Edgeworth, in the Editha Series of stories for little girls; "Lazy Lawrence," "Forgive and Forget" and "The False Key," three stories from "The Parent's Assistant," by Maria Edgeworth, in Every Boy's Library of stories for little boys; "Tales That Never Die," also a selection of the famous stories from Maria Edgeworth's "The Parent's Assistant," edited by Charles Welsh, with a prefatory note by Professor Charles Eliot Norton, and illustrations by Chris Hammond; "Mother Verses and Home Songs," a collection of "stories" to be told to the little ones, illustrated by Amy Brooks and others; "Robinson Crusoe" and "Hans Brinker," with illustrations, in the Six to Sixteen Stories series; "Heroic Legends," retold by Agnes Grozier Herbertson, with illustrations by Miss Helen Stratton; "The Child's Christmas," a story of the events of Christmas Eve, by Evelyn Sharp, with pictures by Charles Robinson, who also have gotten up "The Story of the Weathercock;" "Rough Riders of the Pampas," a tale of ranch life in South America, by Captain F. S. Brereton, who, as a writer of stories, carries on the traditions of Henty, of whom he is a close kinsman; "The White Trail, a Story of the Early Days of Klondike," by Alexander MacDonald, which gives the story of "Buck," the hero of Jack London's "Call of the Wild," who originally belonged to Mr. MacDonald; and "The Island Traders," a tale of the South Seas, also by Alexander MacDonald.

The Reilly & Britton Co., of Chicago, have for a number of years paid particular attention to juvenile books, and each year have had one or more of the season's successes. This year their leader for the children is "Dorothy and the Wizard in Oz," by L. Frank Baum, who is under exclusive contract to the Reilly & Britton Co. for a term of years. This is the only new Baum book published, or to be published this year. In it the "Wonderful Wizard" reappears for the first time since the publication of the "Wizard of Oz." In point of manufacture and originality in make-up, the new Baum book excels any previous book by this author. The pictures, of which there are many, were painted by John R. Neill and are reproduced in colors. Under the name of Children's Stories That Never Grow Old series there have been published in abridged form twenty-four famous classics for children, illustrated with pictures in colors by John R. Neill. These books are ten-cent sellers and are uniform in size with the famous Teddy Bears books issued by Reilly & Britton last year. Nineteen of the twenty-four classics in this series are incorporated in one cloth-bound volume under the title of "Children's Stories That Never Grow Old." This book has seventy-eight full-page illustrations in colors and a pictorial cover design. Two other books that have attained a large sale are the "Peter Rabbit and Black Sambo Painting Book," bound in boards and illustrated in colors, and "Baby's Childhood Days," a record book, designed, decorated and hand-lettered throughout by Dulah Clarke Krehbiel. This book is put up in three editions—in boards, de luxe and in Persian ooze. There is also a new Teddy Bear book entitled "The Teddy Bears in Fun and Frolic," with colored pictures and bright pictorial cover by J. R. Bray, of Judge. For the boys there is a new series of books by Floyd Akers called Boy Fortune Hunters Series, in which three titles are published this year—"The Boy Fortune Hunters in Alaska," "The Boy Fortune Hunters in Panama," and the "Boy Fortune Hunters in Egypt." These stories are full of adventure and excitement, but perfectly clean in tone. In the successful Aunt Jane Series, by Edith Van Dyne, there is a new title "Aunt Jane's Nieces at Millville," making three books in this line. All are illustrated by Emile A. Nelson. The list price on these popular books was formerly $1.25, but has been reduced to 60 c. The list price of "Annabel" has also been reduced from $1.25 to 60 c. "Johnny Hep," written and pictured by H. L. Sayler, is an illustrated book of manners for little folks, in which a wooden soldier does all the posing and supplies each lesson in deportment. "The Bride's Cook Book" was brought out in time for the June weddings and was well received by the book-trade. It is beautifully made and decorated throughout, including full-page pictures in five colors. The cover bears a very attractive reproduction of a painting by Fred S. Manning. A feature of the book is the alphabetical arrangement of the recipes, combined with a thumb index. "Toasts You Ought to Know" is a second book by Janet Madison, who compiled that charming book of love poems, "Sweethearts Always." Her new book is printed throughout in two colors, and has a capital picture in colors by Manning as the cover inlay. This book is issued both in cloth and Persian ooze binding. "When Good Fellows Get Together" was compiled with rare taste by James O'Donnell Bennett, and has been put together in charming fashion. The quotations selected are expressive of goodfellowship, optimism, uplift and cheerfulness. It is bound in boards with a particularly striking cover design, and in Persian ooze, boxed. "Forget-Me-Nots" is described as "an everyday book for everybody in which to make all kinds of memoranda." But for the illustrated department headings in colors, by Clara Powers Wilson, the pages are blank and meant for the recording of personal notes and information. "Memorable American Speeches" is a title that has been added to Patriotic Classes. This book is edited by John Vance Cheney, and in binding is uniform with the other books in this series. "Three Weeks in Belgium and Holland," by John U. Higinbotham, is a companion volume to the successful book, "Three Weeks in Europe." It is in style uniform with Mr. Higinbotham's first book. These travel books have become most popular and are to be added to by one book a year, all to be designated as the Three Weeks Abroad Series.

BIBLIOGRAPHIC NOTES.

THE MACMILLAN COMPANY have just published "Writings on American History, 1906, a bibliography of books and articles on United States and Canadian history published during the year 1906, with some memoranda on other portions of America," compiled by Grace Gardner Griffin. The beginning in this direction was made by Professor Ernest C. Richardson and Mr. Anson E. Morse, whose compilation for 1902 was published at Princeton in 1904. The volume for 1903 was brought out by the Carnegie Institution of Washington, edited by Professor Andrew C. McLaughlin, then director of the Department of Historical Research of the Carnegie Institution, and prepared by Mr. McLaughlin, William A. Slade and Ernest D. Lewis. The trustees of the Carnegie Institution declining to continue the work, efforts to make such a provision otherwise did not become effective to permit timely issue of volumes for 1904 and 1905. That the series is resumed at all is due to the generous subscriptions which a number of societies and individuals have made a guaranty fund intended to ensure the maintenance of the enterprise during the five years from 1907 to 1911, inclusive, and to provide for volumes covering at least the annual product of the years 1906-1910. The plan of the volume for 1903 has been closely followed, except that a greater attempt has been made to list exhaustively the material relating to British America and that no attempt has been made to include a selection of the titles of writings published in the regions lying south of the continental United States and in the Pacific Islands. (16+186 p. 4°, cl.)

PICK-UPS.

AN AFTER-DINNER STORY.

THE WESTERNERS, The Bennet Company of Omaha, gave a spread to their numerous employees and invited thereto a goodly number of their book friends from New York.

Among the distinguished visitors we noticed Graustark and Beverly and The Sherrods from Castle Craneycrow, who came in such imposing style In the Bishop's Carriage, with Lawrence Clavering as The Man on the Box, that the guests must have thought they had Brewster's Millions behind them. Others were Senator North and The Maid of Maiden Lane, with their Story of Untold Love, The Colonel of the Red Huzzars and The Adventuress, Rupert of Hentzau and The Princess Maritza, Colonel Carter of Cartersville and Tom Grogan and The Other Fellow, with Alice of Old Vincennes and Janice Meredith and The Jessamy Bride. Terence O'Rourke accompanied Lady Rose's Daughter.

The Red Keggers enjoyed themselves immensely with The Girl from Tim's Place and Sister Carrie. But this and The Misdemeanors of Nancy occasioned A Few Remarks about Figs in Clover, which eventuated in The Rise of Silas Lapham, who laid down The Law of the Land—and it wasn't A Mississippi Bubble either.

Stephen intended taking Deborah, but Zelda Dameron, who is Half a Rogue, and always looking for The Main Chance, butted in, and, of course, the guileless Children of the Ghetto had no chance against Zelda's Song of a Single Note.

When the Boss of Little Arcady arrived with the Singular Miss Smith, everybody gave them The Right of Way. The Hermit and Miss Petticoats were cheek by jowl in a cosy corner, while A Knight of Columbia and The Daughter of the Snows were seeking The Silent Places elsewhere.

Mr. Kieser was certainly The Man of the Hour. He was ably assisted by The Helpers, Dorothy Vernon, Audrey and Susan and An Apache Princess, who dispensed The Fat of the Land till it was thought the services of Doctor Tom, Doctor Luke of the Labrador, and Doc Horne would have to be called into requisition.

If you had listened to the Tales of Sherlock Holmes, The Tales of the Road, and The Tales of Ex-Tanks, you'd certainly thought you were Abroad with the Jimmies in A Garden of Lies.

The festivities continued till Old Time put on The Wings of the Morning, when every one left with the Golden Hope that they'd see each other again at the next merry meeting. Many pleasant memories will be carefully laid away in Lavender and Old Lace.

SPENCER, 37 New Oxford St., W. C., London, England

We want to tell you about a book you can sell this season.

Do you remember "David Harum"? Have any trouble selling it?

Do you recall "Eben Holden"? How many did you get rid of?

Perhaps you may recollect "Mrs. Wiggs of the Cabbage Patch"? Several of your customers bought it, didn't they?

And how about "Mr. Dooley in Peace and War" (which by the way, we published)? Did you sell that pretty well or not? And you sold some of "Mr. Dooley in the Hearts of his Countrymen" too, didn't you?

"The Letters of a Self-Made Merchant." You still sell a copy of that now and then, don't you? (We published that book too.)

Next week we want to tell you something about a book which we confidently expect you will do as well with as you did with the books we have just mentioned.

You can always sell humor can't you—real humor?

Here's what the first one tells us:

THE ONE AND I

"It is a very interesting and clever story with much the style of The Lady of the Decoration and should be a success." . . . .

It's by Elizabeth Freemantle.

It's Illustrated in Color.

It's a Story of the Canadian Northwest.

It's price is $1.50.

It's to be advertised extensively.

It's bound to succeed.

SO WATCH IT.

Analysis of Play Construction and Dramatic Principle

BY

WILLIAM T. PRICE

Author of "The Technique of the Drama"

Royal Octavo, $5.00—20%—$4.00.

"The most valuable contribution to the subject in years, if not the most valuable in the English language." Mr. Harrison Grey Fiske, in the Dramatic Mirror.

The book aims at the demolition of the fallacy that one can be born a playwright. This fallacy is a soul destroying delusion. No man has ever been born a playwright or ever will be with any knowledge whatever of the art. No one ever lived who did not have to learn it—else it would not be an art at all. No one lives who may not learn more of it—else it would be a dead art, embalmed, finished and done for in books, past all hope of betterment in formulation, certainly not a living and progressive art. But it is an art! Practical instruction in it being something new, a new initiative had to be taken with the whole subject and in the whole matter. This is a book for the student and for the workshop of the playwright. It could not be a compilation, for it is an entirely new departure in the study.

All orders will be mailed free to booksellers' customers.

THE PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY OFFICE

The Publishers' Weekly

Recognized as the representative of the publishing and bookselling interests in the United States. Contains full weekly record of American publications, with monthly indexes, cumulated quarterly, news of interest concerning the book trade, lists of "Book Wanted," (an advertising feature which each subscriber can use without charge to the extent of 100 lines per year,) etc., etc. Subscription, $4.00 a year; to foreign countries, $5.00 a year.

The American Catalog, 1905-1907

Vol. I containing in one alphabet an index to all books published during 1905-06-07; under author, title, subject and series entries. 8vo, half morocco, $7.50.

Vol. II containing the full-title Weekly Record material of The Publishers' Weekly for the same years, in an alphabet for each year. 8vo, half morocco, $6.00.

The American Catalog, 1900-1905

Vol. I contains a five-year cumulation, Jan. 1, 1900-Jan. 1, 1905, giving in one alphabet, by author, title and subject, information of the books issued during the years covered by this period. It also contains a directory of over 3800 publishers, with street addresses. 8vo, half morocco, $7.50.

Vol. II or Supplementary volume gives the full-title entries with annotations printed in the Weekly Record of The Publishers' Weekly, cumulated into an alphabet for each year, i.e., into five alphabets 1900, 01, 02, 03, 04. This is planned to answer the demand of such libraries, bookdealers, and others as want the full material of The Publishers' Weekly bibliographical system in available shape. 8vo, half morocco, $7.50. The set of two, $15.

Of the previous series of THE AMERICAN CATALOGUE, quarto size, the earlier volumes are out of print. We have remaining a few copies of the volumes 1890-95 and 1895-1900, bound in half morocco, $15.00 each.

The Publishers' Trade List Annual

NEW LIPPINCOTT PUBLICATIONS

A REAL LIVE BOOK FOR BOYS

Daniel Boone: Backwoodsman

By C. H. FORBES-LINDSAY

Author of "John Smith: Gentleman Adventurer"

A stirring story of the life of Daniel Boone, the sturdy pioneer, told in a manner which will fascinate all who love excitement and adventure, and yet, withal, it "keeps true" to historical facts.

The biographical value of this book will commend it to older readers no less than its vigorous account of the stirring deeds of the hero will insure its interest for younger people.

JUST PUBLISHED—A POWERFUL ROMANCE

The Tether

By EZRA S. BRUDNO

Author of "The Fugitive"

A modern novel of virile realism, powerful delineation of character, and throbbing with the oriental fire and passion of the hero, a young poet of Jewish extraction. The racial barrier between the hero and heroine adds intensity to the many dramatic situations in the book.

By the Author of "The Little Shepherd of Kingdom Come"

JOHN FOX JR.'S

New Novel

THE TRAIL OF THE LONESOME PINE

In this, his greatest story, he rises to a power of description, to an expression of dramatic force and profound feeling, that make a novel which exceeds in strength and beauty even "The Little Shepherd of Kingdom Come."

Is a love story of fire and passion and deep sentiment amid the feuds and fighting of the Kentucky mountains described as only John Fox can describe them.

FALL FICTION

Mary Johnston's
LEWIS RAND

No American novel presents so vivid a picture of the exciting early years of the last century—of Jefferson, Alexander Hamilton, and Aaron Burr. The background of the story is the beautiful Virginia country which Miss Johnston's readers know so well in "To Have and To Hold," and her other books. Large advance orders promise an exceptional sale. Illustrated in color by F. C. YOHN. Square Crown 8vo, $1.50

Clara Louise Burnham's
THE LEAVEN OF LOVE

The scene of this novel is at one of the famous winter resorts of Southern California, whose radiant, health-giving sunshine finds the counterpart in the character of the heroine—a girl you are not likely to forget. The book abounds in the bright amusing conversations which Mrs. Burnham's readers enjoyed so much in "The Opened Shutters," etc.
With frontispiece and cover portrait in color by HARRISON FISHER. 12mo, $1.50

Charles Egbert Craddock's
THE FAIR MISSISSIPPIAN

Miss Murfree has succeeded in mystifying her readers with a plot full of thrilling incident. The romantic, feudal life in the great house of the Mississippi cotton plantation is vividly painted with accompanying excitement from nocturnal prowlers and floods. A delightful young widow and a tutor are the leading characters.
With frontispiece. Square Crown 8vo, $1.50

Charles Miner Thompson's
THE CALICO CAT

The mystifying entanglements and laughable misunderstandings, caused by an impulsive assault on a calico cat by an eminently respectable New Englander, give this rural detective story a diverting interest which will amuse all readers old and young. Illustrated. 16mo, $1.25

Elizabeth Stuart Phelps'
THOUGH LIFE US DO PART

Mrs. Ward has outdone herself in this story of the successful experiences and emotions of a noble girl, wife and mother. The scene is a summer resort in New England, and incident follows incident so closely that the reader's interest is almost breathless. With frontispiece in color. 12mo, $1.50

C. Hanford Henderson's
THE LIGHTED LAMP

A remarkable and unconventional novel by the author of "John Percyfield." Robert Pendexter, a quiet young Bostonian of well defined limitations, has nervous prostration and falls heir to an income of $5,000 a year at the same moment. The amazing development of his character in a year of European travel presents the theme of a novel that is significant.
Crown 8vo, $1.50

Harry James Smith's
AMEDEE'S SON

A brilliant novel showing the career of an orphan boy among the French inhabitants of Cape Breton. In its style, humor, and sentiment it recalls some of Barrie's stories, and in its setting it is not unlike Gilbert Parker's earlier books.
12mo, $1.50

YE BUTCHER, YE BAKER, YE CANDLE-STICK MAKER

By Robert Seaver

Humorous jingles describing the occupations of the olden days, with sly, satirical allusions to their modern counterparts.

The woodcut illustrations show much originality, and have the dash and snap that makes the old chapbooks so popular,

THE CONFESSIONS OF A RAILROAD SIGNALMAN

By James O. Fagan

A powerful statement of the causes of our railroad accidents, written by a practical railroad man, a tower man of long experience. He writes with surprising frankness and with notable lucidity and vigor. In this book is given a new light upon the subject, as clear as it is novel.

Director of Maintenance of the Union Pacific System calls Mr. Fagan "one of the ablest writers on the subject." and says his "trenchant and vivid articles give the point of view of an experienced employee, and have won him high praise. They are a valuable contribution to the subject, and throw real light on it."

DUTTON'S HOLIDAY ANNOUNCEMENTS

BOOKS FOR CHILDREN

TOP O' THE WORLD. A Once Upon a Time Tale. By MARK E. SWAN. With many illustrations in color, and black and white, by Hy. Mayer. $1.50

This delightful story relates the adventures of a little girl who makes a trip to fairyland via an air ship, and eventually discovers the North Pole and its strange inhabitants The story is a delightful combination of fanciful adventure with appreciation of the child's point of view.

IN TEXAS WITH DAVY CROCKETT. By EVERETT McNEIL, author of "The Hermit of the Culebra Mountains," "The Lost Treasure Cave.' etc. Illustrated, 12mo, ... $1.50

The tale tells of the adventures of two boys, Trav and Tom, during that intensely dramatic and exciting period when Texas won her independence from Mexico. The famous bear hunter and backwoods statesman DAVY CROCKETT, and the even more famous SAM HOUSTON, are the two leading historical characters in the story, while WILL TRAVIS, the ill-fated FANNIN, JIM BOWIE, of bowie-knife fame, DEAF SMITH, the famous Texan scout, and other characters well known in Texan history, play important, if minor, parts in the tale.

BOB KNIGHT'S DIARY WITH THE CIRCUS. By CHARLOTTE CURTIS SMITH, author of "Bob Knight's Diary at Poplar Hill School," "Camping Out," etc. With Sketches by Bob. . $1.50

The "Bob Knight" books have already won their way into favor with that most critical class of readers—the American boy. Bob Knight's ingenuous recital of his adventures is particuarly apt when dealing with the adventures of a travelling circus.

THE STORY OF SIR GALAHAD. By MARY BLACKWELL STERLING. Beautifully illustrated in color by William Ernest Chapman. $1.50

Nowhere before has the story of Sir Galahad been told by itself. In this volume the author has taken the thread of the story from the old sources and separated it from the mass of material to be found in Malory and the earlier writers. The story retains all the spirit of the Holy Grail legends.

THE JIMPY STORIES. By H. GRACE PARSONS. Illus., 12mo, $1.25

A collection of stories for younger readers—stories told by a mother at bedtime—dealing with the various heroes and heroines of childhood. Margery Daw, Simple Simon, Little Tommy Tucker, the Knave of Hearts and others all figure in this delightful child's book.

THE MILLERS AND THEIR NEW HOME. By CLARA DILLINGHAM PIERSON, author of "Among the Meadow People" Illustrated. Cloth. $1.00

The fourth of The Pencroft Books, dealing with the Millers' new house, their moving and their adventures in the country. The charm of this series lies in the simple telling of the adventures of a normal family of children living in a quiet home in the country.

THE STORY OF GRETTIR THE STRONG. By ALLEN FRENCH. Illustrated in color by F. I. Bennett. $1.25

The Story of Grettir the Strong is an old hero tale from the Norse sagas. No boy can read the adventures of these heroes without feeling a quickened interest in the early days of our race. Mr. French is an accomplished story-teller and well equipped for the task.

FURTHER

EXPERIENCES OF AN IRISH R. M.

By E. Œ. SOMERVILLE and MARTIN ROSS. Authors of "Some Experiences of an Irish R.M.," etc. With 35 illustrations by E. Œ. SOMERVILLE. Crown 8vo. pp. viii-315. $1.50.

These humorous stories of Irish country life, particularly of fox-hunting, are told in the first person by a "Resident Magistrate." Readers of the authors' previous book of hunting sketches—"Some Experiences of an Irish R.M.," will meet old friends again in these pages: Mrs. Cadogan, Flurry Knox, Bernard Shute, and "the egregious slipper."

IMPRESSIONS OF HENRY IRVING

Gathered in Public and in Private during a Friendship of many Years

By WALTER HERRIES POLLOCK. With a Preface by H. B. IRVING. Crown 8vo. pp. viii-140. $1.00 net.

"I am very sure that there are few better qualified, by the ties of friendship and skill of penmanship, to attempt succesfully to draw such a picture than Walter Pollock. He knew my father first at that critical time when he had just set his foot on the ladder of fame; and he saw and talked with him during those succeeding years in which, in the teeth of opposition, less scrupulous and considerate than the successful actor of to-day is called upon to encounter, the 'fashionable tragedian' fought his way to full and general recognition."—From the Preface.

MEDIEVALISM. A Reply to Cardinal Mercier

By GEORGE TYRRELL, Author of "Hard Sayings," "Oil and Wine," "Through Scylla and Charybdis," etc. Crown 8vo. pp. viii-211. $1.25 net.

In the Lenten Pastoral (1908) issued by Cardinal Mercier, Archbishop of Malines and Primate of Belgium, Mr. Tyrrell was specially mentioned by name as the most typical embodiment of the Modernism which it was the Cardinal's special object to denounce. In this book Mr. Tyrrell criticises the position taken up by the Cardinal and replies to his strictures.

HIGH PRIESTHOOD AND SACRIFICE

An Exposition of the Epistle to the Hebrews

By WILLIAM PORCHER DU BOSE, M.A., S.T.D., Professor of Exegesis in the University of the South, Sewanee. Author of "The Gospel in the Gospels," etc., etc. Crown 8vo. pp. vi-248. $1.50 net. By mail, $1.62.

THE HISTORY OF TWENTY-FIVE YEARS, 1856-1880

By Sir SPENCER WALPOLE, K.C.B. Edited by the Rt. Hon. Sir A. LYALL. Vols. III. and IV., 1870-1880. 8vo. pp. 331+410. $8.00.

"The History of Twenty-five Years," by the late Sir Spencer Walpole, was written in continuation of his "History of England from the Conclusion of the Great War in 1815 to 1858." This continuation was planned to embrace the period from 1856 to 1880, and the first two volumes (1856-1870) were issued in 1904. The present volumes complete the work.

MORAL INSTRUCTION AND TRAINING IN SCHOOLS. Report of an International Inquiry

Edited, on behalf of the committee, with an Introduction, by M. E. SADLER, Professor of the History and Administration of Education in the University of Manchester. In two volumes, sold separately. Vol. I.: The United Kingdom. Crown 8vo. pp. lviii-538. $1.50 net. Vol. II.: Foreign and Colonial. Crown 8vo. pp. xxviii-378. $1.50 net.

The book is the outcome of an international inquiry conducted by a committee which was appointed at a large meeting held in London on February 5th, 1907, under the chairmanship of The Rt. Hon. James Bryce. The first volume deals with methods of moral instruction and training in elementary and secondary schools for boys and girls, including some of the great Public Schools, in Sunday-Schools, in Adult Schools and in Training Colleges in the United Kingdom; the second, with the methods of moral instruction and training adopted in schools in France, Denmark, Norway, Germany, Switzerland, the United States, Canada, New South Wales, New Zealand and Japan. Among the contributors are the Headmaster of Eton, Professor Eucken of Jena, President Stanley Hall, Professor William James, Dr. Felix Adler, the Bishop of Birmingham, Monsieur Alfred Fouillée, Dr. Paton, Mr. Harrold Johnson, Father Maher, S.J., Dr. Estlin Carpenter, Chancellor Bernard, Mr. Percival Chubb, Principal Baldwin of Hyannis, Mass., Baron Kikuchi, and other prominent educators.

J. B. Lippincott Company's Fall Publications

TWO NEW BOOKS OF GREAT IMPORT

THE AUTHORIZED BIOGRAPHY OF MR. WHISTLER

The Life of James McNeill Whistler

By ELIZABETH ROBINS PENNELL and JOSEPH PENNELL

In two volumes with over 120 plates in half-tone and photogravure

Crown Quarto. Cloth, $10.00 net

Also an Edition de luxe in preparation

The litigation over this book has established the fact that it is the Life authorized and planned by Whistler himself, and that it is based on material furnished by himself and by his family. Whistler was certainly fortunate in his choice, for Mrs. Pennell's admirable Life of Charles Godfrey Leland has proved her to be a very able biographer, and her and Mr. Pennell's intimate friendship with Mr. Whistler gave them that opportunity of personal knowledge which no biographer who had only documents to work from could possibly possess. Many of the pictures were photographed before they left Mr. Whistler's studio. Others were photographed as opportunity arose, and it is certain that rarely, if ever, was so much material brought together to illustrate the life-work of a great artist. That his personality was as interesting as his work, all those experienced who came into contact with him. His wit, his brilliant conversation, the fun with which he baited his enemies, the determination with which he cherished and upheld his friends, the philosophy of his art, and the clearness of his visions, all these astonished his circle day by day. Mr. and Mrs. Pennell speak with authority of Whistler as a man, as well as with full appreciation of him as an artist, and it is not too much to claim that this book has artistic and human interest such as few other biographies could have.

A NEW VOLUME OF THE VARIORUM SHAKESPEARE

Richard the Third

Edited by

HORACE HOWARD FURNESS, JR.

Royal 8vo. Cloth, gilt top, uncut edges, $4.00 net; three-quarter levant $5.00 net

Those interested in the study of Shakespeare's plays will recall that a few years ago Horace Howard Furness, Jr., prepared a revision of his father's Variorum edition of "Macbeth," which was most favorably received by Shakespearian critics. It manifested ability and scholarship, and demonstrated the wisdom of Dr. Furness in associating his son with this invaluable work so stupendous as to be beyond the ability of a lifetime to complete.

The new volume is "The Tragedy of Richard the Third," edited by Horace Howard Furness, Jr., and brings the total number of volumes to sixteen.

The text of this edition follows the text of the First Folio, and in addition there are Textual Notes showing the different readings and variations from the other folios and quartos.

The appendix contains the stage history of the play; a discussion on Richard's deformity—a timely article in view of the renewed interest in that subject brought about by the recent publication of Sir Clements Markham's "Richard III: His Life and Character," etc.

My Lady of the Fog

RALPH HENRY BARBOUR'S NEW HOLIDAY GIFT BOOK

ILLUSTRATED IN COLOR BY CLARENCE F. UNDERWOOD

A BOOK from the author of "Kitty of the Roses," "An Orchard Princess," "A Maid in Arcady," and "Holly," charming stories all, is coming to be a Christmas institution. "My Lady of the Fog" is thus well introduced, and brings her welcome with her.

In his latest love story, Mr. Barbour sets his scene on the rock-bound coast of New England. The plot has to do with the rescue of a beautiful and wealthy New York girl, who is lost in the fog off the coast from Gloucester, by a real flesh-and-blood hero, who is an employee in one of her own mines in the West. The girl refuses to make known her identity, and a few weeks of this companionship plays havoc with the chances of a young foreign count who had been suing for the hand of the heiress and her fortune.

The story is told easily and gracefully, and the characters are real, live, modern young people, not abnormal types. The picturesque background of the rural little island, with the old light-house keeper and his wife as contrasts, is most effective.

Twelve illustrations in color and tint by Clarence F. Underwood, and decorations throughout

Small Quarto. Decorated Cover in Gold, with Medallion in Colors In a Box. Cloth, gilt top, $2.00

ANNE HOLLINGSWORTH WHARTON'S DAINTY VOLUME

An English Honeymoon

In this little volume Miss Wharton takes two of the characters from "Italian Days and Ways," Zelphine and her husband, upon a wedding journey through England. The chapters, in the form of letters from Zelphine to Margaret, include interesting sojourns in Canterbury, Glastonbury, Warwick, the Lake District, and in some such less-frequented English nooks and corners as Haworth, Cumnor, Jordans, Boscastle, and Tintagel.

At York, Angela joins her old friends and journeys with them along the picturesque Devonshire Coast and into King Arthur's realm, "Dyndagil by the Cornish Sea."

Sixteen full-page Illustrations in Double-tone

12mo. Decorated Cloth, gilt top, $1.50 net.

NEW JUVENILES

A REAL LIVE BOOK FOR BOYS

Daniel Boone: Backwoodsman

By C. H. FORBES-LINDSAY

Author of "John Smith — Gentleman Adventurer"

A stirring story of the life of Daniel Boone, the sturdy pioneer, told in a manner which will fascinate all who love excitement and adventure, and yet, withal, it "keeps true" to historical facts.

The biographical value of this book will commend it to older readers no less than its vigorous account of the stirring deeds of the hero will insure its interest for younger people.

Frontispiece in Color and Three Illustrations
12mo. Decorated Cloth. $1.50

The Princess and Curdie

By GEORGE MACDONALD

This is one of those few perennially fresh and attractive tales that have become the classics of childhood in our language—those tales whose memories remain with us through the years.

Last fall the publishers issued in attractive holiday form "The Princess and the Goblin," the companion to this volume. As the reception of the first book has been so favorable, they are encouraged to issue a uniform edition of "The Princess and Curdie" for the coming Christmas season.

The illustrations have been drawn by the same artist, and she has caught the fairy-like spirit of the story with her brush in a charming manner.

Octavo. 305 pages. Decorated cloth, $1.50

Hans Andersen's Fairy Tales

Fairy tales are always relished by children, and those by Hans Andersen have an unusually keen fascination for young readers. The curious old legends are as alive and entertaining in this modern day as they ever were.

The charm of this large and well- printed book is enhanced with its attractive illustrations from pen-and-ink sketches, and frontispiece and title-page in full colors.

Uniform with Grimm's Fairy Tales

Large square 8vo. 441 pages. Cloth, $1.50

Legends from Fairyland

By HOLME LEE

These fascinating legends deal with the realm of the fairies beyond the moon. The author has combined various fables of fairy-lore into a charming story centering about the adventures of Prince Glee and Princess Thrill.

There are good and bad fairies, and the usual number of giants and spiteful relatives to be overcome before the little Prince and Princess "live happily ever afterward."

With photogravure frontispiece, 16 full-page illustrations, and decorative head-pieces, initial letters, tail-pieces, marginals, etc.

12mo. 276 pages. Cloth, with gilt, $1.50

LITTLE, BROWN & CO., Publishers, BOSTON

Fall Books of Doubleday, Page & Co.

WE are in a position to send, upon request, posters or circulars of many of the books on the following list. Special Holiday editions of "Midsummer-Night's Dream," illustrated in full color by Arthur Rackham, "Christmas Day in the Morning," by Mrs. Grace S. Richmond, and "The Gorgeous Isle," by Gertrude Atherton. All in all, it is the best collection of books we have ever brought out in one season.

THE GORGEOUS ISLE. By GERTRUDE ATHERTON, author of "The Conqueror," "Rulers of Kings," etc. It is a pleasure to announce the publication of a new book by Gertrude Atherton in the Ninety-cent Series. Mr. Maurice Hewlett's "Spanish Jade," illustrated by W. Hyde with such great attractiveness and originality, has encouraged us in the plan of publishing books by first-rate authors for 90 cents net. Mrs. Atherton's book, "The Gorgeous Isle," is a romantic love story of fashionable English life in the tropics and is as original and charming as anything she has published; and the illustrations by C. Coles Phillips are a bright accompaniment to the book. Special net, 90 cents.

DESIRE. By UNA L. SILBERRAD, author of "The Good Comrade," etc. We are proud also of having on our list this Fall another novel by Miss Silberrad, whose distinguished work, "The Good Comrade," was one of the most popular of last season's novels. Desire Quibell—impulsive, beautiful, unconventional, self-reliant—is a woman whom it is a privilege to know; and the course of her love story with Peter Grimstone gives a new sense of the reality and dignity of human life and emotion. $1.50.

SHAKSPERE'S "MIDSUMMER-NIGHT'S DREAM." Illustrated by Arthur Rackham, who did the pictures for "Rip Van Winkle" and "Alice in Wonderland." Publishers are sometimes accused of being overfree with superlatives—but we venture to assert that Mr. Rackham is beyond question the foremost living illustrator of imaginative, grotesque and whimsical classics. His pictures for Shakspere's fairy play are entirely fascinating, full of all his accustomed daintiness and exquisite coloring. 40 plates in color and other illustrations. Net, $5.00.

THE ALTAR STAIRS. By G. B. LANCASTER, author of "The Tracks We Tread," "The Spur," "Sons o' Men," etc. A new novel by an author who has been steadily winning a place as one of the most powerful of modern writers. It is a full-blooded tale of romance and adventure in the South Seas in which a dominating man, who has been living the life of his kind, suddenly finds himself in love—with a woman who is bound to another man. $1.50.

SOWING SEEDS IN DANNY. By MRS. NELLIE L. MCCLUNG. A bright bookwoman writes: "Mrs. McClung certainly deserves the warmest praise and unstinted compliments for the refreshing volume. I sold five copies on my own recommendations early Monday morning and expect to sell quantities of them and thereby 'scatter a good many seeds of sunshine.' Her 'Blessed be drudgery sermon': it's just dandy—the best ever. 'Pearlie' is just as lovable and deliciously original as 'Rebecca'." Third printing. Frontispiece. $1.00.

WEEPING CROSS. By HENRY L. STUART. A Jesuit cavalier's story of his slavery in New England, and of the Puritan as he saw him, and of the Long Meadow massacre. His passionate love and the tragic ending of his unhallowed alliance, make a wonderfully compelling novel. $1.50.

THE BLOTTING BOOK. By E. F. BENSON, author of "Sheaves," etc. A man who can really write has here given us a most absorbing detective story. The unique character of the ingenious criminal's one slight oversight gives the tale a distinction found only in the very best stories of this class. $1.50.

ROUND THE CORNER IN GAY STREET. By MRS. GRACE S. RICHMOND, author of "The Indifference of Juliet," "With Juliet in England," etc. The Boston Transcript says of this new book by the popular author of the "Juliet" stories: "The world needs more families like the Bells of Gay Street, and perhaps there will be more if Mrs. Richmond's story be as widely read as it deserves to be. . . . Perhaps the best feature of this excellent story is that it is interesting for the whole family, from the father and mother of any age to the little son or daughter of eight or nine years." Second printing. Eight illustrations. $1.50.

TABLES OF STONE. By HAROLD BEGBIE. A most unusual story which displays modern society in contrast to a man who bears the same relation to it which the prophet Isaiah, for instance, bore to his contemporaries. The hero is a clergyman's son who, brought up absolutely in ignorance of modern thought, plunges into the gay world of London. $1.50.

THE IMMORTAL MOMENT. By MAY SINCLAIR. The author of "The Divine Fire" has here given a memorable book of the ennobling effects of a real love and how it lifted Kitty Tailleur to the heights of human self-sacrifice for her one "immortal moment." The book presents as vivid a phase of human nature as one of Victor Hugo's great characterizations. Illustrated by C. Coles Phillips. $1.50.

POTTED FICTION. By JOHN KENDRICK BANGS, author of "Alice in Blunderland," etc. A series of "canned literature" selected from among the world's quickest sellers, put up in slices for hurried readers. Recommended by the best doctors for brain fag. It contains all the fiction news that's fit to print. Cloth, 50 cents; paper, 25 cents.

THE PASSER-BY. By PRINCE PIERRE TROUBETZKOY. A fashionable young married woman, in her discontent with the prosaic business man her husband has turned out to be, responds to the appeal made to her heart and intellect by the poetical worship of a young Englishman. In the complications which follow, the author (a distinguished portrait painter and the husband of Amelie Rives) displays a knowledge of up-to-date New York society and of human character both convincing and entertaining. Frontispiece. $1.50.

THE FOREWARNERS. By GIOVANNI CENA; translated by OLIVIA AGRESTI ROSSETTI. Preface by Mrs. Humphry Ward. A book which aroused such feeling in Italy during its serial publication that the end had to be changed. It is the autobiography of a Turin compositor who, in the endeavor to call attention to the pitiful helplessness of the poor of his kind, determines to sacrifice himself before the King. $1.50.

CHRISTMAS DAY IN THE MORNING. By MRS. GRACE S. RICHMOND. By the author of "The Indifference of "Juliet," "With Juliet in England," etc., etc. We believe this little story is going to become one of the modern classics—like the "Birds Christmas Carol" A simple little tale of a Christmas morning surprise—but which leaves a lump of honest emotion in the reader's throat, for it goes to the very root of human affection. Four illustrations in color, by Charles M. Relyea 75 cents.

WOMEN OF FLORENCE. By ISIDORO DEL LUNGO; translated by MARY C. STEEGMANN. The author, a distinguished Italian historian, unearthed during his researches among ancient documents, a wealth of personal material of some of the most famous women of the Renaissance, which makes this volume one of the most illuminating records of those times. Two plates in color and 25 half-tones. Net, $2 25.

STORIES OF HUMOR. Edited by THOMAS L. MASSON. The object of this edition is to give in pocket form, and at very small expense, the best work of American humorists. The selections include stories by Washington Irving, "Mark Twain," "Josh Billings," Artemus Ward, James Whitcomb Riley and others. 75 cents.

GOOD STORIES. Edited by HAMILTON W. MABIE and LIONEL STRACHEY. Ten of the world's greatest short stories in pocket form, at a price which brings them within the reach of everybody. Uniform with "Stories of Humor." 75 cents.

SHAKSPERE AND HIS FORERUNNERS. By SIDNEY LANIER. A new and cheaper edition in one volume of of a work which formerly sold for $10 00. The author's aim is to present Shakspere as the crowning glory and culmination of the most marvelous literary efflorescence the world has known. Frontispiece. Net, $1.60.

THE FURNITURE OF OUR FOREFATHERS. By ESTHER SINGLETON. A new one volume edition of a monumental work. It is a clear and comprehensive account for the amateur of the different styles—the Puritan home-made things, the quaint Dutch belongings, the rich furnishings of the great Southern Colonial mansions, the ways of telling the genuine thing, the historical associations with special pieces, etc., etc. Superbly illustrated. Net, $5.00.

FOLLOWING THE COLOR LINE. By RAY STANNARD BAKER. A complete survey of the Negro race in America —the result of several years of close and honest inquiry into every part of the North and South. Mr. Baker's investigations are the most useful, the most unprejudiced, and the most accurate we have ever seen. 24 illustrations from photographs. Net, $2.00.

RUSSIA'S MESSAGE. By WILLIAM ENGLISH WALLING. "Mr. Walling, who with his wife and sister-in-law, experienced the hands of the Police in Russia while sojourning there, is an American, saw with an American eye, heard with an American ear, and put his lucid American mind and heart into this work."—Jewish Voice, St. Louis. "The most noteworthy study of the late Russian upheaval that has appeared in this country, and one of the very few first-rate books on the subject that have been written anywhere."—New York Evening Post. 46 pages of photographs and a map. Net, $3.00.

STUDIES IN THE AMERICAN RACE PROBLEM. By ALFRED HOLT STONE. A fundamental and original study applicable to race conditions all over the world, aiming for a better understanding between the sections. Mr. Stone was chosen by the Carnegie Institute to write the economic history of the Negro, and this volume is based upon his personal experiences, his observations throughout the South, and his wide historical knowledge. The chapters include three essays by Professor W. F. Willcox of Cornell University. Net, $2.00.

MY SCHOOL AND MY GOSPEL. By SIR HUBERT VON HERKOMER. A valuable book by one of England's most distinguished painters. It tells about the famous school at Bushey, and gives suggestions of inestimable value to art lovers. Fully illustrated with specimen paintings, etc. Net, $7.50.

PICTURES EVERY CHILD SHOULD KNOW. By DOLORES BACON. A guide to forty-five of the world's greatest painters, such as Bonheur, Corot, Murillo, Turner and Watts—with stories of their lives and an explanation of their work. Particular emphasis is put on those facts which will appeal to the younger minds and leave lasting impressions. Uniform with Poems, Fairy Tales, Birds, etc. "Every Child Should Know." 48 illustrations Net, $1.20

MIND AND WORK. By LUTHER H. GULICK, author of "The Efficient Life." The Director of Physical Training in the New York City Schools has here written a companion volume to his most successful book, 'The Efficient Life," pointing out the vital relation between one's mind and the daily work. Net, $1.20.

EVERY MAN'S LAWYER. By ALBERT S. BOLLES. A new and cheaper edition, in three volumes, of "The Home Library of Law," adapted in every way, in size, style and arrangement, to make its perusal inviting, convenient and agreeable. The work vitally concerns all classes: the business man, the woman, the farmer, everybody. Net, $4 50.

AN UNUSUAL NEW NOVEL

Ready October 3rd

and My True Love

By H. A. Mitchell Keays

With illustrations by Lester Ralph. $1.50

The new book by the author of "The Road to Damascus" "He that Eateth Bread with Me," etc.

KITTY SARGENT divorced her playwright husband because she wearied of their struggle with poverty. She married again. He brought up their daughter, Christina, "a most distracting combination of innocence and cynicism."

Christina has a boy-and-girl love affair, and to bring home to her the meaning of marriage, about which she has ideas of her own, her father sends her to her mother, by now for five years a widow, and a charming and popular society woman. The result is illuminating. The reader marvels at the author's penetration and perception of character, at the divination of feeling and the keen, inevitable accuracy of results.

A brilliant and satisfying novel of true and tender love.

OTHER IMPORTANT NEW BOOKS

Fate's a Fiddler

The remarkable first novel of "A new Dickens born in America."

By EDWIN GEORGE PINKHAM

With illustrations by Lester Ralph. $1.50

"A notable novel; reveals in Mr. Pinkham imaginative powers that promise a brilliant literary future for him."—Boston Transcript.

"The reader will not come across a better, more wholesome or finely conceived novel than this one, for it bears the hall-mark of literary genius."—Buffalo Courier.

"Deserves to be rated as one of the few thoroughly good novels of the year. Let no one who shuns Dickens shun this book, for he will find in it what is best of Dickens without the dross, and, besides, before he has reached the last chapter, a good deal of Pinkham."
—Cleveland Plain Dealer

The Letters of Jennie Allen to Her Friend Miss Musgrove

Bound to be the humorous hit of the year

By GRACE DONWORTH

With illustrations by F. R. Gruger. $1.50

Originally published anonymously in much shorter form, in the Ladies' Home Journal, these letters attracted wide attention. Readers of the magazine wrote to the editor about them, "What a great find for the editors of a magazine!" wrote one. "Such simplicity! Such charm! Such fun!" In a speech before the Associated Press Mark Twain commended the work highly, saying "Here is a letter written by a woman right out of her heart of hearts. There's no spelling that can begin with it on this planet outside of the White House." For honest and homely human nature and spontaneous and delightful humor and philosophy American literature has nothing to compare with this book. And the letters tell a real story, too, that holds the interest closely. Ready in October. This is the book we referred to last week; more later.

Corrie Who?

A fine old-fashioned love story of modern New York

By MAXIMILIAN FOSTER

With illustrations by George Brehm. $1.50

This, the first novel of the well-known short-story writer, is a literary spider's web. It would seem that anyone with ordinary resolution could break through its strands, but the people in the book are all securely entangled, and the story is safe from the vandal fingers of the reader, who is held captive until the close releases him. The scene is modern New York; the plot deals with the heroine's efforts to discover her name and parentage in spite of the threats and cajolings of the greedy Mrs. Pinchin, with whom she lives. There is a tender love story which appeals intensely to the reader's sympathy.
Ready in October. More extended announcements later.

Four "Leaders" in the Fall Fiction

Booth Tarkington's most finished story

The Guest of Quesnay

By BOOTH TARKINGTON

Author of "Monsieur Beaucaire," "The Gentleman from Indiana," etc.

¶ Charming beyond estimate is Booth Tarkington's new romantic novel, which bids fair to attain the same degree of overwhelming success as "Monsieur Beaucaire." Mr. Tarkington has surpassed himself in this, his masterpiece, the most delightful and romantic work of fiction that has yet appeared from his pen.

Ready in September. With five illustrations. $1.50

The successor to "The Blazed Trail"

The Riverman

By STEWART EDWARD WHITE

Author of "The Blazed Trail," "The Silent Places," etc.

¶ Mr. White's magnificent new story of the Northwest logging country and the sturdy loggers of the Michigan lumber-camps is comparable only to his classic, "The Blazed Trail," whose successor indeed, it is. In fact, in its literary qualities and construction Mr. White shows a very considerable advance over every long novel that he has yet written.

Now Ready. With many illustrations. $1.50

A masterpiece of powerful fiction by Joseph Conrad

The Point of Honor

By JOSEPH CONRAD

Author of "Lord Jim," "Youth," etc.

¶ The enduring qualities of Joseph Conrad's work are most apparent in this beautifully written and perfectly conceived gem of a story, which deals with two officers of the Napoleonic army who were obsessed by a fearful hatred of each other and who yet fought side by side, saving each other's lives in the terrible retreat from Moscow. The dénouement is a surprise. THE POINT OF HONOR as nearly deserves the title great as any book of the year.

Now Ready. With four illustrations in colors. $1.25

A striking romantic-adventure novel

Barry Gordon

By WILLIAM FARQUHAR PAYSON

Author of "Debonnaire," etc.

¶ There is every indication that BARRY GORDON will be numbered among the most popular of the Fall books. It is a story of straight adventure and romance, of Paris, Morocco and New York, with a hero fine-grained and sensitive, a member of an old Southern family. Mr. Payson's novel is one of the best adventure stories of recent years.

Now Ready. With six illustrations. $1.50

THE McCLURE COMPANY 44 East 23d Street, New York

Fiction of Unusual Excellence

ANTHONY HOPE
The Great Miss Driver

By the author of "Rupert of Hentzau," "The Prisoner of Zenda," etc.

The "great Miss Driver" may be described as the modern feminine counterpart of Rupert of Hentzau. The eventful career of this wealthy, witty, fascinating young Englishwoman and the story of the dazzling successes she achieved, social and otherwise, have been made the subject of one of Anthony Hope's most brilliant and entertaining novels. With illustrations. $1.50.

O. HENRY
The Gentle Grafter

By the author of "The Four Million," "The Trimmed Lamp," etc.

The advent of each new O. Henry book has come to be considered a real event. This, his latest, is made up of stories built out of a single theme—the separation of fools from their money. Full of that whimsical humor which constitutes one side of his genius, these stories of Jeff Peters and his partner, of whom Jeff says: "I never could hold Andy down to the legitimate ethics of pure swindling," are certain to delight O. Henry's very wide audience. Small 12mo. $1.00.

JAMES HOPPER and FRED. R. BECHDOLT
"9009" "9009"

Mr. Hopper is the author of "Caybigan," etc.

"9009" is the story of the prison life of convict John Collins—a powerful, intensely dramatic and realistic tale. With absolute truth the incidents have been drawn from actual facts, and they form a terrible indictment of our prison system. As a story, from the arrest of John Collins to his sensational escape and dramatic re-capture, the book is a masterpiece of direct and forceful fiction. Cloth. $1.50.

H. DEVERE STACPOOLE
The Crimson Azaleas

By the author of "The Blue Lagoon," etc.

Mr. Stacpoole is rapidly forging to the front as an author of considerable charm and power. "THE CRIMSON AZALEAS" is laid in Japan. It is the story of a young Englishman who has married a charming Japanese girl and lives quietly. With the arrival, however, of an old flame from Scotland the atmosphere changes, and undecided whether to elope, it is here that the influence of the crimson azaleas begins to exert itself on the young fellow's imagination. Cloth. $1.50.

ERNEST OLDMEADOW
Aunt Maud

By the author of "Virginie," "Susan," etc.

The second edition of this very charming romance is nearly exhausted. The concensus of opinion of the reviewers places "AUNT MAUD" above both of Mr. Oldmeadow's successful earlier books. With frontispiece. $1.50.

LEONARD MERRICK
Lynch's Daughter

An original and delightful story of love and "tainted millions" which entitles Mr. Merrick, who is widely known abroad, to a place among the foremost writers of fiction in our day. Cloth. $1.50.

ANTHONY PARTRIDGE
The Distributors

A very ingenious story satirizing modern society. Two extraordinary series of events that aroused all London are traced to a secret society of dilettantes in search of sensations, the members of which are pledged to drink the contents of a deadly vial in the event of the ill-success of their ventures. A charming love story is interwoven. Cloth. $1.50.

A. CONAN DOYLE
Round the Fireside

By the author of "Sherlock Holmes," "The Hound of the Baskervilles," "Sir Nigel," etc.

A volume of this very great author's new short stories that will reach a large audience. Cloth, $1.00.

THE BOAT CLUB BOYS OF LAKEPORT

By EDWARD STRATEMEYER. Third volume of "Lakeport Series." Illustrated. $1.25.

The "Lakeport Series" bids fair to equal in popularity the already famous "Dave Porter Series."

HELEN GRANT, GRADUATE

By AMANDA M. DOUGLAS. Sixth volume of "Helen Grant Series." Illustrated by Amy Brooks. $1.25.

Helen is fond of her work and remains a splendid example of free, earnest young womanhood.

A LITTLE HEROINE OF ILLINOIS

By ALICE TURNER CURTIS. First volume of "Little Heroine Series." Illustrated by John Huybers. $1.25.

This genuinely good story for little girls, with plenty of interest for boys also, tells of the early days of the Civil War.

THE HERO OF PIGEON CAMP

By MARTHA JAMES. Third volume of "Pigeon Camp Series." Illustrated. $1.25.

For the best kind of reading for boys from ten to fourteen, the books of Martha James deserve prominent mention.

BRAVE LITTLE PEGGY

By NINA RHOADES. Eighth volume of the "Brick House Books." Illustrated by Bertha Davidson Hoxie. $1.00.

All of Miss Rhoades's stories have a way of ending delightfully, and the general good taste which is an unfailing characteristic of her books entitles them to the favor which they enjoy.

LITTLE SISTER PRUE

By AMY BROOKS. First volume of the "Prue Books." Illustrated by the Author. $1.00.

No one can help liking Prue with her bright ways, good little heart, and unexpected sayings.

DOROTHY DAINTY'S GAY TIMES

By AMY BROOKS. Seventh volume of "Dorothy Dainty Series." Illustrated by the Author. $1.00.

The name of "Dorothy Dainty" has grown to be a household word wherever there are little girls, and each new book of this series seems better than the last.

THE STORY OF FREDERICK THE GREAT FOR BOYS AND GIRLS

By KATE E. CARPENTER. Illustrated from famous paintings. $1.00.

It is a very attractive book in every particular, with its large, clear type, and easy, pleasant style.

923 ARCH STREET PHILADELPHIA

THE FALL
A. C. McCLURG & CO.,

BY RANDALL PARRISH THE LAST VOYAGE OF THE DONNA ISABEL Published

The publishers believe that this sea story is the best novel they have yet brought out by Randall Parrish. It is no exaggeration to say that it is worthy of a place on the same shelf with the sea romances of Clark Russell and Stevenson—so absorbing is the plot and so vivid are the pictures of wild adventure on Antarctic seas. Illustrated in full color by Allen T. True, with cover design by Guernsey Moore. Large 12mo, ... $1.50

BY ARTHUR JEROME EDDY GANTON & CO. Ready Sept. 26

"Ganton & Co." is a big story and a clean story—of sensational interest, but of an entirely legitimate sort. It is concerned with matters familiar in Chicago business, industrial, and social life, in which its author has himself taken an active part, and hence knows whereof he writes. With 6 illustrations by Thomas Fogarty. Large 12mo, ... $1.50

BY H. ESCOTT-INMAN WULNOTH THE WANDERER Ready Oct. 17

A Story of King Alfred of England

A tale of viking days which depicts the beginnings of modern England in a manner more real and vivid than is permitted to the usual historian. The volume is issued in the decorative style that distinguished "The Thrall of Leif the Lucky," "For the White Christ," etc., and as the story has a twofold appeal, to young readers as well as adults, it should prove a popular gift-book. With frontispiece in full color and decorations in tint by the Kinneys. Large 12mo, . $1.50

BY THE RT. REV. SAMUEL FALLOWS, D.D., LL.D. HEALTH AND HAPPINESS Ready Oct. 3

Or, Religious Therapeutics and Right Living

Bishop Fallows' new book deals with the whole subject of the harmonization of religion and medicine, the wonderful results of the work at St. Paul's Church in Chicago being brought to bear on the discussion itself, and the entire work going far to illustrate the intimate connection between the work of the clergyman and that of the physician in combating disease. 12mo,

Three New Volumes in the CLASSICS IN ART SERIES

The volumes included in this important series of books have been planned so as to form what may be taken as a pictorial encyclopedia of pictures painted by the world's famous artists. Each volume deals with a single artist's work, and deals with that work as fully as modern research makes it possible. That is to say every picture which the artist painted is here reproduced for reference and study, and the titles and present location given. CHRISTY-RILEY SERIES

CHRISTY-RILEY SERIES

CHRISTY-RILEY SERIES

"THE LITTLE BROWN JUG AT KILDARE" is the striking title of Meredith Nicholson's new novel.

It is a comedy of high spirits, rapid action and droll situations, with a double love story to lend it vivacity. The plot is wholly new and the characters altogether fresh and unhackneyed.

It is indeed a lively record of what the daughter of the Governor of North Carolina actually said to the daughter of the Governor of South Carolina.

"The House of a Thousand Candles," by Meredith Nicholson, has been translated into practically every language of Continental Europe, and now a Japanese translation is contemplated. "The Little Brown Jug at Kildare" shows every indication of repeating the success of its popular predecessor.

The hero steps out on the back platform of his train when it stops at Kildare, a little town on the boarder line between North and South Carolina.

To his astonishment he is immediately handed two jugs. One contains buttermilk, the other moonshine.

They are given to him under the mistaken impression that he is the Governor of North Carolina. The outlaw who hands up the moonshine discovers his error and demands back his jug. He gets the buttermilk instead.

After that the hero acquires a large assortment of political experience and romantic adventure. "The Little Brown Jug at Kildare" as you may imagine is chuck full of humor, comedy and adventure.

NEW BOOKS

1908—Funk & Wagnalls Company—1908

NEW YORK and LONDON

HOW TO GET A POSITION AND HOW TO KEEP IT, by S. Roland Hall. A sound, sensible book. Mr. Hall has been with a large correspondence school, and has had much experience in getting positions for young men. He would have the young man drop all foolish notions about the getting and holding of a position. Hard work alone makes good. He gives much practical advice on letters of application; personal application; what is good and what is bad form, etc., etc. 12mo, Cloth, 140 pages. 50 cents, net. (Now Ready.)

THE LURE OF THE CITY, by David J. Burrell, D.D., LL.D. A series of chapters devoted to the young man who is just leaving the rural home to take up life in the city. Dr. Burrell understands thoroughly the many pitfalls that confront young men not familiar with life in a large city, and to such young men he sends forth this book as a warning and a guide. 12mo, Cloth. $1.00 net. (Ready October 3rd.)

THE PALACE OF DANGER, by Mabel Wagnalls. A vivid novel picturing life in the Court of Louis XV., in which the famed Madame de Pompadour is the leading character. Four half-tone illustrations by John Ward Dunsmore. 12mo, Cloth. $1.50. (Ready September 26th.)

A JUNIOR CONGREGATION, by Dr. James M. Farrar, Pastor of the First Reformed Church, Brooklyn A leading part of Dr. Farrar's church work has been the organization of the young people of the church into a "Junior Congregation." As the future men and women of the church, he addresses special talks to them, and much benefit has been the outcome of the idea. The book will certainly be of immense value in churches where the plan can be put into practical operation. 12mo, Cloth, $1.20, net. (Ready October 3rd.)

A COMMON-SENSE VIEW OF THE MIND CURE, by Mrs. Laura M. Westall. Mrs. Westall would explain and justify a good deal of the success of the mind cure as applied to a great many illnesses. The book does not endeavor to show that the mind can cure actual organic diseases, but rather, that the common functional disorders can be cured or driven away by the use of will power. The book is scientific, and is in no way to be regarded as a contribution to Christian Science, in the ordinary sense of the word. 12mo, Cloth. 75 cents, net. (Ready September 10th.)

THE UNION PRAYER-MEETING HELPER FOR 1909. A vest-pocket commentary on the prayer-meeting topics for 1909, so arranged that each topic is amply provided with notes on the adjoining page—just like the Sunday-School Lesson Helps. A great help for busy pastors and laymen. 16mo, Cloth. 25 cents. (Ready October 10th.)

THE POETICAL WORKS OF WILLIAM CLEAVER WILKINSON. Mr. Wilkinson is Professor of Poetry and Criticism in the University of Chicago. The volumes are: The Epic of Saul; The Epic of Paul; The Epic of Moses (2 volumes); Poetry. Five volumes, Half Leather. $3.00 per volume; $15.00 per set. (Ready September 10th.)

MIND, RELIGION, AND HEALTH, by Robert Macdonald, Ph.D., D.D. An exposition of the Emmanuel Movement for the treating of disease by mental suggestion, etc.; what it is, and how it can be applied in our every-day life. 12mo, Cloth. $1.20 net. (Ready October 10th.)

A WORKING GRAMMAR of the ENGLISH LANGUAGE, by James C. Fernald, L.H.D. Designed to give in simple statement the Principles and Methods of Correct English Speech. A companion volume to "Connectives of English Speech" and "English Synonyms, Antonyms, and Prepositions," by the same author. 12mo, Cloth. $1.50 net. (Ready October 24th.)

THE HINDU-ARYAN THEORY ON EVOLUTION AND INVOLUTION, by T. C. Rajan (Iyengar), of Poona City, India. This book seeks to offset many false statements which have been made by careless lecturers, writers, etc., concerning the Philosophy of Rajayoga, and to give a clear exposition of the tenets of that philosophy in strict accordance with the facts. 12mo, Cloth. $1.50 net; post-paid, $1.60. (Now Ready.)

McBRIDE'S TWO LEADERS

The Great Sea Story of the Fall

By CHAUNCEY C. HOTCHKISS

Author of "A Colonial Free Lance," "Betsey Ross," "For a Maiden Brave," &c.

A PRISONER OF THE SEA

What sort of a story is it?

Why—it's a story that grips you at the first page and doesn't let up on you until the last. It sails along, as a sea story should, before a stiff ocean breeze, leaving the salt taste on your lips, under skies now brilliant and sun-lit, now black and tempest-ridden.

And who's aboard?

The sweetest and prettiest of American girls—and the rest! And how her lovers play their hands amidst the brewing of love-storms and sea-storms, betwixt the incessant play of plot and counterplot, the clash of mutiny and the inevitable onward rush of the fate in store for them—

Well! that's the story!

A MILLION A MINUTE

By

HUDSON DOUGLAS

Five Illustrations by Will Grefe

A MILLION A MINUTE is a romance of the New York and Paris of to-day. It opens in Martin's famous restaurant in New York and practically closes in the equally famous Maxim's in Paris. With a hero bright, up to date, and wholly American, and a heroine charming and petite, a French Count daring and unscrupulous, a wealthy old uncle equally lacking in scruple, and a legacy of ten million bright American dollars, the author weaves a story that will immediately make him popular with the great public that wants to be entertained.

Altsheler, Jos. Alexander. The forest runners: a story of the great war trail in early Kentucky. N. Y., Appleton, 1908. c. 363 p. pls. D. cl., †$1.50.

Deals with further adventures of the two young woodsmen in the history of early Kentucky who were the heroes of "The young traitors." The plot describes the efforts of two fine self-reliant boys to bring a consignment of powder to a settlement threatened by the Indians.

Andrews, Eliza Frances. The war-time journal of a Georgia girl, 1864-1865; il. from contemporary photographs. N. Y. Appleton, 1908. c. 387 p. O. cl., $2.50 net.

This is an actual diary of a girl of intense Southern sympathies, whose father was one of the most prominent Unionists in the state. It has nothing to do with the great figures and events of the periods, but gives a vivid and faithful picture of the intensity of Southern feeling and of the diversions in which society sought to forget the continual tragedy of the war.

Bacon, Edwin Munroe. English voyages of adventure and discovery retold from Hakluyt. N. Y., Scribner, 1908. c. 10+401 p. pls. pors. map, facsim., O. cl., $1.50.

The book gives the stories of adventure, discovery, expansion of trade and American colonization, told largely in the words of the old voyagers and chroniclers themselves, edited and arranged for boys' reading. The narrative is made clearer and more intelligible through explanations and connecting bits, and the picturesquely vigorous tone of the original sources maintained through the direct quotations. Short biographies are given of all the great navigators, and the general condition of the world during the voyages explained in each case.

Bain, Francis W: An incarnation of the snow; tr. from the original manuscript. N. Y., Putnam, 1908. c. 27+108 p. front. O. cl., †$1.25.

An oriental romance by the author of "Digits of the moon" and "A draught of the blue."

Branford, Benchara. A study of mathematical education: including the teaching of arithmetic. [N. Y., Oxford University Press, (Amer. Branch,) 1908.] 12+392 p. 8°, cl., $1.10.

Bruce, H: Addington Bayley. Historic ghosts and ghost hunters. N. Y., Moffat, Yard & Co., 1908. c. 10+234 p. D. cl., $1.25 net.

Eleven historic ghost stories by the author of "The riddle of personality." Mr. Bruce, who is a well-known investigator of psychological phenomena and an accomplished historian of the various lines of investigation which have culminated in the developments of to-day, has carefully studied all the recorded facts bearing upon each of the celebrated ghost stories he here relates, and follows each carefully stated story with a carefully considered modern explanation.

Brudno, Ezra Selig. The tether. Phil., Lippincott, 1908. c. 336 p. D. cl., †$1.50.

The story of a young poet of Jewish extraction who begins life in the Boston slums, where he lives with his father in extreme poverty. Both are pedlars, but the boy has aspirations towards something better; the father is quite contented. One day, at the age of fourteen, when the boy is out with his basket, he strays into the studio of Miss Truesdale, a successful portrait painter. She becomes deeply interested in him and induces him to go to school and college. At the end he is earning his living with his pen. The aim of the story is to show the difficulties that often beset a Jew not only from Christians but from his own people, in his pursuit of an education, etc. By the author of "A fugitive."

Campbell, Rev. Reginald J: Thursday mornings at the City Temple. N. Y., Macmillan, 1908. 11+308 p. 12°, cl., *$1.50 net.

Collection of brief sermons.

Castle, Mrs. Agnes Sweetman and Egerton. Wroth. N. Y., Macmillan, 1908. 486 p. 12°. cl., †$1.50.

The interest centres in the career of an English lord—a wild, reckless fellow known as "Mad Wroth"—and his eventual redemption through the woman he loves, Juliana, Contesse Mordante, a heroine of fine and original qualities. The date is the early part of the last century, and the story typifies that romantic and reform period of English history.

Cicero, Marcus Tullius. Philippic orations, 1, 2, 3, 5, 7; ed. by J: R. King. 2d ed.: rev. by A. C. Clark. [N. Y., Oxford University Press, (Amer. Branch,)] 1908. 256 p. 8°. cl., 90 c.

Clark, Rev. H: W. The Christian method of ethics. N. Y. and Chic., Revell, 1908. 254 p. 12°, cl., *$1.25 net.

Coerne, L: Adolphe. The evolution of modern orchestration. N. Y., Macmillan, 1908. 8+280 p. 8°, cl., *$3 net.

Dr. Coerne traces the evolution of the orchestra and of orchestration and lays special emphasis on the impelling forces to which the development of orchestration is due. Dr. Coerne was born in Newark, N. J., and is the first composer on whom Harvard University bestowed the degree of Ph.D. for special work in music.

Coolidge, Archibald Cary. The United States as a world power. N. Y., Macmillan, 1908 7+385 p. 12°, cl., *$2 net.

Based on lectures delivered at the Sorbonne in Paris, which attracted wide attention in Europe; the work covers this broad field, full of controverted points, fully, clearly and interestingly, and gives an unbiased and rightly-proportioned knowledge of the situation. Dr. Coolidge's book is of such international importance that arrangements have been made for its simultaneous publication in America, Great Britain, and (in translation) Germany and France.

Coulton, G. G. Chaucer and his England: with 32 illustrations. N. Y., Putnam, 1908 12+321 p. O. cl., *$3.50 net.

Designed as a picture of Chaucer the man, with a background of the world in which he lived. "No book of this size," says the preface, "can pretend to treat exhaustively of all that concerns Chaucer and his England, but the author's main aim has been to supply an informal historical commentary on the poet's works." He has not hesitated, in a book intended for the general public, to modernize Chaucer's spelling, or even, on rare occasions, to change a word. Index.

Day, Clarence Munro. Accounting practice. N. Y., Appleton, 1908. c. 8+318 p. il. tabs., O. cl., $6 net.

Author is certified public accountant, University of the State of New York. For many years it has been his duty to supervise the work of others, and during his experience he made notes of the best method under his observation. These notes have been valuable for reference, and the many requests from prominent accountants for access to the notes have influenced the author to publish them. The language is simple, telling how to do certain lines of work so as to lead directly to the desired results and avoid repetition. The book is divided into four parts namely: Method of working; Cost accounting; Operating forms, and Report forms.

Duncan, Norman. Every man for himself. N. Y., Harper, 1908. c. '05, '06, '07. 305 p. pls. D. cl., †$1.50.

Stories of Labrador by the author of "Dr. Luke of the 'Labrador.'" Contents: The wayfarer; A matter of expediency; The minstrel; The squall; The fool of Skeleton Tickle; A comedy of Candlestick Cove; By-an'-by" Brown of Blunder Cove; They who lose at love; The revolution at Satan's Trap; The surplus.

Eddy, Arthur Jerome. Ganton & Co.: a story of Chicago commercial and social life; il. by T: Fogarty. Chic., A. C. McClurg & Co., 1908. c. 415 p. O. cl., $1.50.

The chief interest in John Ganton's life is the firm of Ganton & Co., but to his keen disappointment neither of his sons takes an interest in the business. The opposition of the old millionaire to the marriage of his younger and favorite son with the brilliant and scheming daughter of the unscrupulous Jem Keating complicates the plot. The story of a young capitalist who tries to run the Chicago stock yards according to old-fashioned honest business methods is interwoven. It is John Ganton's elder son, whom his father had always considered a dreamer, who eventually carries on Ganton & Co.

Ely, R: Theodore. Outlines of economics; rev. and enl. by the author and T: S. Adams, Max O. Lorenz, Allyn A. Young. N. Y., Macmillan, 1908. 8+700 p. tabs., cl., *$2 net.

Frenssen, Gustav. Peter Moor's journey to southwest Africa: a narrative of the German campaign; tr. from the original with the consent of the author by Margaret May Ward. Bost., Houghton Mifflin Co., 1908. c. 244 p. D. cl., †$1.25.

Peter Moore was a German soldier, and this record is a vivid story of the experiences of a volunteer private during a recent campaign against African natives in the years 1903-'04. It is full of realistic pictures of life in camp, on the march and in battle, and shows realistically the hardships and horrors and the unnecessary cruelty of war. By the author of "Jorn Uhl," who obtained all the facts at first hand from veterans of the war.

Grubb, E: Authority and the light within. Phil., John C. Winston Co., 1908. 143 p. D. cl., *80 c. net.

Professor Grubb is a well-known English Quaker, and author of "Social aspects of the Quaker faith." He says: "The purpose of this little books is to offer a contribution, however humble, towards the solution of the pressing problem of authority in religion."

Hanus, Paul H: Beginnings in industrial education, and other educational discussions. Bost., Houghton Mifflin Co., 1908. c. 9+199 p. D. cl., $1 net.

Author is professor of the history and the art of teaching in Harvard University. The contents of the book fall into two groups: the first dealing specifically with the problems of industrial education in this country, and the second treating of some of the results that have been obtained in the secondary schools of Germany. The papers are for the most part practical rather than theoretical, and embody in clear, strong and useful forms the results of the actual experience and investigations of the author. Professor Hanus's position as Chairman of the Massachusetts State Commission on Industrial Education gives a particular weight to his utterances on this question.

Hawthorne, Nathaniel. Mosses from an old manse; selected and ed., with introd. and notes, by C: Elroy Burbank. N. Y., Macmillan, 1908. 17+286 p. por. 24°, (Pocket American and English classics.) cl., *25 c. net.

Hinkson, Mrs. Katharine Tynan, [formerly Katharine Tynan.] The lost angel. Phil., Lippincott, 1908. 301 p. D. cl., †$1.50.

A collection of romantic tales of lovers—lovers in Scotland, England, France, and particularly in the writer's own beloved Ireland. The author has chosen her characters from all ranks of life, but they all ring true.

Hodges, G:, D.D., comp. When the King came: stories from the four Gospels. Bost., Houghton Mifflin Co., 1908. c. '04. 11+399 p. pls. D. cl., $1.25 net.

First published in 1904. See notice, American Catalogue, 1900-1904, second part. This new edition is furnished with sixteen full-page illustrations from famous paintings.

Huntington, Helen, [Mrs. Archer M. Huntington.] The sovereign good. N. Y., Putnam, 1908. c. 4+286 p. D. cl., †$1.50.

The heroine is thirty-three, the hero twenty-one. Fidelia King, however, is sufficiently young looking and brilliant to win the admiration of Neil Duncan, a struggling dramatist, who comes to New York to seek his fortune. She is rich, and one of a distinguished old family; he poor, and without ancestors. He has lived in Europe the greater part of his life, is well-bred, and possesses a sincere love for books and art in all its forms. They are in entire sympathy from the first day they meet, their story playing through a gay New York season. How their friendship changes to love is graphically told; their story ends in a most unexpected dénouement.

Johnson, Hugh S. Williams of West Point. N. Y., Appleton, 1908. c. 8+293 p. pls. D. cl., †$1.50.

Bob Williams comes to West Point and by sheer force of hard work and manliness gains a position of leadership in his class. He has a rival in Brinsley Bartlett, a brilliant young fellow whose head had been turned by popularity. He succeeds in involving Williams in a quarrel, from which, according to the West Point code, he cannot honorably withdraw without fighting. He refuses to fight and is branded a coward. How he is finally exonerated is the story.

Johnson, S: Johnson on Shakespeare: essays and notes selected and set forth with an introd. by Walter Raleigh. [N. Y., Oxford University Press, (Amer. Branch,) 1908.] 32+206 p. 8°, cl., 85 c.

Lindsay, C: Harcourt Ainslie Forbes-, ["Boston," "Charles Harcourt," pseuds."] Daniel Boone, backwoodsman with il. by Frank McKernan. Phil., Lippincott, 1908. c. 320 p. D. cl., $1.50.

A story of the life of Daniel Boone, the sturdy pioneer, told for boys. The settlement of Kentucky, threatened and retarded again and again by the attacks and massacres of the Indians, is traced step by step with the life and fortunes of its founder, Daniel Boone, whose many remarkable traits of character are well brought out.

McCutcheon, G: Barr. The man from Brodney's; with il. by Harrison Fisher. N. Y., Dodd, Mead & Co., 1908. c. 355 p. D. cl., †$1.50.

By the remarkable wills of their long-forgotten grandfathers, Robert Browne, an American, and Lady Deppingham, an Englishwoman, are to inherit an immense fortune and most of the island of Japat on condition that they marry within a year after the death of Taswell Skaggs, Browne's grandfather, who survives his partner, Lady Deppingham's grandfather. At it happens, however, both the heirs are married already, but they remove to Japat with their households and lawyers and endeavor to find some way out of the difficulty. The "Man from Brodney's" is the lawyer for the natives of the island, who are to inherit the fortune if the conditions of the will are not fulfilled. His love affair with the Princess of Thorberg, who comes to the island, is the romance of the book.

McIsaac, Isabel. Hygiene for nurses. N. Y., Macmillan, 1908. 14+208 p. il. 12°, cl., *$1.25 net.

In a way supplements the author's very successful "Primary nursing technique" which was published a year ago. Miss McIsaac, formerly Superintendent of the Illinois Training School for Nurses, is now a prominent member of the American Society of Superintendents of Training Schools for Nurses, and a Director of the Journal of Nursing.

Mayo, Margaret. Polly of the circus; il. by Harry M. Bunker. N. Y., Dodd, Mead & Co., 1908. c. 184 p. S. cl., †$1.

The story of a circus girl who is left at a parsonage to recover from a sprained ankle. There the young parson falls in love with her and wishes to marry her, but, fearing to ruin his prospects, she goes back to her life at the circus. But the parson follows and all ends well.

Parmelee, Maurice. The principles of anthropology and sociology in their relation to criminal procedure. N. Y., Macmillan, 1908. 8+410 p. 12°, (Citizens' library.) cl., *$1.25 net.

Discusses philosophically the process of criminal procedure by means of which the class called criminal is separated from the rest of society and analyzes the means by which the treatment to be given this class is determined.

Paton, Lewis Bayles, D.D. Jerusalem in Bible times. Chic., University of Chicago Press, 1908. c. 12+169 p. il. plans, maps, O. limp cl., $1.

A series of studies in the archæological history of ancient Jerusalem. During the past year they appeared in successive numbers of the Biblical World; they are now issued in book form with corrections and additions.

Phillips, D: Graham. The worth of a woman: a play in four acts; followed by A point of law: a dramatic incident. N. Y., Appleton, 1908. c. '07. 8+128 p. D. cl., $1.25 net.

"The worth of a woman" is the story of a country girl with quixotic ideals and a man from the Back Bay Boston. It is not a problem—it is a love story—an agitated day in the lives of these two young people. The book also contains "A point at law," a dramatic sketch in one act.

Poincaré, Lucien. The new physics and its evolution; being the authorized translation of "La physique moderne, son evolution." N. Y., Appleton, 1908. 15+344 p. D. (International scientific ser.) cl., *$1.75 net.

The author is one of the nineteen Inspectors-General of Public Instruction in France. It has occurred to him, so says the preface, "that it might be useful to write a book which, while avoiding too great insistence on purely technical details, should try to make known the general results at which physicists have lately arrived, and to indicate the direction and import which should be ascribed to those speculations on the constitution of matter, and the discussions on the nature of first principles, to which it has become, so to speak, the fashion of the present day to devote oneself."

Intended to be of practical assistance to those of moderate incomes. Among the chapters are: choosing a color scheme; How to treat walls successfully; Concerning halls; A few points to remember when buying carpets and rugs; Characteristics of oriental rugs; Home-made rugs; How to stain floors; Furniture; Right use of ornament on furniture; Casement windows and their treatment; Fireplaces; What to use for portieres and curtains in the country house; Shelving, pictures and bric-a-brac; What to avoid in the home; Cottages by the sea or lake; The decoration of a modern suburban house, etc.

Sanders, Lloyd. The Holland House circle; with 24 illustrations. N. Y., Putnam, 1908. 25+384 p. O. cl., *$3.50 net.

"From 1799 to 1840 there was hardly in England a distinguished man in politics, science or literature who had not been a guest at Holland House." It is to that period, when the mansion, despite the strong Whig leanings of its host and hostess, formed a temple of merit where men of all parties and professions could meet on common ground, that this volume is chiefly devoted. But something is said as well of the earlier Holland House which witnessed the magnificence of Rich, the death of Addison, and the boyhood of Charles James Fox. Macaulay has brought three of the frequenters of Holland House before us, namely, Wilkie, Mackintosh and Talleyrand. The group can be enlarged almost indefinitely by the additions of Rogers, Byron, Moore, Lord John Russell, Lord Melbourne, Lord Dudley, the witty Luttrell, the wittier Sydney Smith, and many more.

The Publishers' Weekly.

FOUNDED BY F. LEYPOLDT.

SEPTEMBER 26, 1908.

The editor does not hold himself responsible for the views expressed in contributed articles or communications.

All matter for advertising pages should reach this office not later than Wednesday noon, to insure insertion in the same week's issue.

Publishers are requested to furnish title page proofs and advance information of books forthcoming, both for entry in the lists and for descriptive mention. An early copy of each book published should be forwarded, as it is of the utmost importance that the entries of books be made as promptly and as perfectly as possible. In many cases booksellers and librarians depend on the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY solely for their information. The Record of New Publications of the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY is the material of the "American Catalog," and so forms the basis of trade bibliography in the United States.

"I hold every man a debtor to his profession, from the which, as men do of course seek to receive countenance and profit, so ought they of duty to endeavor themselves by way of amends to be a help and an ornament thereunto."—LORD BACON.

THE FALL OUTLOOK.

As foreshadowed in our review of the trade during the spring, conditions since then have been improving step by step so that in looking over the field for the coming fall and holiday season we seem to be justified in saying that the prospect is abundantly gratifying. While reports of sensational transactions in book buying are scarce there is plenty of evidence that the trade throughout the country is preparing for a heavy demand for books this winter. Every indication points towards a general revival of business and improved trade conditions in every section of the country, and, notwithstanding the impending presidential election, there is apparent a general revival of confidence everywhere in commercial circles. Advance reports confirm the earlier expectations that this will be a banner year for the farmer, and money continues plentiful and easy to secure at low rates of interest. It is only in isolated manufacturing centers, where partial or total "shutdowns" have unfortunately been necessary during the past year, that the outlook is still discouraging and slow. But even the mills and factories which have been idle for some time are looking forward to an early resumption of work, and the number of the unemployed, distressingly large even in what are considered to be good times, is steadily diminishing.

The book trade was exceptionally fortunate in having come through the commercial depression that struck the business world during the latter part of last year with such fatal results, with so little damage, and in having held its own so well during the reaction. Failures have been comparatively few since the present year set in, and the few that have occurred were due rather to other causes than the panic, and were expected long before the panic occurred.

The special seasons, such as the Valentine and Lenten season, were eminently satisfactory to those with enterprise enough to take time by the forelock; and the post-card business held its own as never before. The latter part of July and the month of August, especially in the larger cities, were unusually dry, but business since the return of the vacationists thus far this month has more than made up for the losses sustained during the slack weeks, so that the average for the seven months is reported to be as good if not better than a year ago. Compared with the status of other trades this is not a bad showing. There has been some trouble with collections, which more than ever have been exasperatingly slow in every direction.

As for the general standing of the trade and its relations to underselling, conditions remain in statu quo, with this difference that the right of the trade to protect itself against unfair competition has been more clearly and more satisfactorily defined than ever by the decision of the United States Supreme Court. If a publisher desires to protect himself and his constituency against the unfair methods of the underseller the law will provide him with a remedy in contract, and will guard him against the aggression of those who break the contract as far as it is possible for the law to do so. The book trade associations are both alive and will no doubt present as strong a front to their enemies as ever. Even those publishers who felt themselves obliged to sever their connections with the American Publishers' Association will no doubt in spirit find it profitable to maintain the principles for which the association stands; that is, to assist, by every legal means in their power, to maintain the integrity of the booktrade, and to protect it against unfair competitors. If any publisher has any doubt on the subject now he may in time be brought to realize the necessity of it as a measure of self preservation.

The publisher, with confidence in the future, long months ago made the most liberal preparations for a heavy demand for books. About 2,000 of the books arranged for we announce in this issue. Naturally the interests of the day have inspired many. The great panic of last year has brought its full quota of books on finance, banks, insurance, methods of investment and public affairs of all kinds. The coming election brings forth books on the Constitution, government, methods of election, and the great international questions of tariff, copyright, shipping, fisheries and all other material interests are fairly covered. Fiction still holds its own, although some statisticians insist that this great branch of publishing will show a decrease this year. However that may be, it is a fact that all the best authors have new novels coming, and the announcement of only our best known publishers alone will bring 189 new stories on the market. In the department of Biography and Memoirs there are 96 works, and among them such subjects as Whistler, Wagner, Mansfield, Henry Irving, George William Curtis, William Morris and Edward A. McDowell, the dearly-loved and regretted professor of music of Columbia University, will be treated by those most fitted for the task. In history there are 37 good books, among them three of unusual interest, relating to the tercentenary history of Canada. Religion and theology and the speculations about spiritual life are the subject of many books, and the general unrest and unsatisfiedness of the present age lends to speculation in "advanced thought," "Christian Science," telepathy, immortality and all other ideas of present and future existence. Holiday gift books show more active preparation than for some years; the juveniles for the holidays number 280 titles, and the new editions of standard literature in every kind of shape, many especially suited for gift purposes, form a very important feature of the publishers' investment. Among the most important works of reference announced is an "Encyclopedia of Religion and Ethics," edited by James Hastings, to be complete in ten or twelve volumes. The public taste improves and the publishers realize it. Indeed, one of the hopeful signs in the book and stationery trades is that the demand for better things is steadily increasing.

Fall with its renewed activities and its expanding requirements is almost on the threshold, and with it will come increased business in all departments of trade. It is therefore well to be prepared in advance. The dealer who understands this will be the one to make the profits during the coming season.

THE RELATION OF BOOKSELLERS AND LIBRARIANS.

WITH reference to the report of the annual meeting of the Library Association of the United Kingdom, held at Brighton, Eng., August 24 to 27, in the course of which the "net book" was made the text of several discussions on which to preach a crusade against the supply of books for local free libraries through the local booksellers, Mr. John Murray contributes the following interesting communication to the London Publishers' Circular:

"I do not propose to discuss the financial side of the question of supply of net books to public libraries, as this is now the subject of careful investigation and negotiation, and is, in fact, a far more difficult and complicated matter than the spokesmen of the libraries seem to suppose.

"I should, however, like, with your permission, to say a few words on Mr. Topley's statement, that 'a numerical majority [of booksellers] had not and did not expect to have any direct personal interest in the supply of books to libraries,' and that these are the men who oppose all concession of discount on net books.

"What may be the exact proportion of the booksellers of the United Kingdom who supply books direct to libraries as compared to those who do not, I have no means of ascertaining, and I doubt if Mr. Topley has either; but this is beside the mark. When he talks of the libraries being practically deprived of a 'measure of simple justice by the dead weight of a numerical majority,' he is begging the question.

"I suppose it will be agreed that the ideal of a public rate-supported library is to bring sound and recognized literature, more especially expensive books, within the reach of those who can profit by them, but who have no means of purchasing for themselves.

"This fact is recognized and well stated by Mr. A. O. Jennings.

"An even higher ideal is that every student and cultivated person should be able to form a library of his or her own, adapted to his or her own special tastes and studies.

"Both these ideals are in their completeness unattainable, but it should be the function of the free public library to promote both, so far as it can.

"The circulation of very cheap and ephemeral literature (especially the newest fiction), and the lending of books at the public expense to those who can perfectly well afford to buy for themselves, are obviously not calculated to promote the ideals I have named, and it is here that the action of some librarians comes into direct conflict with the interests of the bookseller. The applicant for such books should be told that it is not justifiable to spend the ratepayers' money to enable him to read such books, and that he must buy them for himself. The tendency in many quarters, however, is actually to encourage the loan of such books, and so to improve the statistical returns of work done.

"It is the boast of the libraries that they foster the desire to read, and I fully admit this, but I maintain that they should also foster the desire to buy books among those who can afford to do so, and so play into the hands of the bookseller instead of becoming his rival and antagonist, as is too often the case.

"The bookseller is a ratepayer, and although his rate is now confined to 1d. in the pound, Mr. Thomas Stanford considers the fixing of this limit as the 'perpetration of a joke,' and wishes to see it widely extended.

"I maintain then that every bookseller in the kingdom has a direct interest in this question and an inalienable right to influence the policy of supply. The small man who does not deal direct with large libraries is often hit harder than his large neighbor who does.

"In conclusion I wish to quote the admirable words of Mr. A. O. Jennings:

"'There is no justification for a library committee expending money raised compulsorily from ratepayers in the purchase of any books which have no definite educational or literary value, and which merely serve to amuse and to kill time—in the end we are rendering the community we serve the truest service if we decline to cater for lower tastes in it than the private person dares to provide for in himself, and if we have faith to believe that if we address ourselves to its slowly evolving higher intelligence and nicer taste there will be a response.'

"Before the librarians claim a concession of terms as a 'measure of simple justice,' let them be quite sure that their present policy in spending money which is not their own does not involve injustice to men who are earning their living by an honorable but most laborious trade."

JOHN MURRAY.

50 ALBEMARLE ST., LONDON, September 7, 1908.

NO DEARTH OF PULP FOR PAPER.

THE Congressional committee appointed to investigate conditions in the paper mill and pulp industry with a view to ascertaining whether or not the tariff on wood pulp should be removed, devoted practically the entire day on September 17, toward obtaining an approximation of the available pulp wood supply in the Middle West. Every witness placed on the stand testified that there is no danger of a scarcity of wood for many years to come. Perhaps the most important witness of the day was William S. Taylor, president of the Pulp Wood Supply Company of Appleton, Wis., which organization furnishes pulp wood for twelve of the paper mills in the Fox River Valley. "Our company buys about 225,000 cords of pulp wood annually, about 50 per cent. being spruce, most of which is purchased in Minnesota, and about 50 per cent. being hemlock, all of which is purchased in Wisconsin," said Mr. Taylor. "Neither the present nor the coming generation need have any worry about the supply of pulp wood in the Middle West, for there are millions upon millions of feet available."

THE TRADE IN SONG SHEETS.

THE old time song sheet as big as a newspaper has nearly disappeared. Its place has been taken by a pamphlet or book, usually with a gaudy cover and containing from forty to fifty songs. These books have a phenomenal sale, averaging from 500,000 to a million copies annually.

With the song sheets have disappeared the poor wretches who sold many of them in the streets. According to a writer in the New York Sun "they were mostly derelicts, incapable of following any other occupation. They made enough money to supply their immediate wants by peddling the sheets on the street or from one saloon to another, where most of their profits were quickly spent for drink.

"The first song sheet, according to William Delaney, was published in the early '60's by Henry De Marsans, who had a small shop at 60 Chatham Street, and issued about four different sheets a month. After De Marsans came Mrs. Pauline Lieder, who was succeeded by her son..

"In 1876 Henry J. Wehman, who was employed by De Marsans as an office boy, opened a shop at 70 Chatham Street. He died about seven years ago, leaving a fortune to his sons, who still run the business.

"'George Wallace, an Englishman, is probably the wealthiest song book faker in the country,' said Mr. Delaney. 'He travels all over the city, but his stamping ground is usually at the corner of Fourteenth Street and Third Avenue. He began selling songs about twenty years ago in New York. Five years later he went to Philadelphia, where he ran a cheap lodging house. He lost all his money and returned to New York and began to peddle songs again. He recouped his lost fortune, and to-day he is credited with being worth $50,000. He owns several lots in Philadelphia, lives well and is married. He sells from $8 to $10 worth of books a day.

"'Joseph Fishman made enough money by selling song books and sheets to become a land owner in Newark. He is about 19 now, and has been peddling songs ever since he was 12. He started originally as a newsboy, selling sheets and books on the side. He is now located in Newark, where he has a prosperous newsstand.

"'One of the old guard of street fakers, really the only one left, is a familiar figure on Park Row. He drifted out of the business with the passing of the old time song sheet, and when he's on the sober list nowadays acts as barker. He used to be a great song sheet salesman. His forte was Irish songs, and before old John Barleycorn put a crimp in his voice he made a big hit singing the good old Celtic ballads. He used to go from one saloon to another and sing the songs that he wanted to sell. He possessed an excellent tenor voice, and his ability in this direction enabled him to dispose of many song sheets. He was a sort of Mark Tapley in disposition and made many friends. But his fall was rapid and he is just barely able to get along and keep up.'

"There are lots of folks along Park Row who recall Doc Totten. That was not his real name, of course. It was hidden behind a romance that was buried when the poor fellow died. Totten, as far as is known, came from the West and was a real doctor, it was said. He used to tell his friends that he was once a prosperous physician and that he was in love with a girl who threw him over because of his drinking habits. Doc drifted East and tried to reform. But it was no use. He came to the Bowery and lived in a cheap lodging house. He sold song sheets, and despite his environment and mode of living displayed flashes of refinement that appealed to people who bought his song sheets out of pity. Occasionally he would sober up and save money. He had a bank account of about $50 one time. But he fell from grace repeatedly, drew the money from the bank and finally died at Bellevue Hospital in the alcoholic ward.

"There was another unfortunate fellow who was known along the Row as the Bard of Armagh. He was very intelligent and a man of education, and had the habit of quoting at great length from the Irish poets when in his cups. The Bard was a wonderful song sheet salesman. When he was sober few could compete with him in selling the sheets. He made more money than the other unfortunates, but as fast as he made it he would spend it for drink. The Bard made a valiant effort to reform years ago and succeeded. He was prompted to lead a better life through a letter he received from his mother one day. She begged him to come home, and he returned to the little city somewhere down East where he was born. He got a job as janitor at a college and was getting along pretty well until he drifted to the Bowery again. Then he went down the hill rapidly and died at one of the charity hospitals."

WANT OLD MAGAZINES.

In sending out the thirty-third annual report the committee of the Hospital Book and Newspaper Society, 105 East Twenty-third street, New York City, draws attention to the fact that in distributing the magazines to the hospitals and other charitable institutions an attempt is made to send complete files for the year, and it would be a kindness if the public would send in their old periodicals for the past summer, including the months of June, July, August and September. The appeals from institutions in the South for something to read for the inmates are pathetic, it is said, and a good deal of happiness can be bestowed on deserving persons by the gift of a few magazines.

In the report to the Board of Managers of the State Charities Aid Association the committee says: "The appeals from institutions, schools and individuals increase in number and urgency with the knowledge of our work, especially from the Southern States. One woman who wrote to us for a supply of books said that there was an old bedridden colored woman living near her who supported herself by teaching a few negro children, and she got her lesson books all from the packages sent by our society."

HELD IN CANADA FOR $20,000 BOOK FRAUD.

The Canadian Detective Bureau in Toronto, on September 16, arrested J. Bellamy, alias J. M. McFarland, of Chicago, on the technical charge of vagrancy. The real charge against him will, however, be that of obtaining money by false pretenses.

McFarland is alleged to have duped a number of people in Toronto by selling at big prices "fake" rare books and antiquities. In conversation with the detectives McFarland admitted that he was the head of a conspiracy which in a similar game resulted in the fleecing of Mrs. J. A. Patten, of Evanston, Ill., of $20,000 in money, checks and notes.

In May last three Chicago men, Lee Van Wermer, M. F. Perry and H. S. Levy, who were selling alleged "old masters," were chased out of town. Clippings found on them revealed knowledge of the Patten case and the police in Canada have since been on the watch for McFarland.

An Associated Press despatch from Chicago reports that James A. Patten when informed of the arrest of McFarland, said: "I am not sure that I will assist in extradition proceedings." J. E. Paden, attorney for Mr. Patten, on the other hand, declared that McFarland would be brought to Chicago and tried. McFarland is said to have obtained only $2,950 in cash from Mrs. Patten. The remainder was in notes signed by Mr. Patten.

A PROSPERITY CREED.

Michigan business men are passing along the following creed. It is a good one and should help to dispel the feeling of uncertainty that has existed for the last few months. Pass it along.

First—I will dispel from my mind any thoughts of hard times.

Second—I believe there is more to be gained by push and aggressiveness than by idle talk.

Third—I believe times are what we make them; I will add my influence toward making them good.

Fourth—I will not allow the investment I have in my business to remain idle.

Fifth—I am going to get rid of the old stock and restock with new.

Sixth—I am going to run my business on business principles.

Are you with us?

OBITUARY NOTICE.

Dr. Alexander Wilder died on September 18, at his residence in Newark, N. J., aged eighty-five years. He was born in Verona, N. Y., and was graduated from Syracuse Medical College in 1850. From the practice of medicine he went into newspaper work, and after serving on the Syracuse Star and Syracuse Journal, he was employed by the New York Evening Post, with which he was connected from 1858 to 1871, a part of the time as Albany correspondent. Dr. Wilder was remarkable in many ways. He educated himself in the higher branches of mathematics, and in Latin and Hebrew, and it was while working as a farmer and setting type that he studied medicine. He translated the Bible into six languages within the last few years, and at the time of his death was working on a translation of Plato's works for private distribution. Among his works are many bearing on ethics, philosophy and the mysteries of the future life: "Secret of Immortality Revealed," "Our Darwinian Cousins," "Eleusinian and Bacchic Mysteries," "Serpent and Siva Worship," "Entheasm," etc. He was a member of the anti-Tweed Board of Aldermen in New York City in 1872.

THROUGH inadvertence a notice of the death of Isaac Upham of the firm of Payot, Upham & Co., on August 17 in San José, Cal., was pigeon-holed until now. It seems that Mr. Upham, though well on in years was a keen bicycler and was on the road when he was struck by an automobile, receiving injuries from which he died an hour later. Mr. Upham was born in North Union, Me., May 22, 1837. As a boy he peddled papers and prepared himself for the scientific department of Maine Wesleyan University. In 1860, Upham sailed from New York on a vessel bound for California. In 1863 he turned up in Butte County, which elected him County Superintendent of Schools, re-electing him for a second term in 1867. In 1870 he removed to San Francisco and bought a half interest in the firm of Payot & Co., then stationers and bookbinders, then at the northwest corner of Pine and Battery streets. From small beginnings the firm of Payot, Upham & Co., rose to become one of the most important stationery and book houses on the Pacific Coast. After the fire in 1906 both Mr. Upham and Mr. Payot decided to retire from business. Mr. Upham at the same time decided to financially support his two sons, Isaac Oliver and Benjamin Prince, in the business in which he had made his fortune and in which he had trained them. The outcome of this decision on his part is the existing Isaac Upham Company.

NOTES ON AUTHORS.

COUNT LEO TOLSTOY has been elected to honorary membership in the faculty of the University of St. Petersburg.

THE following centenary celebrations will be held at the close of the present year and during 1909: On December 9, 1908, the tercentenary of John Milton's birth will be celebrated. The centennial of Gladstone's birth will be celebrated on December 29. The hundredth anniversary of the birth of Felix Mendelssohn Bartholdy will be celebrated February 3, 1909, and that of Abraham Lincoln and of Charles Darwin on February 12, that date being also the fiftieth anniversary of the first appearance of "The Origin of Species." On March 1 next it will be one hundred years that Chopin was born; May 31 will mark the hundredth anniversary of Haydn's death, and the centennial of the birth of Oliver Wendell Holmes falls on August 29 of the coming year.

JOURNALISTIC NOTES.

THE PROGRESS COMPANY, 515 Rand-McNally Building, Chicago, Ill., have arranged to bring out The Cosmic World, edited by Christian D. Lawson, which will give "special attention to the spiritual element in life. . . . It will be a personal monthly message from Mr. C. D. Larson, who will write every article; and he has promised to hold nothing back. The highest and most advanced thought that he has found in his abundant spiritual experience will be given fully, which means that a rare feast is in store." The subscription price is $1 a year.

National New Education is the title of a new monthly periodical devoted to the introduction of national education in all grades of the public schools. It advocates, in the light of modern research, the more consistent application of the principles and methods promulgated by The New Education which was founded in Milwaukee, in 1877, and in which Miss Elizabeth P. Peabody merged her Kindergarten Messenger in 1878 because she considered it the best representative of her aims. The magazine is the official organ of the National New Education League, who publish it from their headquarters at 414 Menill Building, Milwaukee, Wis., at $1 a year.

BUSINESS NOTES.

CHICAGO, Ill.—The Progress Company, recently incorporated, has taken over the magazine Eternal Progress and the book business of C. D. Larson, as well as the book business of Edward E. Beals, the treasurer and manager of the new company. Besides Eternal Progress they will also publish a new magazine, The Cosmic World of which announcement is made elsewhere. They have also taken over the business of the Stockham Publishing Company, publishers of "Tokology," "True Manhood," etc. Their headquarters are at 515-519 Rand-McNally Building.

NEW YORK CITY.—Regarding the affairs of the United Educational Co., the trustee writes that up to September 14 three dividends aggregating 44 per cent. have been paid. There will probably be no other dividend in this matter, unless judgment be recovered against the subscribers to the underwriting agreement of the company. A suit is now pending, but it is impossible at present to state when the matter will come to trial, and the final outcome of the matter is purely speculative.

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

Dodd, Mead & Co. have decided to postpone the publication of the new novel by Baroness von Hutten, "Kingsmead," until next year.

Thomas F. O'Brien, for twenty years manager of the book department of Munn & Co., has severed his connection with that firm, the resignation to date from October 1.

Charles Scribner's Sons will bring out on October 3 George Cable's new novel, "Kincaid's Battery," a thrilling story of life in New Orleans before and during the war between the states, with illustrations by Alonzo Kimball.

Bobbs-Merrill Company have just ready "The Orphant Annie Book," uniform with James Whitcomb Riley's other book, "The Raggedy Man." The volume is profusely illustrated and decorated in colors by Ethel Franklin Betts.

Duffield & Co. have just published a novel by an anonymous author, entitled "The Adventures of a Nice Young Man." The novel is described as telling "a good story for its own sake" and as containing "a quaint philosophy" that will recommend it to the admirers of the Victorian novelists.

The Merchants' Helps Publishing Company, of Delhi, N. Y., have in press a new book by Frank Farrington, the successful writer of literature for merchants, entitled "Back in the Harness." This book is to be a sequel to "Talks by the Old Storekeeper," and it is even more valuable in material for the business man than its predecessor.

Hurst & Co. year by year make their list longer, stronger and more attractive. One hundred new titles are to be added to their various series; and seasoned novel readers as well as boys and girls will find treasures in the Hurst list that hold their own year after year from generation to generation, and that make attractive gifts for any season or occasion.

Paul Elder & Co. announce "The Love Sonnets of a Car Conductor," by the author of "Love Sonnets of a Hoodlum," the first of the slang sonnet group and which is still selling; "The Perfectly Good Cynic's Calendar for 1909," by the original "Three Wise Sages;" also, "Animal Analogues," by the author of that unique production, "How to Tell the Birds from the Flowers."

Thomas Y. Crowell & Co. will publish a new book by Dr. Orison Swett Marden, editor of Success, entitled "He Can Who Thinks He Can." They will add to the What is Worth While series the following five new titles: "Turning Northward" and "A Cure for Care," both by J. R. Miller; "The Hope of Immortality," by C. F. Dole; "The Sure and Living Faith," by G. A. Gordon; and "The Wheels of Time," by F. L. Barclay.

The University of the State of New York at Albany, N. Y., has just brought out a volume entitled "Van Rensselaer Bowier Manuscripts—being the letters of Kiliaen Van Rensselaer, 1630-1643, and other documents relating to the colony of Rensselaerswyck," translated and edited by A. J. F. Van Laer, archivist, with an introductory essay by Nicholaas De Roever, late archivist of the city of Amsterdam, translated by Mrs. Alan H. Strong.

John Lane Company have just ready in their Living Masters of Music Series a short biography of Richard Strauss, by Ernest Newman, who, besides furnishing the biographical matter, also discusses early and later instrumental work, songs, choral works and the operas. The complete list of Strauss's compositions with opus numbers and dates is appended and a personal note on Richard Strauss the man is contributed by Alfred Kalisch. They have also just ready an English translation of Hermann Sudermann's play, "John the Baptist."

"A Book of Sweethearts" is the title of an elaborate gift-book published for the holiday season by the Bobbs-Merrill Company. It contains large full-color reproductions of paintings by such well-known American artists as Howard Chandler Christy, Harrison Fisher, Clarence F. Underwood, Will Grefé, Lester Ralph and F. Graham Cootes. Each picture is the head of a beautiful girl. The text is a series of clever toasts. The text pages, also printed in full-color, are illustrated with incidental drawings by Mr. Cootes and lavishly decorated by Will Jenkins.

G. P. Putnam's Sons will publish on October 3 "Judith of the Cumberlands," a new novel by Alice MacGowan, author of "The Last Word," etc., with illustrations in colors by George Wright. No one can fail to enjoy this moving tale with its lovely and ardent heroine, its frank, fearless hero, its glowing love passages, and its variety of characters, captivating or engaging, humorous or saturnine, villains, rascals, and men of good will. The descriptive vignettes that abound in the story are done with a fine art, and conjure up like magic scene and situation together.

The Century Company will bring out next month a complete and authoritative cyclopedia, covering all possible points of pear:

history, the work of Dr. George Frederick Kunz and Dr. Charles Hugh Stevenson, under title of "The Book of the Pearl." It is to have one hundred full-page plates, besides the five hundred pages of text, the illustrations including many portraits of famous women wearing pearl ornaments. They also announce a Henry Hutt picture book in the autumn, a handsomely mounted collection of eighty-two Hutt pictures, fifty in color—the first book yet made of the work of this popular illustrator.

L. C. Page & Company will publish on September 28 a new work of fiction by an anonymous writer, entitled "Travels of a Lady's Maid." The story is that of a lady's maid who accompanied a Countess and her daughter who come to New York with the Earl for the marriage of the son of the family. They cross the continent, returning home by way of Japan, India, across to Egypt, Greece and Italy. The impressions and observations of the young English girl of the places she visits and the people with whom she comes in contact, given from the point of view of one "below stairs," are extremely amusing and entertaining.

The Frederick A. Stokes Company has just published the initial volume in a series entitled The Collector's Hand Books. This volume is on "Delftware," and has been written by N. Hudson Moore, author of "The Old Furniture Book," "The Old China Book" and other similar works. It is a helpful guide to the many varying styles of Delftware, showing how to distinguish between genuine Holland china and its English namesake. There are also many photographs of beautiful specimens from the world's rarest collections, with complete information about markings on china and other means of identifying the genuine from the false.

D. Appleton & Co. have just brought out an English edition of the biography of Diaz, president of Mexico, by Zayas Enriquez, a member of the Mexican Senate, who has known President Diaz for a number of years. They have just published David Graham Phillips's play, "The Worth of a Woman," "Accounting Practice," the result of many years of practical experience in accounting, by Clarence M. Day; "The Evolution of Forces," an original work on the nature of energy for the International Scientific Series, by Dr. Gustave Le Bon; and "New Physics," giving the results reached by, and the future aims of, leading physicists, by Lucien Poincare.

The Century Company will have another of Frances Hodgson Burnett's "Queen Silverbell" fairy books this autumn—"The Spring Cleaning," with twenty pictures in color. Another "happy" book for the youngsters will be Carolyn Wells's "The Happychaps"—the Happychaps being own cousins to the Brownies—with one hundred pictures by Harrison Cady. The 1908 books in the Thumb-Neil Series will be John Keats's "Odes, Lyrics, and Sonnets," and Emerson's "Power, Success, and Greatness," the first with a preface by Edmund Clarence Stedman, the second with an introduction by Richard Watson Gilder. The frontispiece of the Keats volume will be a reproduction of the only one of the miniatures from life by Severn.

Moffat, Yard & Co. will publish early in October a new Dartmoor novel by Eden Phillpotts, entitled "The Virgin in Judgment," which is pronounced by London critics as equal to his best work; "The Mallet's Masterpiece," by Edward Peple, author of "The Spitfire," which is described as "fiction but not a novel," built around the mystery of the Venus of Milo; also, "A Letter of Hope," by Hope Lawrence, an uplifting letter from a Christian woman to her pastor, in which it is seen why her sufferings, instead of making her bitter, have developed the spirituality of her nature, with an introduction by Elwood Worcester, D.D., rector of Emmanuel Church, Boston, and author, with Drs. McComb and Coriat, of "Religion and Medicine."

The first Booksellers' League dinner of the fall will be given on October 14, at the rooms of the Aldine Association, at six P.M. Hudson Maxim, the famous inventor of high explosives, who was for a time in the printing and subscription book business in Pittsfield, Mass., Dr. Samuel McComb, associated with the movement of the Emanuel Church for the Moral Treatment of Nervous Disorders, and the Rev. T. L. Chamberlain, writer, speaker and philosopher, have promised to help the League on that evening. The Booksellers' League is in good shape so far as its funds are concerned, and is steadily gaining in membership, though not in the measure its directors wish it would gain. The League deserves the support of every one employed in the booktrade, or who may be interested in providing entertainment and instruction for the rank and file of the profession.

Small, Maynard & Company have taken over the limited definitive edition de luxe of "The Poems of Madison Cawein, the Kentucky poet. The set contains an introduction by Edmund Gosse, and is illustrated by photogravures after paintings by Eric Pape. The titles of the five volumes comprising the set are as follows: Volume I., "Lyrics and Old World Idylls;" volume II., "New World Idylls and Poems of Love;" volume III., "Nature Poems;" volume IV., "Poems of Mystery and of Myth and Romance; volume V., "Poems of Meditation and of Forest and Field." The appearance of this edition marks an epoch in American letters, for through it this "most poetical of American poets," to acknowledge unfamiliarity with whose poetry President Roosevelt declares "is to acknowledge a woeful ignorance of contemporary American literature," at last comes to his own.

A. C. McClurg & Co. will publish this fall the third part of Pompeo Molmenti's monumental history of Venice, in two volumes, completing the work: "Catchwords of Patriotism: the Greatest Utterances of Great Americans," compiled by Wallace Rice, who drew his material from all manner of sources—histories, anthologies, collections of orations, congressional record and Supreme Court reports; "Catchwords of Friendships," two hundred sentiments concerned with that charming human relation; "The Washington Year Book," compiled by Wallace Rice, who has drawn a sentence for the year, for each month and for every day from the writings of George Washington; a revised edition of Rosa Belle Holt's excellent book on "Rugs," with thirty-eight pictures, twelve of them in color; four new books in their Little Books on Art—"Miniature" and "Jewellry," both by Cyril Davenport; "Enamels," by Mrs. Nelson Dawson, and "Bookplates," by Edward Almack, each of which covers its ground from the historical beginnings down to the present day; also, "The Amateur Motorist," by Max Pemberton, the motoring editor of the London Sphere, which is as free from technical matter as such a treatise well can be.

LITTLE, BROWN & CO. publish this week "Three of a Kind," the story of a musician, a newsboy and a cocker spaniel, which is said to possess that "heart interest" in which humor and pathos is mingled. The work is by Dr. Richard Burton, professor of English literature at the University of Minnesota, who hitherto has been better known to the reading public as a poet and essayist. They have also just ready "Recollections of a Varied Career," by General William F. Draper, (member of the famous Draper Manufacturing Company of Hopedale, Mass., and recently U. S. Ambassador at Rome,) a modest resumé of the events which have filled the life of this typical American; "The Story of a Border City During the Civil War," by Dr. Galusha Anderson, former president of the Chicago University, in which are chronicled the struggles of St. Louis, Mo., when it was claimed by both the Federal and the Confederate authorities; "An Original Gentleman," by Anne Warner, a delightful story the scene of which is laid in the quaint town of Hildesheim, Germany; "The Wide Awake Girls," a story for girls and young women, by Ruth Ellis; also, "Rover, the Farm Dog," by Mrs. Wesselhoeft, in which the children and their pets have many and varied adventures.

H. M. CALDWELL COMPANY will publish shortly "How Canada Was Won," a story of Wolfe and Quebec, by Captain F. S. Brereton, who in his graphic manner describes the events that led up to the conquest of Canada and to the supremacy of the Anglo-Saxon race in the new world, with illustrations by W. Rainey; "Weiga of Temagami," a collection of stories of an unspoiled tribe of Indians, by Cy Warman, well-known for his "Railroad Stories," etc.; "The Dearest Spot on Earth," three essays on the making of home, by the Rev. Jay T. Stocking, minister of the Newtonville (Mass.) Congregational Church; "Poems from Punch," selected by the Rev. Albert E. Sims, a new volume in the Remarque Series of Literary Masterpieces; "Pageant of Elizabethan Poetry," prepared by Arthur Symons; "The Glasgow Gallery," a new volume in their series of Great Galleries of Europe; "Our Wedding," a handsome souvenir for bride and bridegroom, prepared by Helen P. Strong; also, "Irish Toasts, Sentiments and Convivialities," in prose and verse, compiled by Shane Na Gael, prefaced by a toast from Ireland to America by John P. Redmond, and "Scottish Toasts, Sentiments and Convivialities," prepared by Ivor Ben McIvor, which also contains a number of good stories, which are always in order when a toast is not in order.

HOUGHTON MIFFLIN COMPANY have brought out this week "Cupid's Almanac and Guide to Hearticulture, compiled for D. Cupid," by Oliver Herford and John Cecil Clay, with twelve pictures in color by Mr. Herford and an equal number by Mr. Clay, besides numerous smaller sketches by each artist, a book which is certain of becoming a holiday favorite; "Though Life us do Part," by Elizabeth Stuart Phelps, (Mrs. H. D. Ward,)) a story full of human interest, mystery and emotional power, sure of a warm welcome from the many admirers of the author's characteristic literary qualities; "The Lay of the Land," by Dallas Lore Sharp, author of "Wild Life Near Home," etc., fifteen out-door sketches showing an unusual depth of sentiment and poetic feeling for nature; "A Happy Half-Century," by Agnes Repplier, a collection of papers dealing with the fads and fancies of our grandparents written in the delightful vein of whimsical meditations characteristic of the author of "Compromises," "Points of View," etc.; "The New Boy," by Arthur Stanwood Pier, author of "Boys of St. Timothy's," etc., a delightful book for boys, with illustrations by Franklin T. Wood and others; also, "The Moons of Balbanca," by Mrs. M. E. M. Davis, the story of a year in the life of a group of children in the French quarter of New Orleans, with illustrations.

HILLS & HAFELY CO., 27 E. Twenty-second Street, New York City, have brought out an attractive booklet entitled "The Books of the Bible in Verse," by Gretchen, with an introductory note by the Bishop of Carlisle, which may be had in paper and in cloth covers. They have as usual a fine line of attractive calendars, among which the leading ones are "The Rosemary Calendar," with dainty hand-painted covers tied with silk cord; "The Remembrance Calendar," with hand-decorated covers, with air-brush effects and mother of pearl inlays; Booklet Calendars, including a "Music-Lovers' Calendar," a "Book-Lovers' Calendar," "A Shakespeare Year Book," and "Stepping Stones," each of which contains, besides appropriate extracts, blank spaces for memoranda, also a supplement giving rates of postage, movable church feasts, legal and Jewish holidays, etc.; "Fun and Frolic," four comical pictures of comical figures, and many others. "The Day's Reminder" is an attractive memorandum calendar pad for the desk, handsomely mounted in leather. Their line of Christmas and New Year Cards, Birthday Cards, Wedding Congratulations, etc., number upwards of 400 varieties and include dainty productions in chromogravure, photogravure, relief stamping, artistic printing, chromo-lithography, air brush, mother-of-pearl, hand painting, and illuminating photography.

TERMS OF ADVERTISING.

Under the heading "Books Wanted" book-trade subscribers, under their own names, are given the privilege of a free advertisement for books out of print of five nonpareil lines, exclusive of address, in any issue except special numbers to an extent not exceeding 100 lines a year. If more than five lines are sent the excess is at 10 cents a line, and amount should be inclosed. Bids for current books and such as may be easily had from the publishers, and repeated matter, as well as all advertisements from non-subscribers, or those advertising anonymously, must be paid for at the rate of 10 cents a line. All objectionable books will be excluded so far as they come under our notice.

Under the heading "Books for Sale," the charge to subscribers and non-subscribers is 10 cents a nonpareil line for each insertion. No reduction for repeated matter.

All other small undisplayed advertisements will be charged at the uniform rate of 10 cents a nonpareil line. Eight words may be reckoned to the line.

Parties with whom we have no account must pay in advance, otherwise no notice will be taken of their Communications.

BOOKS WANTED.

☞ In answering, please state edition, condition, and price, including postage or express charges.

Houses that are willing to deal exclusively on a cash-on-delivery basis will find it to their advantage to put after their firm-name the word [Cash.]

☞ Write your wants plainly, and on one side of the sheet only. Illegibly-written "wants" will be considered as not having been received. The "Publishers' Weekly" does not hold itself responsible for errors.

It should be understood that the appearance of advertisements in this column, or elsewhere in the "Publishers' Weekly," does not furnish a guarantee of credit. While it is endeavored to safeguard these columns by withdrawing the privilege of their use from advertisers who are not "good pay" booksellers should take the usual precautions, as to advertisers not known to them, that they would take in making sales to any unknown parties.

TWO IMPORTANT, INTERESTING NOVELS

STOKES' AUT

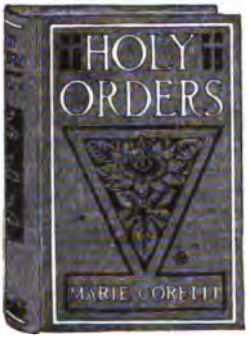
THE TRAGEDY OF A QUIET LIFE

By MARIE CORELLI

"Instant, prodigious success. . . . In many respects the strongest thing she has yet done."—N. Y. American.

100,000 EDITION SOLD OUT IN ENGLAND ON PUBLICATION DAY

Never has Miss Corelli interwoven into a novel so much of the living present. The Liquor Problem, now disturbing the politics of many states, is an important element in the plot. The mad rush of society for new sensations; the difficult position of the church; the influence of the yellow press and the modern stage are vividly put before the reader.



Advance sales unusually heavy—exceeding those for last year's great success, THE SHUTTLE, at same date.

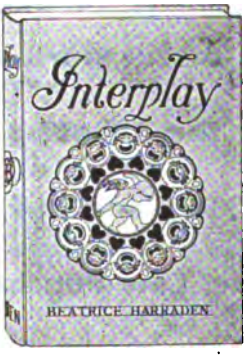
INTERPLAY

By BEATRICE HARRADEN

Author of "Ships that Pass in the Night"

Cloth, 12mo, $1.50

A novel dealing with the very latest social conditions, and expressing, as nothing in recent fiction has, the feelings and impulses that are moving modern women toward Woman Suffrage and larger activity.



It is the splendid love story of a famous Arctic explorer and a woman of talent and beauty.

It contains many striking and interesting characters, drawn with the distinctness and truth which gave such charm to "Ships that Pass in the Night."

THREE ENTERTAINING AND DELIGHTFUL ROMANCES

LENTALA

OF THE SOUTH SEAS

With 8 illustrations in color by MAYNARD DIXON

An unusually handsome gift novel. Octavo size. Large type. Striking color pictures. Handsome binding. An exceptional book for the price

By

W. C. MORROW

"'LENTALA' . . . is just as good as 'She.'"
—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

It relates the singular adventures of a band of colonists on a volcanic island, and their rescue by the mysterious Lentala. The love story in it is novel and charming.

COFFEE

AND A LOVE AFFAIR

An American Girl's Romance on a Coffee Plantation

By

MARY BOARDMAN SHELDON

This novel has the same feminine charm and sentiment as some recent popular fiction issued in the same style at the same price. It will be widely appreciated by all women readers.

The heroine is a cheerful, resourceful American girl, whom a sudden fancy takes to a South American coffee plantation. Her vivacious and witty descriptions of life there, and her romance, in which a New Yorker and a Spaniard take part, make it a delightful book.

"It positively scintillates with wit and humor."
—Buffalo Courier.

BY RIGHT OF PURCHASE

By HAROLD BINDLOSS

Author of "Alton of Somasco," "Winston of the Prairie," "Delilah of the Snows," etc.

A dramatic, forceful story, bigger in many ways than anything Bindloss has done before. In it he returns to the scenes of his most popular novels—the Northwest Country. It contains incident and romance, and a thoroughly real and human problem. It tells the struggles of a man and woman married for mercenary reasons, in a lawless community where they have to fight shoulder to shoulder.

One of Bindloss's best. Beautiful and striking binding.

SANTA CLAUS AND ALL ABOUT HIM

By E. BOYD SMITH

The most deliciously funny book ever produced by the author and artist ("The Story of Noah's Ark." It answers all a child's questions about Santa Claus :- where he lives, how he makes toys, who his helpers and companions are, how he know what each boy and girl wants. It's the same beloved old Santa Claus. But what wonderful personage Mr. Boyd Smith has made him!

The more you look, the more you find in the pictures—some comical little animals in a corner— touch of fun to chuckle over—a side-splitting joke expressed in some toy or fairy. When children minds are filled with the Christmas saint this book will call forth delight and rapt attention. A boo to please everyone, boy and girl, young and old, merry and serious.

Many illustrations in color and in black and white.

THE CHILD'S RIP VAN WINKLE

Children love this legend more than any other, but Irving's long Latin words prevei them from understanding his story in many details. THE CHILD'S RIP VA WINKLE, however, can be enjoyed by everyone old enough to appreciate a legen

No change has been made except the substitution of simple words for words that children cann understand. Far from causing children to pass by Irving and the story of Rip in their later year the reading of this simple version will stimulate them to make further acquaintance with the gre American author. Miss Kirk's pictures in full color are true to the spirit of the story and will delig all who see them.

Twe've full-page illustrations in color. Cloth bound. Price, $1.50, postpaid.

DANA ESTES & COMPANY'S

FICTION.

A Comedy of Mammon.

By Ina Garvey. A most clever and amusing satire on the follies of the smart set of English society, with interesting sidelights on their would-be associates and imitators, very evidently produced by a writer who has a first hand knowledge of her subject. It is altogether the brightest piece of work since the "Visits of Elizabeth." Illustrated, cloth, 12mo..... $1 50

The Queen's Gate Mystery.

By Captain Henry Curties, author of "A Bride on Trust," etc. Here is a novel with all the elements of success, essentially modern in its setting and bristling with incident. That the murder of a London tradesman should affect the map of Europe seems wildly improbable, but such is the ingenuity of Captain Curties that on laying down the book the reader is bound to confess that it all might very well have happened in real life. The characters are exceedingly well drawn, and the author's style is far more vivacious than is usually the case in fiction of a sensational kind. Cloth, 12mo..... 1 50

When the Tide Turns.

By Filson Young, author of "The Sands of Pleasure." Although not intended as a sequel to "The Sands of Pleasure," the present work is like it in that it deals with vital present-day soul problems. It is marked even more by its trenchant insight into human character, and also by its remarkable clarity of style and beauty of description. Illustrated, cloth, 12mo... 1 50

The Wooing of Calvin Parks.

By Laura E. Richards. In this story, the creator of "Geoffrey Strong" and "Mrs. Tree" reverts to one of the happiest of her many phases of activity and portrays with delightful reality the queer, quaint, odd and lovable characters of her own "Down East" neighborhood. Illustrated, 12mo..... 1 25

JUVENILES FOR BOYS.

The P. Q. & G.

A Railroad Story for Boys. By Edward S. Ellis, A.M., author of "Our Jim," "Lucky Ned," "The Lost Dragon," etc. This story is one of the best of the many excellent ones written by Mr. Ellis. It is marked by the same delicious humor, stirring incident, and clean, manly teaching that form one of the greatest charms in the works of the author. "It is one of the best juveniles ever published!" Illustrated by J. W. F. Kennedy. Cloth, 12mo..... 1 25

The Minute Boys of Long Island.

By JAMES OTIS, author of "Minute Boys of South Carolina," "Minute Boys of the Green Mountains," etc. The new Minute Boys story by Mr. Otis is even more interesting and instructive than its predecessors. It covers some of the most important and exciting events of the great Revolutionary struggle; also includes other authentic occurrences, such as the freeing prisoners from the prison ships in Gravesend Bay, a part of the New York story of '76, which has been slighted in other historical romances. Illustrated by J. W. F. Kennedy. Cloth, 12mo ... $1 25

THE BUSINESS VENTURE SERIES.

The Cruise of the Phoebe; Or, Lobster Buying on the Eastern Coast. Volume I.

By JAMES OTIS. A new, up-to-date series of books for boys. This is a most realistic and interesting series of books on native industries that cannot fail to be most acceptable to young people of the day. The first volume is a ripping good story of the lobster buyers who leave Portland, Maine, in stout power boats, cruising along the intricate and hazardous coast line as far as Halifax, buying lobsters and bringing them back to be shipped alive to the West. The remote and wild country visited, the intricate navigation, and stormy weather encountered, and the primitive and often lawless character of the fishermen along the international boundary occasion many and thrilling mishaps and adventures. Illustrated, cloth, large 12mo..... 1 50

JUVENILES FOR GIRLS.

A Journey of Joy.

By AMY E. BLANCHARD, author of "Janet's College Career," "A Girl of '76," "A Daughter of Freedom," etc., etc. A fresh and charming story of the travels and adventures of three American girls in Europe. The author is too widely known and appreciated by American young people to require further introduction, and this, her latest and best story, will, we are assured, appeal irresistibly to all readers of her previous books and to a fresh crop likewise. Illustrated by L. J. Bridgman; cover design by Amy Sacker. Large 12mo..... 1 50

Marigold's Winter.

By EDITH FRANCIS FOSTER, author of "Jimmy Crow," "Mary 'n' Mary," etc.; with illustrations by the author. This delightful new instalment of the doings of Marigold and her little friends tells of her winter pursuits and amusements. She still continues to prove a very real little girl and does all manner of things that little girls usually do, and many others that not all might think of, and besides manages to make some other people happy at the same time. The book is one that little folks will love to have read aloud, and the charming illustrations by the author-artist make a pictorial synopsis of the story. Illustrated, cloth, 12mo..... $1 25

GENERAL LITERATURE.

The Second and Completing Volume of the Journals and Letters of Samuel Gridley Howe.

Volume II. THE SERVANT OF HUMANITY.

Edited by his daughter, LAURA E. RICHARDS, with an introduction and annotations by Frank B. Sanborn. Complete in two volumes, sold separately. This volume deals with the many interests and activities which followed his initial exploits on behalf of the Greeks. His successes in the cause of education of the blind; his participation in the anti-slavery agitation; his intercourse with Kossuth and others struggling in the cause of freedom; his Civil War time activities; these and many other events of equal interest are told of in his journals, which give wonderfully vivid accounts of a career destined to live throughout the course of history. Illustrated, cloth, 8vo.....Net, 3 00

Living on a Little.

By CAROLINE FRENCH BENTON, author of "A Little Cook Book," "Saturday Mornings," etc. A most valuable volume of practical hints to young people, enabling those beginning housekeeping on small means to so arrange their living expenses as to realize the best results and make both ends meet, even in these times of inordinately high prices. The author has contributed many effective articles on household economics and kindred subjects to Good Housekeeping and other magazines, and her suggestions are unquestionably most acceptable and useful. Cloth, 12mo..... 1 25

Some African Highways.

By CAROLINE KIRKLAND. With an Introduction by Lieutenant-General Baden-Powell. This is a valuable and interesting work. To quote the author's charming introduction, it comprises "A description of a trip made by two American women to Uganda and the Transvaal, one of the most fascinating and unique tours which can be made with entire safety and great comfort." To the lover of strong contrasts, of high lights and black shadows, of wonderful scenery, of great spaces, of all that is new, free and stirring, we recommend this work. With map and numerous illustrations. Cloth, large 12mo..... 1 50

The fight of a pygmy and a giant, and the pygmy won!

WHO WOULD NOT LIKE TO SEE AND GLORY IN SUCH A COMBAT?

The American boy's blood rushes madly through his veins as he reads of such a fight, for he knows that his nation was created in just such a manner. England, the mightiest of modern nations, a giant, was beaten in a square fight by the feeble colonies.

A YANKEE SHIP AND A YANKEE CREW is a story that keeps you wide awake until it is finished, and then you await the next of the series with impatience.

It is a story of VIGOR, PLUCK, AND FASCINATION. Every line is interesting. The scenes are so vivid that the reader feels he is standing on the quarter deck with the Irish-born John Barry: his heart throbs with patriotic fervor as he takes his place with the men behind the guns; and as the enemy's flag is lowered and the Star Spangled

Our Old Ships and Their Commanders

From "Old Ironsides."

Banner is run up in its place, his heart seems to stop beating with excitement, and the cheers of the Jackies ring in his ears.

The men and boys on the war ship become living realities and we catch the inspiration of the Spirit of '76, and glory in the heroes who created the nation.

While the story is HISTORICALLY TRUE, there is a vein of romance running through it which holds the attention and charms the reader.

How little we know of the ALMOST MIRACULOUS WORK of the EARLY NAVY!

Is it not wonderful to think that it was YANKEE SHIPS AND YANKEE CREWS under the gallant DECATUR, and BAINBRIDGE, and SOMERS, that succeeded in TAMING THE BARBARY PIRATES and opened the Mediterranean Sea to the ships of all nations?

The naval history of the world can give no more thrilling story than that which is told in the second of this series, under the title, TAMING THE BARBARY PIRATES. The great Lord Nelson, full of honors on account of his victories on the high seas, declared Decatur to have performed the "MOST DARING ACT OF THE AGE." History will hold Decatur's name among those deserving of immortal renown.

Who has not heard of OLD IRONSIDES? the "BUNDLE OF PINE BOARDS" as England contemptuously called the frigate CONSTITUTION. BUT THAT WAS BEFORE ITS GUNS MADE THE MIGHTIEST MARITIME NATION OF THE WORLD TREMBLE. The story of OLD IRONSIDES is one of sturdy patriotism and dashing bravery. Not a boy who reads the story but will wish he had lived in those days and been a participant in the glorious work performed by the gallant officers and crew of the U. S. FRIGATE CONSTITUTION.

The series of OUR OLD SHIPS AND THEIR COMMANDERS does not end with the thrilling story of OLD IRONSIDES, but readers will be carried around Cape Horn in the ESSEX and will be told in a spirited but true story how a single Yankee ship with a Yankee crew cleared the Pacific Ocean of English vessels.

The indescribable courage of PERRY and MACDONOUGH on Lakes Erie and Champlain, the startling adventures of the brave men who, taking their lives in their hands, transported the stores over mountains, through forests, meeting with savage Indians, encountering the greatest of dangers and triumphing over all, are set forth in vigorous and eloquent manner in the story, NEVER GIVE UP THE SHIP, which is bound to be a favorite in all sections of our loved land. The little sloops, WASP and HORNET, so annoyed Great Britian that the very mention of their names called forth angry tirades. THE AUTHOR HAS THROWN HIS WHOLE SOUL INTO THE STORY, A STING FOR GREAT BRITAIN, and the heart is thrilled and the soul elated as the reader eagerly drinks in every word.

Whoever reads one of the series will not be satisfied until he posesses all. The stories are so accurate that they can be quoted as history, and yet no fiction can excel them in interest.

To add to the permanent value of the series, the author has added an appendix to each volume, in which he tersely sketches the history and achievements of each ship, the life of each prominent commander, and many little bits of history which will always be referred to with interest, and quoted as an authority.

The books being handsomely bound and profusely illustrated, will not be cast aside when read, but will be treasured by those who love their country and glory in the achievements of the brave men who trod the decks of the grand old ships of our first navy.

The remaining volumes of this series, now in press and shortly to be published, are,

JUVENILE NOVELTIES

Printed in Colors or with Colored Illustration

KING TIME: Or, The Mystical Land of the Hours.

By PERCY K. FITZHUGH. Illustrated by L. J. BRIDGMAN. The most original book for children published in a decade. The story of a little boy who sits in front of the tall hall clock and wonders where the hours go when they pass away. While so wondering he falls asleep, and dreams that he is visiting the mystical kingdom of Father Time. He meets King Time, and also innumerable imps who represent the various hours of history. The different imps, each representing some momentous event in the world's history, all tell their stories of what they saw when sojourning in the world. The little imps representing the hours, minutes, jiffies, etc., are grotesquely significant of the general theme of "Time," bearing resemblance to clock work, clock faces, etc. The houses in which the imps live are in the shape of clocks. Printed on fine finished paper, with over 100 text and eight full-page colored half-tone illustrations. Bound in cloth, with original cover design. Size 7¼ x 8¾ Price $1.25.

CALDWELL'S BOYS AND GIRLS "AT HOME"

Upwards of 200 pages and illustrated with over 150 illustrations, 40 of which are in color. Pictorial Palestine
BIBLES

From 55 cents upwards

The originators of this new Pictorial Bible hope they may claim to fill a want. There are many illustrated Bibles. Some contain copies from the Old Masters, and grand as these pictures are in color and artistic skill, no one would venture to say they are correct, either as to place or costume. Other editions contain modern pictures drawn by very capable artists unfamiliar with the East.

"Of all the pictorial Bibles I have seen for children, and for giving to the children on Children's Day, this easily stands first."—The Intermediate Sunday School Quarterly, April, 1908.

In this Bible, the pictures, whatever merit or demerit they may have, are at least true.

FALL ANNOUNCEMENTS—Continued

CRITICAL ESSAYS OF THE SEVENTEENTH CENTURY. Vol. I, 1605–1650. Vol. II, 1650–1685. Edited by J. E. SPINGARN, Adjunct Professor of Comparative Literature, Columbia University, New York. Crown 8vo, cloth, $1.75 per volume.

THE SHAKESPEARE APOCRYPHA. Being a Collection of Fourteen Plays which have been Ascribed to Shakespeare. Edited, with Introduction, Notes and Bibliography by C. F. TUCKER BROOKE, B.Litt. Cloth, $1.75. Oxford India Paper Edition, cloth, $2.50.

"In the study of Shakespeare the plays that are with more or less plausibility attributed to him are constantly coming up, and they are usually rather difficult to procure outside of libraries. It is a marked service that is rendered, therefore, to Shakespeare study by Mr. C. F. Tucker-Brooke in publishing 'The Shakespeare Apocrypha' in a single volume It contains the text of the fourteen plays to which Shakespeare's name, as part or joint author, has been attached, and in a preface the author gives the grounds for each attribution, with the history, as well as an account of the numerous other plays in connection with which Shakespeare's name has been used. The plays are edited carefully. It is rather astonishing that such a collection should not have been prepared before."—N. Y. Sun.

THE COMEDIES OF TERENCE. Edited with Introduction and Notes by SIDNEY G. ASHMORE, L.H.D., Professor of Latin in Union College, Schenectady, N. Y. Crown 8vo, cloth, $1.50.

"It is a great comfort to possess the writings of any author, particularly a classic, in a single volume, and though 'The Comedies of Terence' as edited by Prof. Sidney G. Ashmore of Union College (Oxford University Press) is probably intended for the classroom, it will be welcome to all who have retained at least the Latin side of their humanities."—N. Y. Sun.

". . . A boon to students. . . . Prof. Ashmore's new edition will be welcomed by students. It lacks nothing needed in the study of the author from the point of view of philology, grammar, poetic quality, or dramatic history."—N. Y. Times Sat. Review, July 11, 1908.

". . . Prof. S. G. Ashmore has done a real service in preparing this complete edition. . . . For the first time teacher and student have in a single volume a variety of material which is indispensable to a proper study of Terence. . . . Prof. Ashmore's book is marked by sanity, by care, by fine literary instinct, for Prof. Ashmore is master of an excellent English style, something all too rare in classical text-books. The introduction discusses clearly and well such topics as the history of Greek and Roman comedy, the plays of Terence, Terence's influence upon literature, and the production of plays."—The Nation, Sept. 3, 1908.

LATE PUBLICATIONS

HENRY C. VEDDER'S

Our New Testament: How Did We Get It? 16mo. Price, probably, $1.00 net.

HENRY C. VEDDER.

The underlying thought of the book is this, that in the former sense of the terms there was no such thing as a closed canon. In the course of time, however, the subconsciousness of the Church or Churches, rather than hiearchical authority decided on certain books, and rejected others, and so we have our New Testament. Whether this conclusion shall be reached or not by the reader will depend very largely on his point of view.

Christian Epoch-Makers. 12mo. Price, $1.20 net, postpaid.

In the eighteen chapters of this book professor Vedder has given a graphic account of the great leaders of the missionary epochs of the Christian Church.

SAMUEL ZANE BATTEN'S

The Christian State. 12mo. Price, probably, $1.25 net.

This book is a thorough discussion of the origin, nature, development, and mission of the State, with special reference in its practical application to the relation of Christianity to the national life.

AUGUSTUS H. STRONG'S

The Outlines of Systematic Theology. 8vo. Price, $2.50 net postpaid. Uniform in binding with the author's "Systematic Theology."

Doctor Strong is an expert in framing definitions. This book is largely made up of these, in the making of which Doctor Strong has spent his life. They constitute the large print portions of the complete work, and so, without extract or comment from others, the book stands in a peculiar sense Doctor Strong's own.

JANE A. STEWART'S

The Christmas Book. Illustrated. 12mo. Price, probably, $1.00.

This book is without doubt the most complete work on the world's great holiday that has been published. The origin and evolution of Christmas, Christmas giving, and Christmas gifts; methods of observing Christmas in different lands; Christmas games and curious customs, with an interesting exercise, "The Crowning of Christmas"—these and much more are all here.

ROBERT G. SEYMOUR'S

Fresh Water From Old Wells. 12mo. Price, probably, 75 cents.

An interesting and instructive devotional book, treating of the wells of the Bible.

W. WISTER HAMILTON'S

How to Grow in the Christian Life; or, Wells by the Way. Vest-pocket edition. Price, leather, 25 cents net, postpaid; paper, 10 cents net, postpaid.

There is no question as to the duty or privilege of growth in the Christian life. This is Doctor Hamilton's proposition which is self-evident. The key of its attainment is that which needs setting forth and to this the author addresses himself.

MARSHALL SAUNDERS'

My Pets. Illustrated in black and white and colors, by Charles Copeland. 12mo. Price, $1.25.

This book might very properly be called a companion volume to "Beautiful Joe," by the same author. Like that immensely popular autobiography of a dog, this new work delineates animal life in a way that will fascinate and charm the children, and the hundreds and thousands of boys and girls who have come under the spell of Beautiful Joe's recital will be eager to read about the pets of the author of that "Beautiful tale of an ugly dog."

EDWIN J. HOUSTON'S

Five Months on a Derelict. Vol. I in "The Pacific Series." Illustrated. Price $1.25.

This book describes the experiences of two men and three boys on a derelict brig in the Pacific Ocean. It is the first of a series of three volumes that will present life on and in the great ocean. The succeeding two volumes, entitled respectively "Wrecked on a Coral Island," and "In Captivity in the Pacific," will be published at an early date.

EVERETT T. TOMLINSON'S

The Sifting of Philip. Illustrated. 12mo. Price, $1.25.

We have here the third of Mr. Tomlinson's Home Mission Stories and many say his best. The scene of the story is laid in North Dakota, with incidents connecting it with Montana.

Doctor Tomlinson has written a story that ought to do more for home missions than many a sermon.

MADISON C. PETERS'

Sermons That Won the Masses. 16mo. Price, 50 cents net; postage extra.

MADISON C. PETERS.

These sermons are on topics that touch the daily life and are couched in direct and earnest terms. There is no waste material and no beating around the bush. Both theme and hearer are approached at once. In this respect these sermons form a model that may be studied with profit.

A NEW HOLIDAY BOOK

By the author of "The Song of Our Syrian Guest"

THE SIGNS IN THE CHRISTMAS FIRE

By WILLIAM ALLEN KNIGHT

Author of "The Song of Our Syrian Guest," "The Love Watch," and "St. Abigail of the Pines."

In this very human and touching Christmas Story Dr. Knight has shown again the same qualities which made such a wide appeal to readers of "The Song of Our Syrian Guest"; sympathetic insight into human lives of all ages and races, tender sentiment, fresh power of interpretation and delicate grace of expression.

THREE EDITIONS

Vellum edition, with borders and leaves and cover, printed in gray green and gold bronze. Gilt top and photogravure frontispiece. Price, 50 cents net.

Envelope edition, uniform with "The Song of Our Syrian Guest," bound in Onyx Malachite, with decorations in olive green. Price, 35 cents net.

Board edition, bound in gray green, with decorations in a darker tint, and colored frontispiece by FRANK T. MERRILL. Price, 35 cents net.

The Strange Ways of God

A Study in the Book of Job

By Charles Reynolds Brown

Author of "The Main Points," "The Social Message of the Modern Pulpit," "Two Parables," "The Gospel of Good Health."

Dr. Charles R. Brown believes that the teachings of the Book of Job have special value for our times, for it deals with the vital problems of ordinary people. He aims, therefore, to interest the average reader who is less concerned with dogmas and speculative inquiries than with the stress and strain of actual experience; and to clarify the complications of form in this ancient drama.

Bound in green boards with buckram back, gilt top and lettering. 74 pages, 5¼ x 7¾ inches. Price 75 cents net.

The Keen Joy of Living

By John Edgar Park

It is not often that one encounters the sheer zest for living that bubbles up in these pages as from a perennial spring. The author is buoyantly glad to be alive, and to him life is a fine art to be produced from the raw materials at hand; it is a game to be entered with heart and soul; a jest, sometimes, to the man who adds to faith, hope and love, a sense of humor; and, finally, a wondrous fairy tale.

Attractively printed in two colors and bound in double folds, with end leaves and borders distinctive in character and very dainty in design. Inclosed in an envelope, uniform in design and color. Ready for mailing. Size 7¼ x 4¾ inches. Price 35 cents net.

Old Andover Days

By Sarah Stuart Robbins

The book is written with a vivacity of style which would charm any reader who loves old times and old ways, but to one who knows Andover and the famous men and women of early days, it makes a peculiar appeal of its own.

Bound in boards, with decorative side stamp and gilt top, deckle edges. Six full-page illustrations. 200 pages. Price $1.00 net.

The Church of Today

By Joseph Henry Crooker

The church as an institution worthy of the support and loyalty of humanity is the theme of this inspiring book. It is a remarkably well written, well considered, well reasoned plea for the due appreciation of the church as an organization naturally fitted to meet human needs that are fundamental and universal; an essential factor in the corporate life of communities, and to-day not less but more needed than ever.

Bound in green boards with buckram back, gilt top and lettering. 176 pages, 5¼ x 7¾ inches. Price 75 cents net.

The Land of Pure Delight

By Rev. George A. Gordon, D.D.

Starting with Isaac Watts's grand old hymn, "There is a Land of Pure Delight," Dr. Gordon develops one of his most sincere and impressive talks on an inexhaustible theme.

An exceedingly attractive little book, printed in two colors with delicate borders and decorations of green. The binding of double folded Sultan Damascus printed in gold bronze. Inclosed in an envelope uniform in color and design. Ready for mailing. Size 7¼ x 4¾ inches. Price 35 cents net.

The Gospel of Good Health

By Charles Reynolds Brown

Author of "The Main Points," "The Social Message of the Modern Pulpit," "Two Parables," "The Strange Ways of God."

The cry of "Good Health for a dollar a bottle" is rapidly becoming a spent force. The cry of good health at the price of the cultivation and training of all one's powers, physical, mental, spiritual, by bringing them into joyous harmony with the revealed will of God is now to the fore. And Dr. Brown's inspiring message is a fresh and genuine contribution to this subject.

Beautifully printed in two colors and attractively bound. Inclosed in envelope uniform in color and design. Ready for mailing. Size 7¼ x 4¾ inches. Price 35 cents net.

The Face Angelic

By Hiram Collins Haydn

In this choice little book Mr. Haydn pays graceful tribute to the rare souls possessing this beauty of expression, from Moses and Stephen of Bible times to Abraham Lincoln and Margaret Ogilvy; and goes on to show how the ordinary human being may realize the face angelic, "suggestive only of beautiful thoughts, transparent goodness and heavenly tempers and aspirations."

Harmoniously printed in a color scheme of buff and brown, with a cover of University Text India, and a beautiful copy of Murillo's famous Immaculate Conception as a frontispiece. Inclosed in an envelope uniform in color and design. Size 7¼ x 4¾ inches. Price 35 cents net.

MAXIM GORKY

THE SPY

The Story of a Superfluous Man

A thrilling novel, full of human interest; perhaps the greatest from the pen of this great writer. Russian life of to-day; the secret service and its mysteries; the heroism and self-sacrifice of the revolutionists, men and women, are vividly outlined and colored. In preparation. Cloth, 12mo. $1.50.

EDWARD HOWARD GRIGGS

ART AND THE HUMAN SPIRIT

The Meaning and Relations of Sculpture, Painting, Poetry and Music.
Handbook to a Course of Eight Lectures.

This course will be delivered during the season 1908-1909 in Boston, New York, Chicago, Brooklyn, etc. Ready in November. Paper 25 cents net; cloth, 50 cents net.

WILLIAM DE WITT HYDE

SELF-MEASUREMENT

A Scale of Human Values; with Directions for Personal Application

(In the Art of Life Series.)

The author's thesis is that an estimate of a man can be conducted scientifically. He analyzes life, showing its fundamental relations and the varying degrees of fulfillment and of violation of each. His analysis and scale are presented not for their possible use in judging others, but that they may be applied to ourselves.
In preparation. Cloth, 50 cents net.

FRANKLIN MATTHEWS

(Illustrated by Henry Reuterdahl.)

This consists of the letters written by the N. Y. Sun's correspondent who accompanied the U. S. Atlantic Fleet from Hampton Roads to San Francisco. They were published simultaneously in thirty leading newspapers and proved the most vivid and accurate account of the wonderful cruise.
Ready next week. Cloth, 12mo. $1.50.

SIMON NELSON PATTEN

PRODUCT AND CLIMAX

(In The Art of Life Series.)

He contrasts the enormous output of industry and the grind of the workers with the small result in real happiness. It is an emphasis of the leisure period as the tone-giving period in the art of living. In preparation. Cloth, 50 cents net.

OTTO PFLEIDERER

THE DEVELOPMENT OF CHRISTIANITY

The third and last book in the series of popular religious-historical lectures by the great German thinker, recently deceased. Uniform with the preceding volumes, "Christian Origins" and "Religion and Historic Faiths."
In preparation. Cloth, 12mo. $1.50 net.

NATHANIEL SCHMIDT

THE COMMONWEALTH OF MAN

A noteworthy forecast, now in preparation by this inspiring ethical leader, philologist, archæologist and economist. Probable price, $1.00 net.

JOHN SPARGO

THE SPIRITUAL SIGNIFICANCE OF MODERN SOCIALISM

This author is one of the most notable advocates of Socialism, and his book on the subject is authoritative and is widely used as a text in universities.

The great movement which he represents is shown in an altogether new light, and wide popularity, especially among non-Socialists, may be predicted for it.
Ready in October. Boards, cloth back, 50 cents net.

DIVERSIFIED READING

211 VOLUMES

The 211 Volumes of Supplementary Reading, published by the American Book Company, form by far the largest and most complete list of its kind ever issued. They embrace the subjects generally recognized by educators to be those best adapted for children's reading. The needs of each grade in the elementary schools are amply provided for.

Not only are the books instructive, supplementing the work in the regular branches, but they appeal to the child and provide reading which is unusually entertaining. Mechanically they are attractive, and with very few exceptions beautifully illustrated. No other books of their kind have ever met with so great popularity and success.

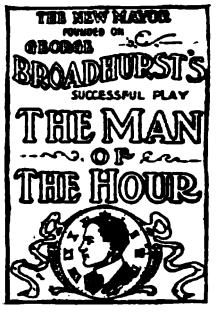
The New Mayor

FOUNDED UPON GEORGE BROADHURST'S PLAY

The Man of the Hour



This book will receive extensive advertising, as four theatrical companies are to present it on tour throughout the United States this Fall. The story is running at the present time as a serial in three big monthlies, which should create a big demand for the complete story. The price is right, 50 cents net, retail, and the book containing 250 pages and twelve half-tone illustrations from the play is good value for the money. The story is a strong one of politics, love and graft, and this being Presidential election year is just the time for it. Order now.

Gipsy Smith is to return to the United States this Fall for an extended Evangelistic tour. You should have on hand our book recently issued, entitled containing 255 pages of his best sermons as delivered in Brooklyn, N. Y., on his last tour. They are published in two editions; 12mo, cloth, $1.00 retail, and paper 25 cents retail, with frontispiece of the author.

THE DISINHERITED By George Wallace

FOR MANY YEARS EDITOR OF THE SOUTH SIDE OBSERVER

This is not a novel. It is a series of "Observations in Travel," in which Mr. Wallace makes a sympathetic study of conditions of a large proportion of the various peoples existing in want and misery, but is anti-socialistic in its treatment of this subject. 12mo, cloth, 215 pages, $1.00 retail.

COMMON SENSE IN CHESS By Emanuel Lasker

is looked upon by experts and beginners alike as the text book on chess, showing as it does, the openings and methods of play of this King of the Chess world. 12mo, 139 pages fully illustrated; cloth, 75 cents net retail.

All first class book stores should carry the above books in stock. Order now. Order through your news company or jobber, or direct from

THE ISLANDS OF THE PACIFIC

By JAMES M. ALEXANDER

Revised and Brought Down to Date

8vo, 370 pages, many new illustrations and maps. Cloth, $1.50 postpaid.

Covers the location, discovery and government of the various groups and graphically describes the inhabitants, their origin, languages, pagan superstitions, rites, and ceremonies, amusements and degradation. It also presents in striking contrast the recent rapid progress in enlightenment, industry and Christian civilization.

The Latest Book on Korea

FIFTEEN YEARS AMONG THE TOP-KNOTS

By L. H. UNDERWOOD, M.D.

New Edition, Revised and Enlarged

8vo, 374 pages, 42 illustrations in color Cloth, $1.50 postpaid.

The author has brought the story of political and religious conditions down to the present, describing graphically the events in that kingdom during the immediate past, and presents an historical review of the various political movements, the influence of Japan and of Western civilization.

An excellent line of Christian Literature in 35 languages is carried in stock.

THE GREAT NEW YORK SENSATION!

Now Ready at Popular Prices!

We desire to announce to the trade that we have just issued the story of

THE DEVIL

Novelized from HENRY W. SAVAGE'S great play of the same name

By FERENC MOLNAR.

Such a great furor was created through the presentation of the play, that a description of the story is hardly necessary. Suffice it to say that it is the talk of New York.

The book is 7½ x 5 inches in size, 1 inch thick, and contains 190 pages, printed in large, clear type on best quality of book paper, with eight full-page half-tone illustrations from the play. It is handsomely bound in cloth with cover illustration and ink stamping, retail price, 50 cents net, postage 9 cents per copy additional; paper edition, illustrated, with cover in two colors, price 25 cents.

IT SELLS ON SIGHT.

Uniform with the above book we publish THE NEW MAYOR, founded upon George Broadhurst's successful play THE MAN OF THE HOUR. 12mo, cloth, 50 cents net; paper, 25 cents.

Every bookseller should have the above books in stock.

QUIET TALKS WITH WORLD-WINNERS. By the author of "Quiet Talks on Prayer," "Power," "About Jesus," etc., S. D. GORDON

250,000 of Mr. Gordon's books have been sold and this new work is fully equal to its forerunners. "The chief business of the church is to take the Gospel of Jesus to all men. The absorbing centre of church action just now is in foreign mission lands. 'World-Winners' aims to give a Bird's-Eye view of the world, in a warm, fresh way, without the use of statistics; to make world-winning the gripping purpose of every Christian, and to make the man in the humblest place feel that he can be helping swing a world up to God as he goes about his daily commonplace round."

NET, 75c.

"THE OTHER SHIPS." DONALD SAGE MACKAY, D.D.

The wonderful sermons of this great minister have never been published, and now for the first time his most beautiful work has been gathered in this book.

BY

GEORGE ADAM SMITH

D.D., LL.D.

Professor of Old Testament Language, Literature, and Theology
United Free Church College, Glasgow

THIS important work is uniform with "The Historical Geography of the Holy Land," which has carried the fame of Dr. George Adam Smith to all parts of the world. It is not merely a work of vast erudition, but of entrancing interest, covering many aspects of the subject never before treated in literature, and is certain to become the standard work on Jerusalem in the English language.

A CUNNING ROUND OF MYSTERY

The CIRCULAR STAIRCASE

By MARY ROBERTS RINEHART

"To readers who care for a really good mystery story, THE CIRCULAR STAIRCASE, by Mary Roberts Rinehart, can be recommended without reservation. The story is put together skilfully and artistically. The extraordinary incidents follow on each other naturally. The plot about which the incidents are woven is ingenious. —New York Sun

"As bracing as a gale of salt sea air—that is the stimulating effect which THE CIRCULAR STAIRCASE has upon the mind." —Baltimore Sun
